Nilsson Outspoken in Her Opinion of Mr. Mapleson.

He is Neither a Colonel Nor a Musician, But He is a Liar—The Prima Donna Wants to Bet $10,000 That Her Voice is All Right—Gerster Engaged for Next Season.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 7.—Madame Christine Nilsson arrived in this city from Pittsburg in a special car, the Jerome Marble, over the Pennsylvania Railroad. She was accompanied by Signor Del Puente and wife, Capt. Wm. Bagot, Aide de Camp to the Marquis of Lorne, Miss Hope Glenn, and her numerous servants. When the train arrived at Trenton a reporter joined the party. On entering Madame Nilsson's car he found the occupants going through the operation of what is called "cashing up," in the language of the game known as draw poker. There was an alarming display of red, white and blue chips, and something of a display of bills of large denominations. The car was handsomely furnished, and had, among other apurtenances, a handsome upright piano. In the forward part of the car a very much tanned cook was occupied in the pleasant duty of burning up what had been left over from supper.

"Have you seen Mr. Mapleson's answer to some remarks you made about him?" Mme Nilsson was asked.

"Ah!" replied the prima donna, seemingly interested. "I have not seen them. He has made remarks about me, has he?" A copy of the paper containing them was handed her, and she glanced at the article a moment, and then raising her hands above her head, exclaimed, "My God! Does he really say he's a Colonel? Capt. Bagot, do you hear that, a Colonel—ot what? Why, a militia Colonel. There are 50,000 of them in England. Oh dear! this is too much altogether, too much.

COLONEL, COLONEL,

mark, I'll bring over one of his cards from London when I return next season. You'll find no mention of Colonel there. What nonsense! Why don't I sign myself from the Court of Vienna? Because I'm not a fool. He wouldn't dare sign himself Colonel in England, and a letter from the Duke of Cambridge," continued Mme. Nilsson, reading aloud, "The Duke of Cambridge! Ha, ha, ha," and the prima donna laughed and almost rolled off from her chair. "But what has Mr. Mapleson—not Col. Mapleson—to say further?" she continued. "Well, he is the most terrible liar. I did not say that. Oh, I can't believe anything he says. But I want him to leave me alone or I will 'punch his head,'" and Mme. Nilsson doubled two awe-inspiring fists in the reporter's face. "I'm nothing but a lone woman, but I can fight, and I've lots of friends, and he says I'm in a rage and swears about it, too. He says, 'Damn it.' He must be angry. Yes, I am in a rage. He should see me laugh.

I CAN'T HELP LAUGHING.

He is so ridiculous. He can attack me and say I've got a devilish character. I can only laugh. But he must look out. The law is sometimes called upon even by women. I know him." And Mme. Nilsson gave a very significant nod of her head and waved both hands in the air, as though she was about to swoop down on Col. Mapleson. "He ought not to ill-treat me and talk about my character," she continued, her eyes wide open. "It was Mme. Titiens and I who helped 'Jim,' that's what we used to call him, in his quarrels with Gye. Madame Titiens—I loved that woman—and I upheld Jimmie Mapleson for years.' And Mme. Nilson straightened back in her chair full of dignity and brought down her arm violently. "He says I've only four operas in my repertoire, does he say that?" continued Mme. Nilsson, "and will he put up $10,000 and ask what the fifth is? I take him, I take him. The money is yours. I'll take the bet and name the fifth, yes, the tenth, aye, the sixteenth. That and the Colonel make me laugh. Colonel! and they are lamenting his absence from the army. Ha, ha, ha. That's what's the matter with him. It's my remark about the Colonel that angered him. He's too much of a coward to go to war. He and I will go to war together, only two of us, out like Waterloo, and we'll fight. Ha, ha, ha. But he'd better keep quiet in his little cell. That's the only counsel I give him. I've lots of things to say about him."

IN A BIG FIELD

"He said you took offense at his allusion to your only having four operas," ventured the reporter.

"Oh, I took no offense at that at all," she replied, laughing. "The American people have heard me sing in opera, and they know what and how much I can sing. But what's this? He says I've been pulling out the hairs of his head. I wouldn't touch a hair of his head. He is not worth it, and he's attacked my character. Well, do you suppose he would want me to sing for him if my character was so bad?" The reporter could not answer the conundrum, and Mme. Nilsson continued: "I've been fifteen years with him, and although my character is so bad he wants me still. Oh, dear, what for? He's only jealous because Abbey has got me. That's all. Yes,

I DID SAY 'GO TO.'"

continued Mme. Nilsson, reading the interview, "but I did not say where to. Pst. Pst. No, I didn't get that from Ada Cavendish. I didn't know her. Nor from Ella Wesner. I know no more Shakspeare than he does. For if I've studied Ophelia, I must know more than he does. Ha, ha. Oh, he's got what you call softening of the brain," she added, tapping her forehead with her clinched fist, "and he says he has a coat at his tailor's," she continued, "and what has that got to do with it? But those four operas. Why, I've four new operas I have never sung here yet. He speaks about my singing 'Martha.' I sung that first in 1866. Ask Patti, and she'll tell you she won't sing it. She will say, 'I'm going ahead. I'll not sing that now.' He says I made a fizzle of it when I sang it. Fizzle, fizzle. What's that? Why when I came here first, that was one of my best parts. And Mme. Nilsson began counting up operas upon operas until they could not be counted, all of which she said were in her repertoire. "But it's too ridiculous to talk about; let's take up the point." He says I allude to and excesses. Yes, I did. I know him and all he says in answer to it is 'I suppose so.' He admits it then. Good. And I have pulled out his hair. Ah, I should like to have done so, just for fun. When you finish just say that Madame Nilsson wants to know what he wants her for if she is no good and such a character. As Shakspeare says, 'that's the question.'" All of the time during her comments, Madame Nilsson kept her arms gesticulating in a tragic manner and her voice grew harsh, then faint and finally melted away in a laugh. It was a play in a palace car. "But what on earth is this, he asks in the interview. Has she got the what? The tissitura. Ha, ha, ha. What is it? The tissitura?" And Madame Nilsson fairly went into hysterics over the tissitura. "Do you know what it is?" she asked.

"No," said the reporter, "I do not."

"Neither does he," she answered.

"HE'S NO MUSICIAN

at all and has no idea what it is. Well, if I've got that, I'm proud of it. I've then got all that a singer can want. It is a difficult thing to define. It's a sort of compass of the voice. Its hard to define in English because its a real Italian word. You might say that one who has a tissitura has so many octaves." How many Mme. Nilsson indicated by stretching her arms right and left as though she measured octaves by the yard. "That's tissitura. It's a sort of compass of the voice. That's the best I can give for an English definition. And it I've got that I'm happy." And Mme. Nilsson laughed over Mr. Mapleson's remark about tissitura till tiers train reached Newark. "He says he brought me out," she resumed, "but, mind you, he does not say where. That's not so. I made my debut in '64, in the Theatre Lyrique in Paris, long before

I SUNG FOR HIM IN LONDON.

But how silly to attack me! Why, if I lose my voice, I shall go on the theater stage. I'm so fond of acting. You watch me when I'm singing in concerts and you'll see I can't keep still. It's because I want to be acting in opera all the time. I love it. But why does Mapleson talk about me? Look at what I've done for him in London so many times. I've kept him from starving. It's Gye who ought to talk, for he says he has a contract with me,—not Mapleson. The only thing I ask of Mapleson, or of Gye, is to let me alone. It's the new Opera-house that's troubling them."

"Under whose management will you sing next season?"

"Under Mr. Abbey's. Mr. Gye says he has a contract with me. I wrote a contract out for Mr. Gye, which I handed him for his approval. He rejected it. I did so because he gave me to understand that he was going to open a new Opera-house in London, but he did not do so. Anyway he rejected my contract, and then wrote a letter asking me if I would make a contract. That's the letter I signed agreeing to make a contract,

BUT WHERE'S THE CONTRACT?

Now he says the letter is a contract. I have this to say—and when Christine Nilsson says a thing she means it—that I shall open Mr. Abbey's new Opera-house next season, and that I shall sing with him, and no other person. My lawyers in Europe and here advise me in every step. I have signed a full contract with Mr. Abbey, and there are witnesses to it. That settles it. I will never sing for Gye or Mapleson."

Mme. Nilsson spoke of her visit to this country in a feeling manner, and said she had been received everywhere in the kindest way. The concerts had been largely attended, she said, and Mr. Abbey had been very successful.

GERSTER SIGNS.

NEW YORK, April 7.—Messrs. Gye and Mapleson closed by cable yesterday an agreement with Mme. Gerster to sing in opera in this country next season. The final dispatch was received at the Academy of Music in the evening.

CURIOUS DIVORCE.

A Pretty Girl Sues Her Husband and Fools Her Guardian.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 7.—Tall, lithesome and exquisitely formed is Mrs. Ella Saxton. Mrs. Saxton says she is eighteen. She always dresses in black but fashionable raiment. She is a decided blonde, and her general appearance is that of a very dashing young lady. Mrs. Saxton wants a divorce, only a limited one, however. Mrs. Saxton's husband also wants a divorce, but he demands an absolute one, Mr. Thomas Saxton is the son of a wealthy importer doing business on Lower Broadway, and is a member of a highly respectable family. Like a good many other young men who are liberally supplied with money, Mr. Thomas Saxton went around somewhat up to about a year ago, when he had the knot tied which both he and his wife are endeavoring to untie. It was two days before the anniversary of the natal day of the father of his country, last year, that Ella and Thomas were made one. Five days before Decoration Day they had separated. Each pursued a different path. Ella commenced proceedings for a limited divorce. As she was under age a guardian was appointed—Mr. Herman Joseph, a young lawyer. Through the guardian a suit was commenced. Cruelty and abandonment are the charges made. The handsome plaintiff alleges that Thomas commenced less than a month after they were married. In the month of April, she asserts, he assaulted and beat her. According to her complaint he failed to support her, while she worked as a salesiady and attended to her household duties up to the time he abandoned her, on May 25. In fact, Mrs. Saxton claims she is of the opinion that her husband did not spend more than three dollars on her altogether, and that he has a most ungovernable temper. In the Supreme Court chambers, before Judge Barrett, a motion was made in the case for alimony and counsel fees. Several affidavits were read by counsel for the defendant in opposition to the motion. The hearing was adjourned for two weeks to allow additional affidavits to be put in evidence. After the proceedings had ended a reporter interviewed Mr. Joseph, the guardian. Mr. Joseph was only recently married to a most estimable young lady. This seems irrelevant, but it isn't.

TO ILL-TREAT HER

"Mr. Joseph, you are the guardian of Mrs. Ella Saxton, are you not?"

"Yes, I am, but I wish to God I wasn't," answered Mr. Joseph. "You see I

HAVE BEEN DECEIVED

in this matter by Johnson, who was a clerk in the office of District Attorney Downing, of Queens county. I had had some business with the office, and Johnson, by telling me a most pitiful story, picturing his client as a most unfortunate girl, induced me to become her guardian. She says she is only eighteen, I think she is about twenty-three. When the complaint was drawn up I did not like the manner in which it was done and I sent it back. Some alterations were made. Subsequently I suspected the woman's true character. I spoke to Johnson about it and he admitted that she was not a virtuous woman and was not one when Saxton married her. He made no secret of it. I told him that he must release me and obtain another guardian, as I did not propose to be mixed up in such a case. He answered that that was all right, asked me to continue as guardian and to go up and see her. Well, I was not accepting any such invitation. She had, however, without consulting me, although I am really the person who is bringing the suit. I am going to apply for an order from the court to be released, as I am responsible for costs, if there be any. This woman some time ago created a row in the Empire Garden, and threatened to clean out the place, because somebody made a remark about her companion. On another occasion, about three months ago, she drew a revolver on her husband's brother and a couple of detectives, who found her in a hotel with a man. She boasted of this and laughed over it in my presence some time after. You do not now wonder why I wish I wasn't her guardian, do you?"

GONE AHEAD

Could Not See the Joke.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 7.—The incidents referring to New York in the story printed in St. Louis of Sir James Chester's career have been investigated here. There never was any "Convent of the Visitation" in this city, no hospital of "The Alexian Brothers," nor any Father Chester connected with St. Stephen's Church. Priests who were educated at the American College in Rome say that there never was any such man as James Chester in the college.

[The above refers to the story published in the POST-DISPATCH on the day before April 1, and which might have been looked upon as an April fool yarn. New York newspaper men appear to have fared as badly as the crowd of people who went to the Southern Hotel to attend Mr. Chester's funeral services. They evidently did not notice the date set for the funeral in the article.

Magoogin's Opinion

Has not been expressed in regard to Maguire's Quinine and Iron Cordial, but the people have passed upon it, and decided it to be the best remedy for the brain, blood, nerves, muscles and stomach ever introduced. Its great efficacy has delighted invalids and astonished doctors.

DULL DAYS.

Wall Street Brokers Playing Chess to Pass Time.

The Stock Board Almost Deserted and the Operators in Despair--A Season of Stagnation--Transactions Not Paying Expenses.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 7.—These are dull days in Wall street. Business at the Stock Exchange has come almost to a stand-still. The transactions for the week just ended make the smallest aggregate recorded for a long time. Brokers' clerks are enjoying light work and short hours and their faces daily grow rounder and shorter, while their employers' countenances are steadily lengthening. The leisure hours forced upon the members of the Exchange are employed in various ways. A few devote themselves to the liberal sciences. It must be confessed, however, that there are a few who kill time in playing "heads or tails" for five-dollar notes, in guessing "odd or even" at the number printed on bank notes for small stakes, and in coining new and strange imprecations on the trade situation in general and the paucity of commisson orders in particular. A large parlor in the Exchange has been handsomely furnished and supplied with chess-boards. All day long brokers may be found here, within a few feet of the board room, immersed in the combination of the checkered field. It is something hitherto unheard of. This room is always filled with brokers, while the business floor is frequently half deserted.

A SATIRICAL MEMBER

suggested that the main floor be given up to the chess-players, as the parlor would afford ample accommodations for all the business that is transacted. This, of course, is an exaggeration. Only a little more than 100,000 shares of stocks now change hands every day, and it is estimated that three-fourths of these transactions are the result of purchases or sales by members of the Exchange, who buy or sell with a view to sustaining or depressing particular stocks, or who simply trade with the hope of making a fractional profit. All the heavy operators are members of the Exchange. They never go upon the floor, but the fact of their being members prevents the brokers who execute their orders from charging more than $2 for each lot of 100 shares bought or sold. The regular charge to an outsider is one-eighth of one per cent upon the par value of the stocks. As shares usually represent nominally $100 each, the par of a hundred is $10,000, and the brokers' regular charge is therefore $12 50 for buying and a similar amount for selling 100 shares. The penalty of doing business for less than this for any outsider is expulsion from the Exchange and confiscation of the seat. Thus the outsider who enters into stock speculation has to pay $25

FOR EVERY COMPLETE TRANSACTION

in 100 shares, while the board member pays but $4 for the same service. In the dull marketwhere-in every one-eighth counts the advantage which this fact alone gives to outsiders is immense. Assuming that three-fourths of the transactions are inside business, and that the total sales are 600,000 shares in a week, then the whole sum earned in commissions by the 1,100 members of the Exchange, between Monday morning and Saturday afternoon, is but $46,500, or but little more than $42 per week for each member. To form an idea how far that sum goes toward paying expenses, one need only walk through Wall, Broad and New streets, the lower part of Broadway and Exchange Place, look into the spacious and richly furnished offices of the commission firms, with their carpets, curtains, pictures and expensive wainscottings, mark the corps of clerks, book-keepers, messengers and telegraph operators, the private telegraph lines to distant cities and all of a thoroughly equipped establishment. It is no wonder that the heads of firms pull long faces and "wonder how long this sort of thing can last," or that the younger members of the Exchange, who execute the two-dollar business, declare that they are not earning their "fixed charges." Nor is it any wonder that seats in the Exchange are offered at lower prices. They were in demand some months ago at $32,000, and few cared to sell. To-day they are offered at $26,000, and no one seems anxious to buy at that price. All parties in Wall street agree upon the fact that trade there is stagnant, but when the cause of this state of affairs is sought the explanations given are very divergent. A reaction from the absurdly high prices made during the "boom" of 1879-'80-'81, was inevitable, but with the tendency to dullness and lower figures has now continued since the shooting of President Garfield, nearly two years ago. It is the general opinion in Wall street that the prolonged decline has 'wiped out' all the small fry of outside dabblers in stocks and has hurt and frightened out "lambs" who have large means, leaving all the speculative classes of stocks to-day in the hands of cliques and the big operators, each holding up the property in which he is interested most heavily. The theory is that the big operators are now carrying this vast load in the hope of being able to organize a spring "boom," on which to sell out at a profit. They ask whether there is not a limit to the capacity of the persons concerned for carrying stocks and whether they might not be badly hurt in case their banks were unwilling to lend any more money upon the always increasing load of securities under which they are staggering. It is understood that one man is carrying of the Western Union Telegraph Company in addition to very large blocks of other things. His wealth has been wildly conjectured to be $100,000,000, but those who claim to know state that the extent of the "pile" he has acquired is not more than $24,000,000. His friends assert that this must be a mistake, as he is too clever a man to place himself in the precarious position in which he would be in to-day if this estimate of his fortune be correct.

Indications.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—For South Atlantic States, occasional rain, followed by cloudy and slightly cooler weather, southwest to northwest winds and higher barometer. West Gulf States, fair weather, northerly winds, becoming variable, and higher barometer, in eastern and southern portions stationary or slight rise in temperature. Tennessee and Ohio Valley, fair weather in the western portions, local rains, followed by fair weather in the eastern portions, northwest to southwest winds, generally higher barometer, and stationary or slight rise in temperature in western portions. Lower Lake Region, rain and snow, followed by partly cloudy weather, northerly winds, becoming variable, generally higher barometer, and stationary or slight rise in temperature. Upper Lake Region, slightly warmer and generally fair weather and southwest to northwest winds. Upper Mississippi and Missouri Valleys, slightly warmer, clearing and fair weather, winds generally from south to west, followed by falling barometer. The Tennessee, Cumberland and Arkansas Rivers will rise rapidly. The Lower Mississippi and Ohio Rivers will rise slowly.

Bad for the Bucket Shops.

CINCINNATI, April 7.—Judge Maxwell, in the Court of Common Pleas to-day overruled the motion of F. A. Bradley, proprietor of what is known as "Bucket shops," to make perpetual the temporary injunction heretofore granted restraining the Western Union Telegraph company from removing the instrument known as a ticker from his office and refusing to give him market reports. The temporary injunction was dissolved and the case dismissed. The Judge said the Telegraph company was fully justified in withholding reports upon the ground that they were used for deciding wagers. That this was the use to which the reports were put was evident from the fact that neither Bradley nor any of his customers had any arrangements or facilities for handling grain.

A Boy Burglar.

CINCINNATI, O., April 7.—A boy fourteen years old, giving his name as Joe Harrigan, and saying his home is Baltimore and that his uncle is Comptroller of that city, has been found guilty of burglary of a freight car and sentenced to the State Reform Farm by Judge Johnston.

A Swindler Disappears.

GALENA, ILL., April 7.—P. H. Burch, advertising himself as of the Union Manufacturing Company of this city, and recently posted as a swindler by the Post-office authorities, has disappeared. It is estimated that he succeeded in swindling innocent people, mostly Swedes, by promising articles through the mails, to the extent of $35,000. Since his public exposure three hundred money orders and registered letters were returned to senders.

Illinois Legislature.

By Telegraph to the Post Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL., April 7.—There were only a couple of dozen of Senators in their places this morning. Mr. Kirk presented a report from the joint committee appointed to visit the State charitable institutions. The report was accompanied with a recommendation that one thousand copief be printed by unanimous consent. The report was accepted and the printing ordered. The Senate then attacked the bills on a second reading, of which there were over fifty on the calender, but got discouraged when a dozen or more had been worked off, and adjourned at 11 o'clock to meet again on Monday morning.

HOUSE.

There was an interesting session in the House. Senate bills were read a first time. Committee reports were received. The rules were suspended and bills on a first reading run through. The regular order was resumed, which was bills on second reading. A few were discussed and advanced to a third reading and the House adjourned.

Jeff Davis' Oration.

NEW ORLEANS, April 7.—Incident to the ceremony of decorating the graves of the Confederate dead in this city yesterday, and laying the corner-stone of the monument to be surmounted by an equestrian statue of Albert Sidney Johnston, an oration was delivered by Jefferson Davis, in which he eulogized the characteristics of the dead leader. In Johnston he recognized a strong pillar to the Confederacy, and when he fell on the field of Shiloh the mightiest column which sustained the cause had fallen. He died in a moment of victory and had he lived half an hour longer he would have made Grant a prisoner or a fugitive. The Confederacy had three great leaders, Lee, Jackson and Johnson, who would compare with leaders of antiquity or modern times. At a banquet in the evening the speaker reiterated the sentiments.

E. O. STANARD & CO.'S "Royal Patent" flour has taken the first premium at the St. Louis Fair the past five years.

A Big Storm.

NEW ORLEANS, April 7.—Heavy rains and a thunderstorm occurred here this morning. Water covers the rear of the city. The races have been postponed.

A BREAK IN THE LEVEE.

During the storm this morning a break occurred in the levee just below the Texas and Pacific Depot at Gouldsboro, nearly opposite the head of Louisiana avenue. The break is 150 feet wide and 7 deep. The wind during the storm drove the water over the levees opposite the city in many places.

Convention of Iron-Workers.

PITTSBURG, April 7.—The national convention of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers assembled here this morning for the purpose of arranging a scale of wages for the ensuing year. Forty-eight delegates were present from all parts of the country. The sessions were held with closed doors, but after adjournment President Jarrett was seen, and from him it was learned that the morning session was taken up almost entirely in effecting an organization. The proceedings were harmonious. No demands for an increase have been made, and the probabilities are that last year's scale will be reaffirmed.

Indicted for Frauds.

CHICAGO, April 7.—Charles G. Jackson and James Dever Duncan have been indicted by the Grand Jury in connection with the alleged frauds in the street department under the late municipal government of this city. The allegations are forgery, perjury and obtaining money under false pretenses by a system of false warrants and dummy payrolls. The allegation is that $100,000 a year was stolen in this manner.

Pilot's Cruel Taking-Off.

NEW YORK, April 7.—Henry Bergh, the defender of all animals, has written a letter to Barnum, the circus man, condemning the killing of the elephant Pilot. His argument is that kindness instead of cruelty would have subdued the animal. Barnum's reason for killing Pilot was that he considered it safer than to subject his patrons to danger.

Concessions to Contractors.

CHICAGO, April 7.—It was feared that the present strike would interfere with the construction of the new Board of Trade and other large public structures, but contractors assert that it will not. The Building Committee of the Board of Trade say they will make concessions to the contractors in the present emergency.

The Billiard Players.

CHICAGO, April 7.—Virgnaux and Schaefer, it is announced, will go to St. Louis and Cincinnati and play exhibition games next week, remaining in the latter city three days. The game in St. Louis is the regular three-ball game, 1,500 points. Sexton, Dion and Daly go to New York at once.

The Romance of a Crank.

Fred Zuyss, a Bavarian twenty-five years old, is in the hold-over at the Four Courts, reflecting on the roughness of the course of love. He was boarding at 1716 North Tenth street, rooming with Fred. Telsch, a young friend, until last Thursday night, when the latter entered the room with two police officers and had him carried to the calaboose as an insane man. It seems, according to Zuyss' story, that Telsch was keeping company with a young lady named Josephine Knopfer until two months ago, when he handed her to Zuyss. He gave Zuyss a ring which Josephine had given to him and Zuyss gave him $7 to buy a ring for Josie. The alleged crazy man says Josephine's father and mother accepted him and he was getting along all right until Telsch took it into his head to reclaim the girl. Zuyss resisted and the result was his arrest. Knopfer ordered him out of the house some time ago, and he has since been acting so strangely as to attract the attention of his friends and employers. He told the POST-DISPATCH reporter this morning that he could see in the glitter of his ring that Telsch and Josephine were going to get married and leave for Germany. Dr. Bernays says he is crazy, and he certainly looks, acts and talks like a crank.

SENTENCED TO THE PEN.

George W. Meiser Pleads Guilty to Embezzlement—Three Sentences Imposed.

George W. Meiser, recently employed as book-keeper for Udell, Schmieding & Co., to-day pleaded guilty in the criminal court to an indictment for embezzlement. Meiser is a young man and was for several years a trusted employee of the above named firm, but during a recent examination of the books startling irregularities were discovered and a deficit of $1,000. A warrant was issued charging the embezzling of this amount. A further examination discovered the fact that the total amount of money unaccounted for footed up nearly $4,000. By advice of his counsel Meiser to-day pleaded guilty, and in consideration of his previous good character he was sentenced to the Penitentiary for two years. A second indictment, growing out of the same defalcation, was nolle prossed. As Judge Van Wagoner pronounced the sentence tears welled to the prisoner's eyes, and he was removed to Jail.

Daniel Gleeson, who was implicated in the burglary of a clothing store at the southwest corner of Fifth and St. Charles streets, pleaded guilty to grand larceny and was sentenced to two years in the Penitentiary.

Thomas Kane pleaded guilty to grand larceny, and was sentenced to two years in the Penitentiary.

SMALL-POX.

Confined Exclusively to the Southern Part of the City.

"How is the small-pox, Doctor?" asked a reporter of Dr. Gib. Carson, of the Dispensary, this morning.

"Well, this is the weather for it. We have had about twenty-five cases of it, eighteen of which are of St. Peter and Paul's School, two at the Humboldt and one at the Charless, and three or four outside cases. It all started from one case of so-called chicken-pox. A Bohemian child was sick, while a sister went to school and spread the disease among the other children. When the first child died the neighbors attended at the house and assisted in dressing the body, thereby spreading the disease through that locality."

"It is not general throughout the city, is it?"

"No; it is confined to the district south of Park avenue and east of Second Carondelet avenue, and principally among the Bohemian population of that locality. They are absolutely the worst people in the city to attend for small-pox. The other day I went down there to attend a case and found the whole neighborhood congregated about the infested house. If it had not been for the police I suppose I never could get to the patient."

A Beautiful Work of Art.

A home production in the art line attracted a great deal of attention at Tony Faust's saloon, where it was placed on exhibition to-day. It is a magnificently executed and beautiful colored buck's head, intended for an advertising card for the glorious buck beer, whose festival day is at hand. The drawing is life size and the picture is instinct with animation and expression, the pose of the animal's head, the glitter of its proud eye and the waving beauty of its pair of horns being so faithfully depicted and artfully colored in delicate tints of brown that one stands in doubt for awhile trying to argue himself into the conviction that he is looking at a mere work of art and not at a living creature. The picture is elegantly mounted in a flat etruscan gilt frame, and calls forth general commendation. It is certainly the finest thing in lithography that St. Louis, or, indeed, the West, has ever turned out, and the house from which the card is issued has reason to feel the utmost pride in its achievement. Mr. Tony Faust is as pleased with it as if it were a $10,000 effort by Meissonier or any of those big chaps in Europe, and vows that he will give it the most conspicuous place all the year round in his art collection. The card is the work of the Compton Lithograph Company, Third and Vine streets, and is only one of the very many beautiful and artistic creations that emanate from this house.

Valuable Oil Paintings by Auction at 414 North Fourth Street.

In passing up the street this morning we see a valuable collection of high cost paintings by some of the best known artists of the present day, say such as Dechambro, Vaigh, Sauvige, Leonard, Gilbert, all of Paris; Sontag, Gay and others of New York; many out of the Royal Academy of London. A glance will at once say what this collection is. It would really be pleasing to see all our art lovers go and see them and we hope such pictures may be left in our city, as it will cultivate the tast of art lovers. We understand the collection will remain open for exhibition until 3 o'clock Monday, when the entire collection will be offered at public auction. Don't fail to see them.

Real Estate Transactions Which Yielded a Profit of $13,800.

Property Purchased by the Union Depot Company While Its Bill Was Agitated.

The Ex-Delegate's Confession Leads to Some Interesting Revelations--History of the Union Depot Bill--Other Facts.

Since the publication of the confessions of a penitent ex-Delegate there has been considerable comment on the subject of corruption and the use of bribery to secure valuable privileges from the city legislature. The facts stated by the penitent politician have been asserted to be true, although a number of Delegates have held up their hands in holy horror and virtuous indignation at the base insinuation that such things could be. They are positively asserted to be true, and tales are unfolded in this connection which would raise the hair on the scalp of the honest and unsuspecting voter. Among the bills passed for which the penitent asserted that money was freely used, was that authorizing the St. Louis Bridge Company and the Tunnel Railroad of St. Louis, lessees of the Union Railway and Transit Company, sometimes called the Terminal Railroad Company, to lay tracks across certain streets and alleys. This ordinance is called an ordinance supplementary to ordinance No. 11,345, granting the above mentioned franchises. It ordains that the district within which the Bridge and Tunnel Company are ruthorized to lay tracks is enlarged so as to embrace the district bounded by the east line of Ulrici street, south line of Clark avenue, east line of Tayon avenue, and by the property and tracks of the companies on the south. It is provided that all the property within the above-mentioned district, on the consent of the owners in writing, shall be acquired within one year from the passage of the ordinance. The bill was introduced at a special session of the House of Delegates, held July 14th, 1882, by Mr. E. C. Slevin, and was read for the first time. The bill was brought up again July 21. A motion of Mr. Sommerville to refer it to a special committee of five was lost, and it was referred to the Committee on Railroads. A remonstrance against its passage was presented by William Taylor et al., owners of property in the district described. In the absence of Messrs. Donk and Thoman, of that committee, Messrs. Gundlach and Sommerville were appointed to take their places. July 25 the Committee on Railroads reported the ordinance with a recommendation that it be rejected, which report was adopted, but at the same meeting moved to reconsider the vote, and the motion was carried by the following votes: Ayes—Barbee, Gundlach, Hickman, Hoffman, Hussmann, Meier, O'Neill, Rutledge, Stern, Walbridge, Weisenburger and Zelle. Noes Alt, Bouchein, Dunn, O'Brien, Slevin and Wolfinger. The bill was then re committed to the Committee on Railroads. Mr. Hussmann was appointed to take Mr. Meier's place on the committee. At a meeting held August 4th, Messrs. S. J. Sommerville, P. Gundlach, F. Hussman, Jr., and J. H. Wolfinger, of the Committee on Railroads submitted a report recommending the passage of the ordinance with unimportant amendments, and a report against its passage was submitted by Mr. Slevin. The majority report was adopted, Messrs. Dunn and Slevin only voting against it. At the third reading the bill failed to secure the necessary majority, but a motion by Mr. Sommerville to reconsider was carried, and on its final passage the bill was adopted by the following vote: Ayes—Alt, Aston, Barber, Gundlach, Hickman, Hoffman, Hussmann, Kaiser, O'Brien, Rutledge, Sommerville, Stern, Walbridge, Weisenburger, Wolfinger, Zelle and Speaker Marriott. Noes—Amelung, Bouchein, Dunn and Slevin.

In the Council the ordinance was adopted, Messrs. Kehr, Larimore, Rowse, Samuels, Scudder, Zelle and the President. Mr. Parker, voting aye; Messrs. McGrath and Vastine nay; Messrs. Tansey, Ziegenhein, De Menil and S. Parker were absent. The history of the passage of the bill through the Council and House of Delegates has been given fully.

A POST-DISPATCH reporter, in endeavoring to get the bottom facts concerning these matters, discovered records of which are given simply for what they are worth, and without any assertion that they bear directly on the subject in hand. It should be remembered, in connection with the dates of the transactions, that the agitation of the matter of the bill was begun by the railway company early in the spring of 1882. The books in the Recorder's office contain the following records:

February 14, 1882, Joseph Dormitzer purchased of Leceister Babcock and W. F. Godfrey 75x115 feet of property, on the corner of Spruce and Ulrici streets, for $7,250.

February 15, 1882, Joseph Dormitzer conveyed to H. D. Wood the same property for $7,250.

June 17, 1882, H. D. Wood and wife conveyed to the Terminal Railway Company the same property, for the consideration of $16,000. The profits on this transaction apparently accruing to H. D. Wood amount to $8,750.

The record again shows that February 3, 1882, Joseph Dormitzer purchased of Thomas McGrade 100x115 feet of property situated on the corner of Poplar and Ulrici streets for $9,000.

February 7, 1882, Joseph Dormitzer conveyed the same property to H. D. Wood for $9,000.

June 12, 1882, H. D. Wood and wife conveyed the same property to the Terminal Railway Company for $13,000. In this transaction the profit in three months' time amounted to $4,000.

February 16, 1882, H. D. Wood purchased of Jacob H. Painter a lot on Ridgeley street for $1,200.

June 12, 1882, H. D. Wood and wife conveyed to the Terminal Railway Company the same property for $2,250, this last transfer representing $1,050 of profit.

The whole time of these transactions does not cover more than four months, just at the time that the ordinance of the Railway Company was in course of passage through the Council and House of Delegates, and the total amount of profit on them in the final transfers to the Terminal Railroad Company amounts to

THE SUM OF $13,800.

It will be noticed, too, that in the transfers from Dormitzer to Wood no profit whatever is represented, the only profit made at all being made out of the Terminal Railway Company, and that is so enormous as in one case to amount to more than the original cost of the property; in other words, the property was sold to the company three months after its purchase, that purchase being made at a time when the railway managers would be most likely to know the value it would gain by the passage of the bill, for a thousand dollars more than double the original cost. In the other two instances also the profits were enormous. Joseph Dormitzer, the original purchaser of the first two sales, which represent an aggregate profit of $12,750, is a clerk in the real estate office of Cavender & Rowse, and is a nephew of Mr. Taussig, Superintendent of the Terminal Railway Company. H. D. Woods, the middleman in the transaction, is the well-known lawyer. Edward S. Rowse, in whose office young Dormitzer has his desk, was a member of the Council at the time the ordinance of the Terminal Railway Company was passed and was known as the strongest friend of the bill and hardest worker and electioneerer for its passage.

MR. TAYLOR TALKS.

The above facts are matters of record, and are given without comment. At the time this ordinance was on its passage a remonstrance against it was presented by a number of the property-owners in the district turned over to the tender mercies of the Union Railway and Transit Company. Among the chief of those who have fought the matter out with the company, and who is now defending his rights before the courts, is Wm. Taylor, the stone and furnace dealer at 1100 Olive street. Mr. Taylor owns a house and lot on Randolph street, and he says that, although he offered to part with his property at reasonable price, the company attempted to bulldoze him into selling at a great sacrifice. Mr. Taylor said that a poor devil stood very little show of getting justice among the ignoramuses of the House of Delegates and declared that, although he could not say he had ever seen any money change hands, that he was morally certain that some valuable considerations played an important part in this particular piece of legislation. Any one could tell that, he said, from the action of the members. The property-owners succeeded in defeating the bill at first, but when the matter was brought up for consideration again a number of men who had promised to stand by the property-owners were the hardest workers on the other side. He said that these members, instead of acting as impartial judges of conflicting claims of citizens, electioneered and bulldozed for the bill as if they were personally interested in it and their own subsistence depended on it. Mr. Taylor was willing to mention the names of men in the Council who he would assert were influenced by valuable considerations to vote straight. He also said that the members of both Council and House attempted to make the property-owners take less than the real value of their property—a matter with which they had nothing whatever to do. Mr. Taylor is indignant and firm in his belief that there was an immense amount of crookedness in the railroading of this measure through the Assembly, and declares that he he will insist on a thorough investigation of the whole matter, which, he says, is nothing more than what the facts in the case demand.

SPORTING SUNDRIES.

Schaefer Wins the Chicago Tournament—Base Ball and Racing Gossip.

The final game of the balk-line tournament was played last night between Jacob Schaefer and Maurice Vignaux. The interest displayed in the contest was intense, it being the first time the two experts had ever met at the table. The hall at Chicago was packed and hundreds of people were turned from the door. Vignaux's play was marked by nervousness almost throughout the game, although he played slowly and studiously while his opponent was hasty and almost careless. At the twentieth inning the score stood, Schaefer 492; Vignaux 509. In the next inning the American champaion by a series of brilliant shots of every description amassed a total of 108, thus completing his 600 points. Schaefer was seized by several people standing near the table and placed upon their shoulders, but he shook himself loose and grasped Vignaux by the hand. Schaefer's highest run was 220 and Vignaux's 139. The running average was 28 12-21.

The twentieth game of the tournament was played between Daly and Dion yesterday afternoon, and was won by the former by a score of 600 to 540. Daly's highest run was 85, and Dion's 101.

The schedule of the tournament is as follows: Schaefer won 6, lost 0; Vignaux won 5, lost 1. Daly won 4, lost 2; Sexton won 3, lost 3; Morris won 2, lost 4; Dion won 1, lost 5, and Wallace won 0, lost 6. The prizes will be distributed at the Palmer House, Chicago, to-night.

Schaefer and Vignaux play a 1,500-point game at French caroms, straight rail, in this city next Friday evening. A second game will probably be played after their return from Cincinnati, where they go after their game Friday night. The games will be played at Masonic Hall.

The races at New Orleans yesterday resulted as follows: First race for 2-year-olds, 5 furlongs, Lloyd Daly, first; Granite, second; Melikoff, third. Time, 1:07¾.

Heat race, mile and one sixteenth, Manitou won in two straight heats. Time, 1:55½, 1:57.

Howard Cup, 2¼ miles. Duke Montalban, first; Apollo, second; Blazes, third. Time, 4:10.

One mile, for 3-year-olds, Centennial, first; Joe S, second; Monticello, third. Time, 1:58.

In this afternoon's game with the Springfields Manager Sullivan will pitch and Tom Sullivan catch for the Browns. The Springfields will present the following team: Colgan, catch; Sullivan, pitch; Gunning, Hengle and Jones on bases; Manning, short-stop, and Householder, Stapleton and Baldwin in the field. The game begins at 3 p. m.

The Springfields will present the same men in Sunday's game, while the St. Louis men will play in their regular positions. Dolan and Mullane will be the battery.

FROM THE JAWS OF DEATH.

A St. Louisan Whose Life Was Despaired of Furnished With a New Lease of Life—People Made Beautiful by Having Their Eyes Straightened.

Mr. Thomas Briveau, of 1716 North Ninth street, was affected with chronic catarrh for many years. So bad was the case that the physician thought that only a change of climate would furnish him relief, and for that reason Mr. Briveau went to Colorado, and while there visited Mountain Springs. He remained there eighteen months and improved somewhat, but he still suffered from shortness of breath. Returning here, the disease settled on his lungs and finally produced an abscess in the left lung, which rapidly reduced him to nearly a skeleton, with no appetite, and he became so weak that he could only dress himself with great difficulty. He concluded that he had consumption, and gave up all hopes of recovery. He finally put himself under Dr. Hartman's treatment, and to his surprise has much improved and has every hope of a speedy recovery. The abscess is entirely healed, his appetite is good, he has scarcely any cough, is much stronger, and his cure is a certainty.

Miss Kate Cowden, 3142 Easton avenue, was a victim of cross-eyes. One eye was turned in towards the nose, which greatly spoiled her good looks. The eye was straightened in less than a minute by Dr. Hartman, without giving her any pain. The improvement in Miss Cowden's looks is simply wonderful.

Mr. Joseph Newner, 2627 Buel street, whose eyes were very much crossed, called on Dr. Hartman, and in a minute they were straight, improving his appearance greatly.

Mrs. Emma Birkicht's, 911 Autumn street, eyes were turned outward. Dr. Hartman, in less than half a minute, brought them back to their natural positions. The improvement added much to her already fine appearance,

Miss Augusta Spellmeyer, 1715 South Ninth street, had extremely crossed eyes. Less than a minute was required by Dr. Hartman to put her in possession of an enviable pretty face.

IMPORTED waters, which require an extra dose of salt "to preserve the cork," or a salted cork "to preserve the water," must be inferior to the pure and highly sparkling waters of Enno Sander, which keep any length of time without such peculiar treatment.

Committed to Jail.

Essie Davis and Albert Wing were transferred to the Jail on a warrant this afternoon. She is charged with being an accessory before the fact, and he with murder in the first degree. The warrant was issued on application of Mr. Frank X. Brown, the Coroner's clerk, in the absence of Coroner Nidelet, who is attending the funeral of his sister, Mrs. Fred Von Phul.

An Instantaneous Light.

From the Boston Transcript Dec 20.

Such in a word is the unique apparatus on exhibition at the rooms of the Portable Electric Light Co., 22 Water street, Boston. It occupies the space of only five inches and weighs but five pounds and can be carried with ease. The light, or more properly lighter, requires no extra power, wires or connections, and is so constructed that any part can be replaced at a small cost. The chemicals are placed in a glass retort; a carbon and zinc apparatus, with a spiral platinum attachment, is then adjusted so as to form a battery, and the light is ready. The pressure on a little knob produces an electric current by which the spiral of platinum is heated to incandescence. The Portable Electric Light Company was recently incorporated, with a capital of $100,000, under the laws of Massachusetts. The usefulness of the apparatus and the low price ($5) will no doubt result in its general adoption. Some of the prominent business men of the State are identified with this enterprise. In addition to its use as a lighter the apparatus can also be used in connection with a burglar-alarm and galvanic battery.

IN THE AIR.

Some New Discoveries About the Pleasant but Dangerous Springtime.

There is something very pleasant about Spring, but there is also something particularly dangerous. In order that the frost may be set free, latent heat must be absorbed, and this, taken from the atmosphere, leaves a chill far more trying to the health than the cold of fall or winter. Not only this, but the heat of the sun dries up the putrefying vegetation that the winter has accumulated and fills the air with malaria. Spring fevers are very common and they are a very dangerous affliction. They arise from the enervated condition of the body, from the malarial influences of the atmosphere, and from the general changes of the season. They show themselves in innumerable forms, but their source can be traced to some one of the above causes. The indications of their approach are a thirst for acids; yellow complexion; a weak circulation of the blood; unnatural condition of the skin; mysterious aching of the bones; a feeling of emptiness in the head; emaciation, with woe-begone expression of the face; palpitation and irregularity of the heart; deficient or unnatural appetite, flatulence and constipation, cold surface, with a high temperature of the body; chills and fever; chronic bronchitis, spasmodic asthma and catarrh of the throat; a sensation of numbness of one side of the body with a pressure on the opposite side of the head; a constant sense of weariness with fluttering of the stomach, sinking sensations and dizziness. Any of these physical conditions must be treated promptly and thoroughly. The vitality must be restored—the system strengthened, for if they do not at once produce serious diseases they are likely to lay the foundation of constitutional disorders.

Dr. Younge, in his work on "Malaria and its Effects," says: "When the poison of malaria exists in the human body in a hidden form, it will excite and complicate any disease to which the body may be disposed. It becomes a great danger when complicated with local affections of the lungs, heart, liver and kidneys." The liver should pass out 2½ pounds of bile daily. The kidneys also relieve the system of a proportionate amount of poison.

There is scarcely a town in the country where malaria is not a leading cause of disease. In hot, moist climates it produces yellow fever; in temperate zones intermittent and typhoid fevers. During the late war there were 1,500,000 cases of malarial fever in the army, a large proportion of which proved fatal or shattered the constitution. Malaria, whatever it is, paralyzes the liver and kidneys. These organs become filled with blood, producing enlarged liver, and chronic albuminuria, or Bright's disease of the kidneys, by interrupting the circulation of the blood. If the blood does not properly circulate, then it is not cleansed, and impure blood means decay and death. It has for years been a study with the most discerning physicians and scientists how best to counteract these destructive tendencies, or check them when once they have begun, but it has been found to be a most difficult task. Remedies which, under other circumstances, have seemed to operate finely, became utterly inefficient when applied to these serious disorders. A few years, since, however, a remedy was found to be specially adapted to these troubles, and it has since acquired a world-wide reputation as an antidote for miasmatic poisons. This remedy is Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure. It is not an experimental compound, but its merits have been proven by the severest of tests. Its unusual value is shown by its enormous sale and by the many dangerous and useless imitations which have been made of it. As a complete blood purifier and as a spring tonic it is really wonderful in its powers, and any one who is conscious of any of the symptoms above enumerated cannot safely be without it.

What malaria really is has been a vexed question. Many theories have been advanced, one of which, brought forward by Dr. Salisbury, of Cleveland, is, that it is caused by the emanations of a certain low species of plant, called Pæmeliæ. To these have been applied the term of "earth miasm" and "ague plants," and as these plants are invariably found in malarious districts, there would seem to be a foundation for this assertion. We know certainly that cryptogamic productions eliminated by the kidneys have caused malarial as well as intermittent fevers, and also that these ague plants are found in the urine of afflicted persons. It is thus clearly proven that the kidneys are all-important factors in malaria. The period of incubation is indefinite, often only a few days or weeks being required, but the disease may not assert itself for several months, and even years may elapse before the morbid effects are manifested. The above theory as to its cause is indorsed by Dr. C. Anderson, of Cincinnati, who also says: "I have used Warner's Safe Cure in the most obstinate cases, and have found that it worked admirably indeed. I have tried it too often not to be convinced of its efficiency." All the foregoing truths show the importance of watching the health at this particular season of the year. To avoid the possibility of any fever, to thoroughly purify the blood and to put the system in a condition to perform the duties and enjoy the pleasures of life, is a great privilege. That this can be done by using Warner's Safe Cure, which is sold by all dealers, the experience of thousands has proven beyond doubt, and it is daily being verified by thousands more.

When disease is fastened upon the body; when pain becomes the only prospect in life; when hope departs and despair begins, anything that can furnish relief is gladly welcomed. But how much better it would be to counteract these evil tendencies before they have become strong—how much easier to prevent them altogether by a proper use of a remedy that has proven its worth by its unfailing powers. Any one who pauses and carefully reflects will, we believe, see the truth of these conclusions and be governed thereby.

MERIT AND ENTERPRISE ACKNOWLEDGED!

What the New York Graphic, of March [illegible] Has to Say of a Leading St. Louis Retail Clothing House.

On the northeast corner of Fifth and Pine streets stands the grand and solid business structure of F. W. Humphrey & Co. It is the most popular, best managed and withal the most magnificent mercantile establishment devoted to the retail clothing trade in the Western country. Established in 1873, when the retail clothing business in St. Louis was in rather a crude state and in not over-vigilant hands, this wide-awake firm went to work with an earnestness, zeal and ardor that astonished the retail trade in the Mound City.

Mr. F. W. Humphrey—always the head and front of the firm—was of the opinion that there was a market in the "boundless West" for the finest grades of clothing—equal to any retailed in the East. In short, he firmly believed that a superior quality of ready-made clothing would meet with ready sale even among the better class of the community, providing the clothing was good fitting.

Mr. Humphrey soon produced a quality of workmanship, a degree of elegance and a perfection of fit fully equal to the best custom work of the day, and built up for the firm not only a highly profitable business, but a reputation for integrity and honorable dealing second to no house in the United States.

They occupy to-day six times the space they did in 1873, and owing to their large order trade in the South and West they will this spring devote more time and care in sending cut samples and printed instructions for self-measurement.

Besides men's, boys' and children's fine clothing this firm deal very largely in gents' furnishing goods. Everything novel, staple or fashionable appertaining to this part of a gentleman's wardrobe can always be found in their establishment.

F. W. Humphrey & Co. received (as they usually have each year) the first premium of the Fair Association for the best clothing for men and boys and the best display of clothing and furnishing goods.

Mr. Humphrey was born in Boston, and does not look to be much more than thirty years of age. He commenced his business career, we believe, as an employe in one of the large wholesale clothing houses of his native city, that he might start right. He is a gentleman of elegant manners, the most exquisite taste, and has the reputation—in the trade—of thoroughly understanding his business. Certain it is, however, that no man has done more to elevate the retail clothing business to its present important rank among trades than F. W. Humphrey.

SACKETT'S NOT AFRAID.

The Manager of the Fifth Street Museum Waking Up His Rivals.

Eastern Men Complain That He is Monopolizing the Curiosities and Gets the Very Best in the Market.

Manager J. E. Sackett, of the New Dime Museum, at 13 South Fifth street, seems to be making it lively for the other gentlemen interested in this branch of amusements. He has so far secured the best curiosities and given the finest ten-cent shows ever presented in the West. He is enterprising, understands what the public wants and pays generously for all the attractions that come to his house. His success has caused a great awakening among museum managers in this section, and even as far as New York. Three managers from the East are here for the avowed purpose, it is declared, of "downing" Mr. Sackett. They complain, it seems, that he pays such big salaries and gives engagements for such long terms over his circuit, that he has the monopoly of the best curiosities and hence all the other museums are shut out. What the result of their visit will be is not known, but it is not probable or at all possible that the combination against Manager Sackett will do him any harm or interfere in the slightest with his success. He has a fine, extensive and respectable museum on Fifth street, and, having the confidence of the public and the choice of the best curiosities and theatrical attractions, his house is likely to remain popular for all time. Kohl, of Kohl & Meddleton, Chicago, said to Cassenovia, the illusionist, "I want to freeze that fellow Sackett out in St. Louis and I'm going to do it." "Well," said Cassenovia, "It's a great deal colder in Chicago than it is in St. Louis, and I think you'll find you've tackled a big job. Sackett is giving the people more for their money down there than they ever got before, and he is a great favorite with them." That settled Kohl. He hasn't tried to do anything in the freezing line yet. A POST-DISPATCH reporter visited Manager Sackett this morning and asked if he meant to yield to the demands of the visiting managers in regard to hiring curiosities.

"You can say for me," said Mr. Sackett, "that I mean to get the best there is in the market. I will pay curiosities one-third more salary than they can get from any other museum manager in the country, and I will guarantee to keep them in employment for just as long as they want to stay. I am attending to my business in my own way, and do not propose to allow any manager, no matter where he comes from, to tell me what I shall do. These chaps know that I stand well with all the curiosities in the country, and that I can have anything I want. Well, that's what I mean to do. I mean to have none but the very best curiosities in my museum at all times, and shall try to keep the public pleased with the tone and style of my shows."

"Just look here," said the manager; "here is my bill for next week: Mme Laselle, the Mermaid Queen, daughter of the light-house keeper at Folkstein, off the Irish coast, who has saved many lives and who performs the most wonderful feats under water; Capt. Beach, the man-fish, who eats, drinks and smokes under water. These two wonderful performers will give exhibitions in a monster glass tank of clear water, and if they do not create a sensation I am greatly mistaken. Then we are to have a model miniature of St. Patrick's Cathedral, New York City, the finest piece of architecture in America, which cost $5,000,000; also a model of a summer villa. These two mechanical exhibitions will show over 500 moving figures and introduce the elevated railroad and the proposed electric railway, both in motion. We are also to have Maria Nall, the North Carolina midget; little Dot Pullman, who gives an extraordinary performance on the revolving globes; Len Stillets, the musical clown; the Blitzes in refined magic; Mr. and Mrs. Alward, whose mind-reading is the most astonishing thing of the century. There are a dozen other attractions I needn't name. How does that sound for a man they are trying to freeze out? Let them go ahead. When the Sheriff's red flag will be hanging astride their establishment Sackett's Dime Museum, 13 South Fifth street, will be a prosperous and flourishing institution, and don't you forget it."

The Sweet Cherubs.

From the Centralia Democrat.

We are wound up with a "Parody on the House that Jack Built." We are rolled into a cocoon and are pretty silky, thank you. Our onion patch is ouskerspiel and we have mulberry trees on the brain. Our sweet little cherubs are vociferously crowing as they intently gaze upon the brilliant pictures, while their mamma warbles the musical rhyme. If you would be joyful, send a three-cent stamp to the Corticelli Silk Company, St. Louis, and procure a copy. A copy of the revised and improved edition of "A Parody on the House that Jack Built" can be procured by inclosing a three-cent stamp to the Corticelli Silk Company, St. Louis.

THE ASSEMBLY

Convenes in Special Session This Afternoon—Message of the Mayor.

The Municipal Assembly met in their respective chambers in the City Hall at 3 o'clock this afternoon, in obedience to the proclamation of the Mayor. After roll call the clerks of each Chamber read the following message from Mayor Ewing:

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT
MAYOR'S OFFICE,
ST. LOUIS, April 7, 1883.

To the Municipal Assembly of the City of St. Louis:

GENTLEMEN—The City Charter provides that there shall be one session of the Assembly held annually, beginning on the first Tuesday of April. It also provides that in every second year the entire House of Delegates and part of the membership of the Council shall be elected on the day mentioned.

It is obviously impossible that the regular session shall begin at the time specified in the election year; and to meet this contingency resort is necessarily had to the Charter provision authorizing the Mayor to call special sessions of the Assembly.

Accordingly, this being one of the years referred to, you are convened in special session, but it is not my purpose to make use of the power given me by the charter, and confine your action to such matters as I may, hereafter, from time to time, submit to you.

I recognize the fact that it is owing to a plain omission in the law that the power alluded to is in my hands, and I propose to exercise it at once in favor of all legislation within your jurisdiction, and thus convert the special session into what will practically be a general session of the Assembly.

In order to comply with the Charter provision governing the matter, I state that you are convened in special session for the purpose of legislating on any subject embraced or specified in sections 1 and 4 of article 1; sections 1 to 22 of article 2; sections 26 to 35 of article 3; sections 1 to 50 of article 4; sections 1 to 34 of article 5; sections 1 to 28 of article 6; sections 1 to 12 of article 7; sections 1 to 6 of article 8; sections 1 to 10 of article 9; sections 1 to article 10; sections 1 to 5 of article 11; sections 1 to 14 of article 12; sections 1 to 3 of article 15, and sections 1 to 20 of article 16 of the Charter of the city of St. Louis.

In due time the annual message and accompanying documents will be submitted for your consideration. Respectfully,

WM. L. EWING, Mayor.

Unusual Nerve.

It requires nerve to experiment at an enormous cost when the result is very indefinite and it is not to be expected of a company that for nearly half a century has been noted for unusual conservatism. Yet it is by such experimenting and by such a company that Florence Knitting Silk was produced. A silk to-day so popular that the demand is such as to tax the famous Corticelli silk mills to their utmost.

Scotland.

GLASGOW, April 7.—The police have taken into custody a man named Bernard Gallagher, who is charged with causing the explosion at the gas-works here. Gallagher is an Irish-American and brother of the man of the same name arrested at Lambeth last Thursday. He was arraigned at the Police Court, when he declared he was innocent of the charge laid against him and that he only left the United States on the 8th of last February. He was remanded to prison for eight days.

Ireland.

TRALEE, April 7.—The police searched seven houses here occupied by persons against whom information has been lodged. They arrested a man named Kelly, formerly a Land League organizer, and another man who had in his possession firearms and compromising papers.

PRISONERS REMOVED.

LONDON, April 7.—Norman, Gallagher, Wilson and Dalton have been removed from the Jail at Clerkenwell to the prison at Millbank. The transfer was made under a strong escort of policemen, as it was feared an attempt would be made to liberate the prisoners.

BAIL REFUSED.

LIVERPOOL, April 7.—Dorsey and Flanigan were committed for trial at the Assizes, bail being refused. The prisoners reserved their defense.

ABOUT TOWN.

OFFICER DUNNIGAN will return from Chicago to-night, bringing with him Sanders, the murderer of Officer Printz.

THE Easter Festival for the benefit of St. Bridget's Parish will take place on the evenings of April 10, 11 and 12.

DR. LEWIS, of St. John's Church, is still out of the city. Dr. Wilson, the presiding elder, will occupy his pulpit to-morrow.

THE ladies of the Fanny Parnell Land League will attend the Rev. P. J. Gleason's festival in a body at St. Louis Turner Hall on April 11.

THE Pensioners' Benevolent Union will hold its regular monthly session at the hall, No. 18 North Fourth street, to-morrow, Sunday, at 2 p. m.

A MUSICAL and literary entertainment was given by the Cote Brilliante Temple of H. & T. last evening at their hall, corner of Taylor and Easton avenues.

THE O. P. C. Club gave a full dress ball on Friday evening at the residence of Mr. Sylvester Watts, at Webster Groves. The event passed off very pleasantly.

THE Ladies' Aid Society, of St. John's Church, will give an Old Folks' concert Tuesday evening April 10, at 8 o'clock p. m., in connection with the regular sociable.

A VOCAL, instrumental and athletic entertainment will be given by the Atlantic Athletic Club at Union Capitol Hall, Ninth street and Allen avenue, Saturday evening, April 14.

A MEETING of the St. Vincent de Paul Society will be held at Sodality Hall, Ninth and Christy avenue, to-morrow (Sunday) evening. Bishop Ryan will preside and address the meeting.

A LECTURE by Father Murphy, S. J., from Ireland, will be given in aid of the charities of the Convent of Mercy, Morgan and Twenty-third streets, at the Mercantile Library Hall, Sunday evening, May 6, 1883.

A TEN-YEAR-OLD colored girl named Betsy Harris, was sent to the House of Refuge by Mayor Ewing this morning. She is without friends and for some time past has been exposed to the very worst influences.

REV. DR. BOYD will begin a course of four free lectures on "The Influence of Christianity in Moral Reforms," at the Second Baptist Church, to-morrow evening. The opening subject will be "The Position of Woman." The exercises begin at 7:45 p. m., and the public are invited.

PROF. ETIENNE LAMBERT, the well-known French scholar and teacher, will lecture at Pickwick Hall on Wednesday, April 11, at 3 p. m. His subject will be the teaching of the French language, and he will explain his new and improved method, by which the language can be acquired in the easiest and most rapid manner.

E. O. STANARD & Co.'s "Royal Patent" flour has taken the first premium at the St. Louis Fair the past five years.

Warrants Asked For.

To-day the Coroner applied to the Assistant Prosecuting Attorney for a warrant against Albert Wing and Essie Davis, who were implicated in the killing of Joe Glenn, at No. 1125 Pine street. The girl has been held four days without any charge, which would not stand the strain of a habeas corpus if she had friends to force the issue.

EAST ST. LOUIS.

Burglars completely gutted Henry Hilliard's news-stand at Collinsville last night.

The monthly reception of the Y. M. C. A. has been postponed until next Wednesday.

George Chartrand, a wealthy farmer, living two miles in the country, had a leg broken yesterday by a fractious horse.

Richard Burns, aged nine, was run over and killed by a Vandalia freight train at the Venice crossing last night, while attempting to steal a ride.

Very little interest is taken in the election of the School Board to-day. Maurice Bunyan, Geo. Brackett, A Meints, W. A. Dell, M. Cooney and J. Vonahan are the candidates.

Wm. Pierce, colored, aged 15, fell from an I. & St. L. freight train, which he was attempting to board, last evening. Both of his legs were horribly mangled, and he survived amputation of the limbs but a few hours.

The Markets.

FORENOON SESSION.

A serious complaint has come from Chicago regarding the condition of some of the St. Louis corn shipped there. The Culver Commission Company, of this city, which shipped this corn, had it inspected by the regular inspectors, who passed it as No. 2 corn. Yesterday 13 cars of this corn arrived in Chicago and was inspected, 5 grading No. 2, 1 new mixed and 7 or over half going rejected. The reason these 7 inspected rejected was that they were "very dirty." Culver & Co., the Chicago firm who received the corn, besides having Chicago inspectors, also sent their own men to examine it, they also concurring in the decision of the official inspectors. Samples of the corn were sent back to St. Louis by Culver & Co. This corn was only on the way thirty-six hours and could hardly have gathered enough dirt in the trip to depreciate the grade as much as to make it rejected in Chicago. It is possible the matter may be brought before the Exchange directors. The elevator from which this corn came of course is relieved from all damage, as the inspector who passed it relieved the elevator from all blame.——John C. Harris, of Chicago, under date of April 4, issues a circular on the out-turn of the wheat crop in the Southern latitude, Peru, Chili, the Argentine Confederation, Australia and New Zealand, and also of the maturing crop in East India and Persia, the growing crop in Egypt and Europe, as well as our own winter wheat crop in all the Southern States; also the growing crop in California and Oregon and the Northern States. He is firmly convinced that present prices cannot be maintained for wheat or corn based upon an export demand for Europe. On the question of what proportion of wheat and flour afloat, destined to Great Britain, was shipped from the Atlantic States, Portland to New Orleans, inclusive on March 15, 1883, he says that the total quantity afloat, flour reduced to wheat included, the quantity shipped from each in quarters was: Russia, 143,500; Austria and Hungary 57,500; Northern Turkey, 5,500; East India, Persia and Egypt 131,500; Australia and New Zealand, 125,000; Chili and Peru 171,500; California and Oregon, 1,617,000; the Atlantic ports 325,000; total 2,505,000, equal to 20,600,000 bushels. This shows that on the 15th of March there was about 14 per cent of the total quantity afloat shipped by our Atlantic cities. The great bulk was from California and Oregon. It takes from four to five months to make the voyage. The present freight is $7 20 per ton of 2,000 lbs San Francisco to Cork, for orders; last year ships obtained $15 60 per ton. The harvest, which occurred in the Southern latitudes during December and January, has turned out much better than was anticipated. Peru, it is estimated, will have a surplus of between 6,000,000 and 8,000,000 bu; Chili, 12,000,000 to 14,000,000 bu; the Argentine States, 10,000,000 to 11,000,000 bu; Australia and New Zealand, 10,000,000 to 12,000,000 bu, all for exportation. This makes a total of say 40,000,000 bu. The crop of East India and Persia, now being harvested, is turning out well, and there will most probably be a surplus from there of 30,000,000 to 35,000,000. The Egyptian crop is looking well. The entire European crop is looking fairly well. They do not raise any spring wheat in Europe, excepting in Denmark, extreme Northern Russia, Norway, Sweden and in Scotland. The imports of corn are now largely drawn from Southeastern Europe, Egypt and East India. The imports into London alone for the week ending March 16 were 680,000 bushels, and only 102,000 bushels of this was from the United States. From the above facts which I have given you, you will see it places the British merchants in the position of salesmen for our exporters. The great reason why the British merchants are enabled to know so well what each country on the globe has for sale, is that they own and control fully eighty per cent of the Eastern merchantable marine, both sail and steam, on the globe, and all countries have to obtain their marine tonnage from them. The great reason why we are obtaining such very cheap freights on grain from New York to British ports is that the present stocks of wheat, flour and corn are so large in all the British importing cities, take, for example, London, Liverpool, Glasgow, Hull and the Irish ports, that it makes their merchants perfectly indifferent about buying. They are simply letting foreign merchants ship to them for sale on commission."——Chicago and St. Louis receivers say that their country advices indicate a falling off in shipments of corn by the country next week.

The week wound up in the grain market with a grand crash all round, the bear element on top, and the bulls clear out of sight. The general tenor of Liverpool advices were more favorable, but it was probably nothing but the reflection from yesterday's early American markets. A better tone was reported in wheat and corn, with a fair consumptive demand for latter. All the markets of this country started in weak and off in value. The weather was growing warmer in the north and west, and clearing besides, as it was here. All advices from leading speculative centers indicated great weakness and bearish feeling. The shorts, flushed with past victories, were holding out stubbornly and still selling freely, while the longs seemed utterly discouraged and were throwing what long stuff they held. Even oats, which was supposed to be manipulated in New York and Chicago, were breaking rapidly in price and being sold heavily. In Chicago the parties who bought yesterday and thus helped that market up sold out the first thing to-day. The greatest weakness was seen after 12 o'clock, when both Chicago and New York were breaking badly, and private advices indicated an almost panicky state of affairs in New York. The local crowd of shorts hammered along merrily, and meeting but little resistance in the way of purchasers sent prices downward rapidly. There were several of the heavy-weights who were conspicuous in their sales and offers to sell large lots. There was no recovery to speak off from the lowest points, and the close was at declines of ¾@1½c for wheat, ¾@⅞c for corn and 1¾@2c for oats from yesterday's close. Oats dropped with a very dull thud on the noon call, so many and anxious were the sellers, and never held up its head subsequently. Cash wheat was lower and very quiet, No. 2 red selling to shorts, but other demand very light and buyers indifferent. No. 2 mixed corn sold freely for shipment at lower rates, and new mixed and rejected also declined, with small trading, but white-mixed was firm and in milling demand, No. 2 advancing a fraction. Oats declined considerably, though meeting a fair feeding demand and some order and speculative inquiry.

Wheat—Receipts 1,295 sks, 17,400 bu. No. 2 red $1 07⅛@1 07 regular, but not worth over $1 06¾ later; April $1 06⅞ b.; May $1 08¾ to $1 07½, closing at $1 07⅝; June $1 09¾@⅞ to $1 09¼; July $1 05⅞ to $1 05¼, closing at $1 05⅜; August $1 04 to $1 04⅛; year $1 03⅛ to $1 02, closing at $1 02⅜. No. 2 red $1 02⅜ b. for St. L.; No. 4 98 asked for St. L.; rejected —. No. 2 Mediterranean $1 10 bid E. side and for C. No. 3 Mediterranean —.

Corn—Receipts 388 sks., 29,150 bu. No. 2 mixed 47@46¾ regular, closing nominal at 46½; April 47¼ to 46⅞, closing at 46½ bid; May 48⅞ to 48⅛, closing at 48¼; June 51 to 50⅜@½; July 53⅛ to 52½; year 41¼, closing at 40 bid; No. 2 white-mixed 49½@49¾ this side and 50 bid for more; rejected do 46 bid regular, 48 this side; new do 48 in A., 48½@49 this side; new-mixed 45 regular; rejected 44 in St. L.; no grade —.

Oats—Receipts 132 sks, 9,000 bu. No. 2 41⅝ in E., 41¾ in A. and U., 42 in St. L.; April 41⅛ bid; May 43⅜ to 41⅞; June 41¼ bid; July 39 to 38⅛; rejected 41 in St. L.

Rye—Receipts — sks, — bu. A firm market, but still quiet, owing to the small supply. Grade No. 2 sold at 55 E. side, but offered regular at 53½ and unsold, for rejected 51¼ was bid.

Barley—Receipts —sks, 9,000 bu. Very quiet, as there was little demand. We quote: Rejected at 40@45; No. 3 50@55; prime to strictly prime 56@60; choice 62½@67½; fancy 70@75; Canada $1@1 05.

Flour—Receipts 6,483 brls. But little trading indulged in; market generally lifeless, with a weak feeling, and, although not quotably lower on high grades, was easier and weak on low, concessions being generally required in order to make sales in this description. We quote: Extra fancy $5 25@5 45; fancy $5 15@5 25; choice $5 00@5 10; family $4 50@4 60; xxx $3 90@4 00; xx $3 40@3 50; x $3 00@3 10; superfine $2 85@2 90; fine $2 60@2 70; favorite brands 25c higher; patents $5 75@6 25.

Cornmeal—Unchanged at $2 50@2 60, according to size of order; grits, pearl meal and hominy at $3 50@3 75.

Rye Flour—Quiet and unchanged at $3 85@4.

Millfeed—Market bare of bran and very firm. For sacked at city mill 72 was bid and refused; this side sacked bran sold at 75 and ships at 79@82½; bulk bran at 62¼ E. side, 62 at country points.

Hay—Receipts 105 tons. A more confident feeling was manifest, but this was mainly on the part of sellers, who based it upon small receipts to-day, a reduced supply on hand and anticipated smaller arrivals next week. The demand really showed no improvement, and prices were unchanged. This side—Prairie $7@8 for prime to strictly prime; $8 50@9 50 for choice to fancy; common to choice clover mixed $6@10; timothy $10@10 50 for prime; $11@11 50 for strictly prime; $13@14 for choice; $15@16 for fancy. East track—Mixed $6 50@11; timothy $10@13 for prime to choice; $14@15 for fancy.

Provisions—Receipts 445 lbs hams, 600 lbs meats, 1,395 lbs lard, 300 lbs grease. The usual Saturday dullness may be taken for granted whenever the last day of the week arrives. To-day was no exception, and besides that the tone was weaker and prices on bacon were off. Small sales of standard mess pork were made at $18 25 spot; April offered at $18 25, bid $18 12½; May at $18 32½; bid $18 22½; prime steam lard worth 10⅞. Nothing done in dry salt, but loose shoulders held at 7.30c, longs at 9.90, c'ribs at 10 and short clear at 10¼. Bacon short clear sold at 10.90@10.95 packed and 10.80 loose, and clear ribs at 10½ loose; packed longs quotable at 10.55, and clear ribs at 10.65. Hams 12¼@13½. Tallow 8¼ for fancy cake; 8@8½ for strictly prime in oil brls; No. 2 7¼@½; irregular pkgs 7¼@7¾; grease tallow 7@¼. Breakfast bacon 12@15½. Grease 6@7 for brown, 7@8 for yellow, 8@9 for white. Beef—Extra mess $12@16 per brl according to brand; $7 50@8 50 per half brl; dried 12½@13¼, strictly choice 16 per pound. Fresh smoked tongues $4 50@4 75 per doz. Salt—Domestic $1 25 this side $1 20 on E. side per brl. Ground alum $1 15 per sack for round lots, $1 20@1 25 in a small way.

Highwines—Unchanged and quiet at $1 14 with sales of 138 brls. Cincinnati firm at $1 13; Chicago higher $1 17; Peoria firm at $1 15.

Lead—Steady with a fair demand; four cars rejected selling at $4 15 and three hard at $4 12½. Spelter nominal at $4 40@4 35.

Grass Seeds—Very quiet; market for all descriptions almost devoid of life. Values, however, unchanged at 50@80, for German millet 35@50, for common dry timothy 35@1 55, Hungarian 65@80; clover stronger at $8@8 30, red-top 60@80. Sales: 1 car timothy $1 50, 88 sks German millet 76, 14 sks Hungarian 60, small lot clover $8 30.

Hempseed—Quiet at $1 60@1 70.

Flaxseed—In demand at $1 36; sale 100 sks at this figure.

Castor Beans—Demand rather quiet; held at $1 80.

Cotton.

The different markets for cotton on the spot were generally quiet and featureless at unchanged prices. Trading in the local market was limited to 743 bales, and was generally in small lots. The demand, however, was very good. New York was quiet, and spot business at New Orleans was almost entirely suspended, owing to heavy rains. At Liverpool there was also little done, the market being dull. Futures at New York opened quiet, and prices continued comparatively strong with a slight declining tendency up to the close, when an advance of 1 to 5 points from the opening was noted, the tone being firm and trading fair. Liverpool was quiet and lower and closed the same. At New Orleans values at the opening were 1 to 3 points off from last nights close, but after the second call showed more strength and advanced quite rapidly, closing steady at 3 to 8 points above the opening figures.

CATTLE—The few loads of stale and fresh cattle on the market this morning at the opening of business were no temptation to buyers, only a few changing hands and those in small, retail lots to scalpers and other local dealers. Trade continued in this condition up to a late hour, the prospects for any improvement being apparently very remote. It was too late in the week for Eastern and interior shippers to take hold, and retail dealers, city butchers and others had supplied themselves the day previous. Consequently no movement of any consequence was looked for during the day. Values are very weak and drooping for all descriptions, more noticeable in heavy cattle than in light steers and butchers' stuff, which, although off from the opening prices of the week, were not so markedly lower than the first named. We quote as follows:

Native steers and heifers	$4 75	@5 50
Stags and bulls	3 45	@4 50
Cows and calves	18 00	@58 00
Cornfed Texans	5 25	@5 50

HOGS—Offerings this morning were unusually large for the closing day. The feeling and the general tone was firm with a decidedly upward tendency to values, which although not quotably higher, were still very strong at the rates prevailing yesterday. The demand was slow, however, regular buyers holding off and leaving the field to scalpers and speculators, "who got in their work" while they could. Orders were not very numerous, but still they were sufficient to absorb all that was on sale, and a good trade was anticipated as soon as buyers and sellers came to an understanding. Quotations as based upon late sales yesterday and which it was thought would prevail to-day, were as follows. Light to good Yorkers $7 30@7 50; mixed to good packing $7 25@7 50; heavy shippers $7 50@7 75; medium rough hogs $7@7 20; skips and culls $6 50@6 75.

SHEEP—Market steady and values strong. Supply small and trade limited to a few retail transactions. We quote common to fancy $3 75@7 00.

The Morning Journal!

Edited by ALBERT PULITZER,

Is published in New York every day from No. 5 and 7 Spruce street (N. Y. Tribune Building).

$4.00 PER YEAR.

In four months it has already attained a circulation of nearly

50,000 PER DAY,

And is steadily growing. It will have a circulation, at its present rate of increase, of 100,000 copies per day within less than a year.

Its sparkling, breezy, good-natured tone, its brilliant portraitures of public men and its playful satire on the frauds and follies of the day make it the most vivid mirror of New York life of to-day.

Western Readers will obtain a better idea of Metropolitan life and of the queer and funny goings-on in New York from reading the MORNING JOURNAL than they could possibly do by any other means.

TWELVE PAGES.

SATURDAY, APRIL 7, 1883.

THE election return from Precinct 130 in the Twelfth Ward is certified to by the following signature: "THOMAS STEAD, his X mark." We expect to hear of THOMAS next as a Justice of the Peace.

THE Globe-Democrat is kindly paying attention to the misuse of the English language in the Republican. There be those who think that the whole paper is a misuse of the English language.

WHEN RUTHERFORD B. HAYES read in the morning's cable budget, "The Queen's knee is very weak," he remarked, "I sympathize with Her Majesty. I have been afflicted the same way myself."

THE records of the real estate transfers of the past year show that very handsome profits were made by buying just the property that the terminal railroad company wanted and selling it shortly afterwards to the company.

THE plump and pretty daughters of Richmond's substantial burghers are beginning to elope with her colored barbers. This should convince the most skeptical Massachusetts man that Virginia is thoroughly reconstructed and readjusted.

IT is announced as a novelty that Dr. CATE, the physician of Secretary FOLGER, has introduced homeopathy into the Cabinet. This is a mistake, as the strictest rules of homeopathy have been adhered to in administering civil service reform.

THE advertising columns of the morning papers tell a story of contrasts. The Globe-Democrat is plastered all over with display advertisements, while the Republican manages to eke out five lean columns by printing its old deadhead real estate cards and advertising the vacant property of the KNAPPS for rent.

WE are receiving a great many complaints from people who are obliged to travel by the Jefferson avenue and the Union Depot lines of railroad. Some of our street car companies manage to secure polite and attentive drivers and conductors, and no complaints against them are ever heard. Why can not all the companies do as well?

A THIEF who attempted to get away with the spoons and silverware of the University Club barely got away with his life, as the property of the club is now closely guarded. Some time ago a thief carried off the club dictionary, and, in consequence of the inconvenience which the club has had to suffer from that loss, the premises are as securely protected as Windsor Castle itself.

WHILE the question of the Speakership is in agitation it would be well for the friends of the Mississippi River improvement to be casting about to see which way their interest lies and where their influence can best help their cause. We may be sure the Speakership will not be settled without due consideration being given to the great industries of clothes-pins and shoe-pegs, and also the prospects of the navigation of Cheesequake Creek. When these interests are crowding to the front, it is just as well to see to it that the interests of the Mississippi River are not crowded into the background.

IT is occasionally aggravating for plain and ordinary citizens who have never distinguished themselves by being hung for murder to endure the forgiveness which is invariably extended to them from the gallows by fawning scoundrels who are about to pay the penalty for their crimes, but the Rev. HOWARD UNDERWOOD, who was successfully "worked off" at Charleston yesterday for an unusually brutal murder, has gone further and has diminished, as far as lay in his power, the natural desire of merely decent people to get to heaven, by announcing that he was immediately "going to wear the golden slippers and the long white robe, and walk up and down the streets of glory." The idea of heaven as a place in which the front seats are reserved for murderers is an idea not calculated to help the cause of religion, and the frequency with which it is insisted on under such grotesque circumstances suggests the propriety of abolishing these little bursts of oratory with which murderers are allowed to close their earthly career.

IT is hard to see how the cause of morality is helped by a law to which Mr. STANLEY appeals to recover money which he lost betting on horse-races last year. Mr. STANLEY seems to have been an ardent gambler, for he lost $840 to one firm of bookmakers at Sheepshead Bay in September, $410 in Baltimore in October, and $632 in Washington in October, and he now seeks to recover those amounts, with interest. It is doing no violence to the character of Mr. STANLEY to assume that if he had won these bets he would not now appear as a conscience-smitten Christian anxious to restore money which had been won only by violating the laws of his country. Indeed, we are quite certain that if he wins his suit he will use the money to bet with again. In this way a law which was no doubt intended by its framers to prevent gambling is made the direct auxiliary of gambling in its meanest and most dishonest form, for the gambler who pays his debts when he loses is an honest fellow in comparison with the gambler who keeps the money he wins and tries to keep the money he loses.

As a specimen of the dude in office, Attorney-General BREWSTER is making the spectators in the auditorium very sick. They are growing tired of his fantastic tricks. With a Department of Justice equipped and manned regardless of expense, he not only devotes his own time to private practice, but acts upon the idea that his official subordinates are appointed to draw sinecure salaries, while a multitude of assistant attorneys are employed and paid extravagent fees to do their work. Congressmen are employed to leave their seats and attend to cases for the Government, and for a few days' service of this kind Mr. BREWSTER has them paid sums nearly equal to their annual salaries as Congressmen. His theory seems to be that his official subordinates are entitled to be thus relieved of all duties which might interfere with their private practice as lawyers, or their æsthetic leisure as ornaments of society.

FREE BALLOTS.

A committee of the Massachusetts Senate has reported in favor of so amending the State Constitution that the payment of poll-tax shall no longer be necessary to qualify a man for voting. Some of the Republican papers of that State are therefore stoutly maintaining that Government should be participated in by those only who consciously contribute money for its support, and that the suffrage is a privilege which is more highly valued and correctly understood for being directly associated with taxation and the pecuniary support of civil institutions.

If this means that a property qualification enables electors to demand and receive larger bribes than are given to individual voters when the bribe fund has to be divided among a much greater number of voters, we must admit the truth of the proposition. But the experience of both this country and England has proved that the extension of the suffrage has rendered bribery and other corrupting influences less certain and effective in elections. Oligarchic rule is always the rule of rings, of bribery and corrupt bargaining. The six States of this Union that disfranchise all who have not paid some tax are Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Delaware, Pennsylvania, Georgia and Tennessee, and no other group of six States can show such a record of bribery, jobbery and rottenness in politics as these six, though two of them are not particularly conspicuous in that line. If it be true that a property qualification or the payment of a tax makes a voter more competent to choose wisely, or more patriotic and loyal to the public weal and less likely to vote under the prompting of sordid personal motives, then it follows that the electoral power should be apportioned among men according to the amount of tax they pay or the amount of property they own, and government should be put entirely on the joint stock basis, the millionaire casting a thousand votes for every one cast by the man who pays taxes on only $1,000.

But as this is "a government of the people, by the people and for the people," every property qualification or tax barring the people from the ballot-box is an anomaly and an obstacle to the best working of the system. Taxing each vote cast is disfranchising some men for no crime but poverty. In forcing the voter to buy the privilege of voting, it teaches him to sell his ballot, and insidiously accustoms him to aid from campaign funds, and in the end to more direct forms of bribery. We trust our lives and liberty to the verdict of twelve simple citizens, but not to the decision of the most eminent Judge or bench of Judges. We know that in this country corruption works on the bench, in Senates, in Cabinets and in caucuses, but does not attempt to sway the masses. The worst cases of mutual pillage are in the government of onr joint-stock companies, where votes are proportioned to shares held. Our political system is a government of numbers, and all our election laws should encourage and stimulate the fullest, freest and most independent exercise of the right to vote.

THE SPEAKERSHIP.

In the month since the adjournment of the late Congress the chief occupation in politics has been the easy and harmless one of guessing at the Speakership of the present Congress. The country is to be congratulated on the abundant supply of talent it has available for that high office, and the Democratic party can proudly claim that if it had six Speakerships to fill it could fill them all. Unfortunately, there is only one Speakership, and the race is one in which many contend but only one gains the prize. While the friends of each candidate are prepared to show that he is to be the fortunate winner, the total of the estimates proves that the friends of all but one are mistaken.

Mr. SPRINGER, of Illinois, is confident that his services entitle him to that high recognition; Mr. MORRISON, also of Illinois, says nothing, as is his custom, but his friends make good his claims with very positive assertion; Mr. COX, of New York, is tired of being looked on as merely the humorist of the House: Mr. BLACKBURN, of Kentucky, practices with the gavel before the mirror in his old Kentucky home; Mr. CARLISLE, also of Kentucky, is conceded to be an able parliamentarian and a brilliant presiding officer; but all of these are more or less emphatic freee traders, and while they are pulling against each other, Mr. RANDALL, of Pennsylvania, has the undivided strength of that Democracy which shows itself unwilling to make rash experiments with the tariff.

Guessing at the next Speaker is a safe and easy amusement, as a great many circumstances may arise before the meeting of Congress to upset all of the calculations upon which the shrewdest guess is based. But, as the question stands at present, Mr. RANDALL looms up as the strongest candidate simply because the Speakership will go to the shrewdest manager and the ablest tactician. It is decided not so much by personal worth, technical fitness or party popularity as by that skill in adjusting differences, in playing upon rivalries and animosities, in harmonizing the elements which need to be harmonized and in antagonizing those which may safely be antagonized, which distinguishes the clever political manager. Mr. RANDALL has shown that he possesses this skill in an eminent degree; he is an expert where his antagonists are tyros, and if he is to be defeated it will be through the operation of forces which are not manifest at present.

A RAILROAD QUESTION.

The practical consolidation of the Wabash Pacific with the Missouri Pacific is a significant fact in the history of railroad development, and it deserves the careful consideration of those who think that State control is able to dictate the conditions of railroad management. We take it for granted that all desire to see the railroads succeed, and any State legislation which would prevent the successful management of the roads in this State would be an injury both to the corporations and to the Commonwealth. Yet here is a gigantic railroad system, with 3,500 miles of road, running through fertile districts in four rich and growing States, which no management has been able to make a success of, simply because, big as it is, it is not big enough to hold its own in its location against the rivalry of larger and better equipped corporations, and there was absolutely no choice between merging it practically into the Missouri Pacific system or running it into the hands of a receiver. The tremendous aggregation of capital, talent, experience, good will and resources of all kinds which was deemed so potent as to endanger the State is so impotent, so helpless that it can not even exist in that vast competition of interests amid which its lot is cast. And the only way in which it can be made a safe, solvent, well-equipped business corporation, profitable to its owners and helpful to the public, is by a combination which sets at naught the State Constitution and overthrows the safeguards of public authority. Here is a question worthy of the study of statesmen, a question not to be solved by political inspiration nor by anti-monopoly platforms. What are we going to do about it?

MRS. GENSLER came over from London and procured the arrest of Mr. HENRY HERMANN, a wealthy furniture dealer of New York, asserting that he was her long-lost GENSLER, who had fled from her conjugal endearments many years ago, when he was a poor journeyman. As Mr. HERMANN had just been married to another lady, he had the claimant arrested for perjury and went to work vigorously to clear the matter up. In doing this he got on the track of the real GENSLER, found him working in a Baltimore furniture factory, and, though the fugitive was provided with another wife and family, the deserted woman and her daughter recognized him at sight. But for this discovery Mr. HERMANN might have become the victim of a case of mistaken identity. As it is, the wealthy HERMANNS are made happy and the poor GENSLERS are even more miserable than they were before. And so runs the world away with the romance of real life.

THE NEW YORK PRESS.

What the Journals of the Metropolis are Saying Editorially To-Day.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 7.—The Tribune says: "This man Randall is an objectionable person to some Democrats. To them he stands for the evil genius of the party. But for his malign influence it might succeed. Accordingly, quite a persistent and determined effort is in progress to break down his influence within the party or to drive him out of it. Many leading Democrats profess to feel that the extinction of Mr. Randall as a person of prominence and power has become an essential perquisite to Democratic success."

THE TIMES.

The Times says: "Senator George F. Edmunds, of Vermont, is receiving cordial praise from a number of Southern journalists, whose attention has been drawn to him during his Southern journey. We have not noticed, however, that they have designated one peculiar element of distinction which he enjoys. He is the only man in the United States who is conspicuously fit for the Presidency and does not desire it."

THE SUN.

The Sun says: "In view of the grave event now transpiring in Great Britain the people of this country will watch closely the proceedings of the approaching Congress of Irish Americans at Philadelphia. Will that assembly heed Parnell's fierce denunciation of the evils done to Ireland by the apostles of murder and destruction? Or will the action of the Congress be controlled by two or three incendiary newspapers, which would gladly ruin Parnell and Davitt because they cannot control them, and by half a dozen refugees who care not to what peril they expose their countrymen at home, and who know nothing about American public sentiment."

He Gathered Them In.

From the Philadelphia Times.

A stock broker who is just putting the finishing touches on a Queen Anne country house which he hopes will not [illegible] over $100,000, remarked to a friend a day or two ago that he had four customers who lost in stocks last year over $100,000 each. One of them died a few months ago.

Born, Not Made.

From the London World.

A leader of a political party is not an article to be turned out according to order, as per sample, and at this time less than at any other can the future of a party be decided by an embroidered conclave of its chiefs. The real leader is the man who can lead.

As Untamed as an Apache.

From the Tombstone Epitaph.

There is in this town a dear little boy who, when told upon his first day at school that the first letter in the alphabet was called "A," said to the schoolma'am: "How in h—ll do you know?"

In the Wrong Place.

From the Philadelphia Times.

William Sprague should have been running for something in Ohio. Pretty much all of that State appears to have gone Democratic.

A Jonah.

From the Philadelphia Times.

The Democrats should hire the whale which swallowed Jonah to dine on Mr. Watterson.

SATURDAY CHAT.

ST. LOUIS has not yet seen the end of the longest and dreariest winter it has known in a long time, but while the fierce March winds are untimely blowing about our ears those who wish to secure comfortable quarters of refuge from the summer heat are already making their arrangements. The demand for summer quarters steadily exceeds the supply, although the number of new hotels opened every spring at the various resorts of fashion greatly exceeds the number of those that are burned down in the fall, and the crowds at American summer haunts drive thousands off to Europe through preference. The crack passenger steamers for April and May have not had a vacant berth for a month past and now nearly all the first-class vessels are filled up through April, May and June. This summer's figures of travel in Europe will beat the record.

THERE is no denying that for all those blessed mortals who have sixty days to spend in vacation and who can afford ten dollars of outlay a day, the European trip beats anything in the country. That compact, well-built, well-settled, well-policed corner of the earth is a museum in which all rarities that can delight the eye or mind are ranged almost side by side, so that he who travels may see them, and, whether one take the first-class coupe or trudge on foot, there is no day without its pleasures. All variety of beauty of landscape and scenery, all strange languages and ways, all science, history, poetry, art, society, antiquity, novelty, character, advancement, failure, virtue or crime, may be seen and studied with such comfort and advantage as are unknown in our land of haste and wastes.

ST. LOUIS people do not wait until summer to get away. The winters of St. Louis and its springs are getting so hyperborean that a small exodus begins in February of those whose health demands a milder and evener climate. This is hard to find. Florida is "far, far away;" many try San Antonio and Santa Fe; many are asking about Monterey, and as soon as the conveniences of living in Monterey are brought down to modern times, there is no doubt that a great many St. Louis invalids and valetudinarians will be found defying the rigors of our spring in its more genial climate.

MEANWHILE a St. Louis colony has been established at Pass Christian, on the Gulf, or rather on a bayou running up from Mississippi Sound, halfway between New Orleans and Mobile. It is a Southern watering-place, a shallow stretch of quiet water, with bath-houses out at the ends of rickety daddy-long-legs piers, with a sand beach, a fringe of cottages behind, and behind these a dark background of green foliage. Its advantages are an even climate, warm, salt air, good board and good company. Among the St. Louis people who are, have been, or will be there this spring, are the Harneys, who have a home there; Mrs. J. F. How, Mr. and Mrs. Estill McHenry, Mrs. E. M. Switzer and children, Dr. and Mrs. R. H. Kealhofer, Mrs. J. V. Reyburn, Mrs. Deaver, Mrs. Stettinius, Mrs. George H. Paschall, the Countess de la Vaulx, Mrs. E. J. Dillon, Mrs. J. G. Hazard, Mr. and Mrs. Bredell, Mrs. and Miss Blossom, Mrs. Chas. H. Turner—quite an array of St. Louis names. Capt. Eads, who has been a frequent visitor at Gen. Harney's, is so pleased with the place that he thinks of buying a house there.

THE only really first-class-and-no-discount resort for Ferocious February and Windy March is the city of Tenochtitlan, now called Mexico; a city in which the sober truths of the weather read like the fictions of a fairy-land. There it never blows, and it never rains, and it never freezes; the sun puts in a good, honest day's work, every day in the year, turning up promptly at 7 a. m., and never knocking off before his appointed 5 o'clock shutting up time. If one is too warm in the sun, he has only to get in the shade; if too cool in the shade, only to go in the sun. There is little dust, there is no smoke, there is no sweat, the rare dry air carrying off all perspiration, there are no bugs, there are all kinds of food and fruits and flowers, and sights to be seen and good society, and tours and explorations all around—with only one drawback, the city is badly drained; and this, together with the leaky gas pipes of a villainous resin-gas, makes it smell nearly as bad as a St. Louis street looks.

MR. THOMAS E. GARRETT is perhaps the only St. Louis journalist who can lay claim to literary talent of a diversified order. He is not only a fine critic, but a poet and a playwright. Mr. G. began his literary career on the old "Graham Magazine," of Philadelphia, contemporaneous with Edgar Allan Poe. He knew the author of "The Raven" quite well. I have seen recently an old play-bill of De Bar's Opera-house, this city, of the date of 1865, containing the announcement and the cast of a prize play written by Mr. Garrett, entitled "Brinca; or, The Daughter of the Revolution." The leading role was played by Charlotte Thompson. The play was rather successful, but it seems to have been conceived beyond its day and generation. Mr. Garrett, I understand, contemplates publishing soon a volume of his fugitive poems.

THE people of St. Louis who read books can hardly spend a half dollar to better advantage than by subscribing for a year's series of the Bulletins of the Public School Library. This model publication answers that oft-repeated question, "What shall I read?" and answers a great many other questions. It furnishes lists of the best of recent publications, with notes from the most competent critics as to the nature and contents of the books, and is a great help to that large class of people who are not special students but superficial wanderers in the broad field of literature; the people who are attracted first by one book and then by another and who have no other rule for reading except that they read whatever interests them. To all these the Bulletin of Mr. Crunden is a vade mecum.

IN the spring the old plutocrat's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of house building, and just now in St Louis the old and the young alike follow the advice of Horace Greeley and go as far West as they can get. It is a settled fact that the residence quarter of St. Louis is to be west of Grand avenue, and nobody who is anybody would think of building a fine house in the quarter where everybody built the fine houses five years ago. Is there any other city where the inhabitants desert their favorite residence quarters before they are built up, as they do in St. Louis? I mind me of the time when Fifth street was our Fifth avenue, when the now dingy and dreary "Walsh's Row" was uncommon tony, when stylish people looked from their front windows on the unfinished Court-house, and when the neighborhood of Fifth and Washington avenue was a cluster of stately mansions. Yet before Fifth street was half built up fashion flitted out westward via Olive and Washington avenue, and, reaching the crest of Seventeenth street, made a jump into space across the valley into the unknown wilds of Stoddard's addition. Now the choice of fashion lies still westward, while there is still enough vacant room in Stoddard addition to house a small city. Is it not one of the troubles of St. Louis that it is spread out over too much territory and that its inhabitants seek to combine the freedom of the country with the costly improvements of the city?

I AM sorry to see that the injudicious advisers of Madame Nilsson are permitting her to descend to a personal quarrel with the so-called Colonel Mapleson. The quarrel is an unequal one, inasmuch as the Colonel has no personal dignity or standing to lose, but in other respects the inequality is on the other side. Under the polish given by years of daily intercouse with the most refined society of the world, the peasant girl of Wexio still has the untamed spirit of those old Norsemen who turned out such a fine line of pirates, ravagers, Berserkirs, Varangers and the like in the early dawn of modern civilization, and not one of her race was ever more plucky or fearless than this sweet-faced and sweet-voiced daughter of the north. It is all the more a pity that her quarrel is with so small an adversary.

Locating the Exposition.

ST. LOUIS, April 6, 1883.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

You have repeatedly, in your paper, called attention to the advantages which Washington Square offers as a site for the prospective Exposition and Music Hall building, and in doing so have, no doubt, met with the approval of a large number, if not a majority, of the subscribers for the erection of the building. It appears, judging from a short account in a yesterday's morning paper, that the lately elected directors of the Exposition and Music Hall Association are disposed to prefer Missouri Park Square, and to have the building erected on it without consulting the wish of the majority of the stockholders. The undersigned shares hope you will continue to urge that a vote of the stockholders be taken in the matter. To lend you assistance in this they hand in to you their votes for publication, if you deem it proper to publish them. Perhaps the publication will contribute towards bringing out in print an expression of opinion that will induce the directors to take the proper course to prevent even the slightest suspicion that mercenary individual interests are playing a role in the matter. The proper and only course to prevent such a suspicion consists in allowing the shareholders of the association to express their preferences as regards the location of the building to be erected by vote.

Respectfully yours,

TWELVE SHARES.

Amenities of Street Car Travel.

ST. LOUIS, April 6, 1883.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

When one has a complaint to make against any one of the soulless monopolies he always writes to you; hence my letter. I have the misfortune of living on the route of the Blue and Yellow Line of cars (Union Depot), and they being most convenient, I ride on them. My object is not to speak of the filthy condition of the cars, but to complain of the treatment the patrons of this road receive from the men hired as conductors. A few nights past a young lady got on a yellow car at the Union Depot and after having ridden shortly beyond the bridge, going South, discovered she was on the wrong line. She called the conductor and asked him to let her off at the first crossing, telling him that she had made a mistake in getting on his car. The conductor said to her in a very insulting manner that he didn't carry passengers for nothing and that she would have to get off right where the car was (which was about the middle of a block and mud six inches deep). She did so, and that so quickly that no one had time to interfere. When the conductors are signaled to stop they do so and wait till you are within five or six feet of the car and then ring to go ahead. So if one wishes to get on he has to carry a goodly portion of Missouri real estate along on his trousers and shoes. I saw one man literally covered with mud because of this last night. This morning I came down town about 8 o'clock on Gravois road car No. 22. At the Union Depot two elderly ladies stepped on the platform of the car and asked the conductor if his car would take them to Washington avenue. In the most brutal and insulting way he told them no; that he went to Fourth and Pine streets, and that they could go on or get off the car at once. Just here a gentleman volunteered the information that the line they were on was the only one they could take; that they could get off at Ninth and Pine and go north three blocks—all of which was the conductor's duty, but he did nothing of the kind. Now, Mr. Editor, I think it is an outrage that the patrons of a street railroad cannot be treated civilly. I hope the POST-DISPATCH will do what it can in the way of a reform.

Curious Scenes of Domestic Infelicity Unveiled.

Another Contested Divorce Suit in Court—Judge Adams Untying Another Nuptial Knot.

Judge Adams' trial docket has been so burdened with divorce cases this week that at the close he found it necessary to make fresh settings of cases that could not be reached. The Little petition for maintenance, involving a rehearsal of the pecular domestic woes of Mrs. Little No. 2, which has been awaiting the court's attention for three days past, had to be reset for the 16th inst. The Staed divorce case was reset for the 17th inst., and the only case taken up this morning was that of Augusta M. Trall against Russell T. Trall, a couple whose domestic path seems to have been blessed with very little sunshine. The petition was filed by Alex. Martin in behalf of Mrs. Trall. The marriage took place at Terre Haute, Ind., June 10, 1878, and the separation in January of last year. Mrs. Trall alleged that she always treated her husband with kindness and affection and she conducted herself at all times as a loving, faithful and obedient wife, but that he rendered her condition intolerable. She recites in her petition several instances of cruel treatment, alleging that her husband choked, kicked and beat her, and threatened to cut her throat. On one occasion Mrs. Trall alleges that her husband shamefully abused her and locked her out in the hall. Another time he abused her sister, kicked her, threatened to blow her brains out and otherwise made things unpleasant at the family hearth. Mrs. Trall alleged that her husband left her and the child Jessie without fuel or food, and on one occasion he whipped her on the back and she was compelled to flee to the protection of strangers. Finally she alleges that her husband abandoned her and the child. To all of this the husband enters an answer of general denial. He avers that she did not abandon his wife, but that she took that step; and that he is willing and anxious for her to return to him, and he prays that the divorce proceeding may be dismissed. Concerning the child, Jessie, he alleges that his wife sent her away to the care of strangers in Kansas, and, whatever may be the result of this case, he wished to have an order for the custody of the child himself.

FLOURISHED A RAZOR IN HER FACE

The case is flooded with depositions of Mrs. Trall's lady-relatives, taken at Terre Haute.

MRS. MARY CLINE

testified that only the third night after their marriage she heard Mr. and Mrs. Trall quarreling at the gate. Gussie, Mrs. Trall, was sobbing violently, and she heard her say in piteous tones: "Oh! Russell, please, for God's sake don't!" He came in one morning at two o'clock by the train from St. Louis and the witness overheard another scene. Mr. Trall was talking very angrily, and Gussie was sobbing as if her heart would break. A neighbor was sick at one time, and Gussie was sent for, but her husband would not let her go unless she charged a physician's fee. This witness, who is a sister of Mrs. Trall, visited her after removing to St. Louis, and she testified to several domestic jars between the Tralls. One evening Mrs. Trall and the child were in their night-dresses prepared for bed, when Mrs. Trall ventured to make some remark about a matter in the newspapers. Her husband flew into a violent rage, called her an idiot and locked her and the child out in the hall. It was very cold weather and she begged hard for the child's sake to be readmitted, but her husband for a considerable time. One day he was very angry because dinner was served up with corn-beef and cabbage boiled together. He said "nobody but niggers would eat such stuff." One Sunday morning he declined to come down to breakfast until eleven o'clock and his wife at that hour appeared with red and swollen eyes. Her husband kept the keys of the store-room and kept the child from food at times that it was needed.

KEPT HER STANDING THERE IN HER NIGHT ROBE

Maude Shirley testified that she visited the Tralls when they were living at 710 Tayon avenue. Mr. Trall was very disagreeable at all times and appeared to delight in mortifying his wife in the presence of others. He insisted on being served first at the table, and sometimes would go off and eat by himself. One day Jessie, a sister of the witness, remarked at the table that Guiteau, the assassin, was a Republican. Mr. Trall became very angry at this. He got up and left the table, and then had a scene with his wife and locked her out of the room.

Jessie Shirley deposed that she visited the couple at 1909 Carr Place in this city. Mrs. Trall was not well, but her husband neglected her, and took his meals at restaurants. She not did believe that he was capable of experiencing true, warm affection.

HE WAS ALWAYS COLD AND DICTATORIAL to his wife. As for the scenes she had witnessed, they were of daily occurrence. Mr. Trall never spoke to his wife's visitors. One day Mrs. Trall undertook to reprove her little girl at the table, saying, "Jessie, you must not ask for potatoes, when you have some on your plate." Jessie's papa got up in a rage and exclaimed: "If I had known we were going to have a d—d scene here I would have taken dinner at a restaurant."

The remaining portion of the tessimony related to similar instances of domestic infelicity.

The Big Billiard Match.

Mr. J. W. McCullagh has completed all arrangements for the match game of billiards between Jacob Schaefer and Maurice Vignaux, which will take place in Masonic Hall, on Friday evening next. The table will be placed in the center of the hall and seats will be built around it in amphitheater style, so that every spectator will have a full view of the game. Mr. McCullagh stated this morning that it will be no exhibition affair, but an actual match. Schaefer and Vignaux have expressly stipulated that they would not play unless it was settled that the winner got all the gate money, less actual expenses. Mr. McCullagh was further required to guarantee this sum would reach $500. Vignaux is anxious to get even with Schaefer, and as this will be the first meeting after the tournament, each will play as hard as he can. The game will be 1,500 points, straight billiards, French caroms. Tickets will be on sale on Tuesday next, at Mussey's and at the Monarch Billiard Hall.

Handsome Souvenirs Given Away.

John Neun & Co., dealers in dry goods and notions, at 1205 South Fifth street, three doors below Hickory street, do not believe that people in that section need come up town for bargains when they can be secured at home. With small rents and low expenses they know they can sell as cheaply as any house. Their grand spring opening occurs on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday next, and the public is cordially invited to examine as handsome and complete a display as can be found anywhere in the city. Every lady who attends the opening will be presented with a handsome souvenir. Messrs. Neun & Co. are a live and enterprising firm, and never promise anything which they do not perform.

POPE'S THEATER, April 15.

A CARD.

Mr. Pope wishes to convey to the music-loving public of St. Louis the fact of his having affected a most important engagement, by securing the original

STANDARD OPERA COMPANY,

From the Standard Theater, New York,

Under the management of Mr. J. C. Duff, who has purchased from the author and composer the full rights of production, including the original Orchestration, Costumes and Appointments, of the latest musical success,

HEART AND HAND.

Music by Chas. Lecocq,

Which will be presented with a degree of completeness never before equaled in this city.

An exceptionally strong company, including the very eminent baritone, Mr. Geo. Sweet, late of the Cerster Italian Opera Company, the favorite tenor, Mr. Wallace Macreery, the eccentric comedian, Mr. H. W. Montgomery, and character actor, Mr. J. Love, also the very popular comedian, Mr. J. H. Ryley, who has created all of Gilbert & Sullivan's comedy characters in this country. The charming and accomplished Prima Donna, Miss Mary Conron, also Miss Hattie Richardson and Miss Rosa Cook. A GRAND CHORUS OF 60 VOICES. Also a complete Orchestra and Brass Band. In the Third Act a most PICTURESQUE HUNGARIAN BALLET will be introduced.

READ THE CHICAGO PRESS

On This Company's Performance and Its Great Superiority Over all Others in the Presentation of This Opera.

Chicago Times (April 3d) Says:

J. C. Duff's Standard Theater Company, from New York, appeared at Haverly's Theater last night in Lecocq's "Heart and Hand," a work given here only a week or two ago by the McCaull Company. The whole representation is fuller and more complete than any presentation of comic opera given here for some time. The Company is certainly one of the largest and most completely appointed comic opera companies ever seen here. The costuming was exceptionally rich and the stage pictures represented were truly gorgeous.

The Tribune of April 3 Says:

Lecocq's Opera, "Heart and Hand," was given by Duff's Standard Opera Company, at Haverly's. The attendance was a large one and evidently enjoyed the representation. The Company is also a large one and nothing has been neglected by the management that could, in any manner, increase the spectacular effect. The costuming is superb; handsomer than ever seen here in a similar work; and the ballet in the last act, is a novelty, and adds to the picturesque effect. The principal parts are in capable hands, and the performance, as a whole, is a brilliant one excelling its previous presentation in its spectacular features and musical effectiveness. It is better sung and there has been no cutting of the score. In the acting there was no forcing of fun, no such "gagging" and poorly digested puns as were permitted in the version formerly seen here. The closing stage picture in the last act is one of the finest ever put upon a local stage.

The Inter-Ocean Says:

As a musical organization the Duff Company deserves a position of high rank among the many who have visited this city.

The Daily News Says:

"Heart and Hand," Lecocq's latest success, attracted a splendid audience at Haverly's last night. The setting and dressing of the piece is certainly the work of a master hand. The orchestration last night was magnificent, the musicians having the advantage of the composer's original scores. Miss Marie Cannon, a charming and really brilliant soprano, as "Blonela" without a blemish, surpassing Miss Conway, of the McCaull Company, and winning merited applause.

HEART AND HAND

Will be given for the first time in this city in its entirety by the STANDARD OPERA CO., at Pope's Theater on Sunday Evening, April 15. The entire company, comprising 70 PERSONS 70, will come direct from Chicago by special train to fulfill this engagement. Full particulars in future announcement.

PROPOSALS FOR MILITARY SUPPLIES.

DEPOT QUARTERMASTER'S OFFICE, ST. LOUIS, MO., April 1, 1883.

Sealed proposals in triplicate, subject to the usual conditions, will be received at this office until 12 o'clock noon on Thursday, the 10th day of May, 1883, at which time and place they will be opened in presence of bidders, for supplying the St. Louis Quartermaster's Depot, the St. Louis Clothing Depot, St. Louis Powder Depot, the National Cemetery and the Recruiting Depot at Jefferson Barracks, Mo., with such quantities of hardwood, bituminous coal, oats, corn, hay, bran and straw as may be required from time to time during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1884.

Bids for the Recruiting Depot will also be received and opened at same day and hour by the Post Quartermaster, Jefferson Barracks.

Bids for any portion of the supplies will be entertained.

A preference will be given to articles of domestic production, conditions of price and quality being equal, and such preference will be given to articles of American production produced on the Pacific Coast, to the extent of the consumption required by the public service there.

One copy of this advertisement should be securely attached to each triplicate proposal and be mentioned therein as comprising part of it.

The Government reserves the right to reject any or all proposals.

Blank proposals and information as to the estimated quantities that may be required at each place, terms of contract, payment and bond to accompany proposals can be obtained by application to this office.

Proposals should be enclosed in sealed envelopes, marked "Proposals for Fuel" (or "forage" or "straw," as the case may be), and addressed to the Depot Quartermaster, St. Louis, or to the respective Post-Quartermasters.

CITY NEWS.

Memorial resolutions on the death of Peter Cooper were adopted last night at the meeting of the Engineers' Association.

An excellent entertainment was furnished last evening at Memorial Hall by the members of the junior class, Washington University. There was a large audience.

Wm. C. Wilson was yesterday afternoon elected President of the Real Estate and Stock Exchange for the ensuing year; J. S. Farrar, Vice-President; F. L. Haydel, Secretary.

The Y. M. C. A. Senate last evening decided in the affirmative the question for debate: "Is a limited monarchy preferable to a republic?" There was a spirited discussion.

The Teachers' Committee of the School Board last evening decided for the present to close the Humboldt School on account of the prevalence of small-pox in that neighborhood.

The chairmakers at Chas. E. Nixdorf's works are out on a strike, at the order of the union, because the proprietor discharged a hand for intimidating a new man not connected with the union.

The twefth annual meeting of the State Branch Woman's Board of Foreign Missions was held yesterday afternoon at Pilgrim Church. The work of the year in the foreign missionary field was reviewed. Mrs. S. B. Kellogg was elected president for the ensuing year.

The Geo. R. Taylor estate representatives have decided to run Barnum's Hotel, Walnut street, in the interest of the heirs, owners of the property. They have placed in general control and management Capt. Trumbour, for a quarter of a century the chief night clerk of the establishment, a very popular hotel man.

SOCIETY GOSSIP.

Ladies' Dinners, Planned Festivals and Birds of Passage.

Some Interesting On Dits--Wedding Announcements--Social Chit-Chat--Personal Movements.

The daily dinners given by the lady managers of the Woman's Christian Home Association have come to a close. Delicious menus have been served perfect in detail, and sufficient to tempt the appetite of a gourmand and make him a dyspeptic for life. On Tuesday, the last day, the ladies were given carte blanche as to the decorations and bill of fare offered, each lady providing, in addition to the regular card, those dishes in the preparation of which she excelled. The result was a friendly rivalry, and the basement of the Merchants' Exchange bloomed like a flower garden, and the tables fairly groaned beneath the luxuries heaped upon them. At one table, Mrs. Filley's, there was placed a large cake of ice, hollowed out and filled with oysters; that being her specialty they were served at her table in many styles. Mrs. Allen's table was called the McCullough Club table, and was a very attractive resort, groups, standing around ready to seize the first vacant seat. She was assisted by a bevy of pretty girls in white caps and aprons, perfect pictures to look at and charming to talk to. But then all the girls were pretty and attractive; who cared if they did forget to give one a knife and fork or sugar and spoon? who wanted a spoon, when one's emotions were being stirred up at such a lively rate? Or who cared for sugar so long as a pretty girl sat by, and looked in one's coffee? There was a very large attendance the last day; the larder was exhausted, and one black-eyed belle remarked to another as she sat down wearily about two o'clock, "There's nothing left for us—not even bread and butter." "All's well that ends well." The ladies will clear at least $1,500 by their exertions. They have had two week's hard work, but a pleasant re-union with their friends, and as for the gentlemen—well for a year they will have to content themselves with a restaurant dinner, and a common waiter, the soup tasting none the better from the fact that his greasy finger is stuck in it.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh L. McElroy, of Kansas City, took dinner with the ladies at the Merchants' Exchange on Tuesday. Mrs. McElroy is a magnificent looking brunette, a noted beauty and formerly a well known Kentucky belle and heiress. She usually spends some weeks in St. Louis en passant to her summer home in the blue grass region of Kentucky. Mr. McElroy is a resident of Kansas City, having made a large fortune there in the past few years in real estate. Their stay in the city was brief and they will not return before next fall, when they will spend some time during the carnival season.

MISS SHERWOOD,

of New York, who has been the guest for some weeks of Mrs. Gilbert Chapmen, has been the recipient of many courteous attentions during her visit here. Last Saturday Miss Daisy Lackland gave a charming young ladies' high tea at 4 o'clock, to which twenty-five young ladies were bidden, and entertained in the graceful manner characteristic of the young hostess, ably seconded by her mother. On Monday Miss Julia Shepley gave a ladies' luncheon in her honor, at which young ladies exclusively, were entertained. Mr. and Mrs. Chapman propose making an excursion to California very soon, in which they will be accompanied by Miss Sherwood, before she returns to New York.

MISS ELLA STURGIS,

daughter of Gen. S. S. Sturgis of the U. S. A., now stationed at Washington City, D. C., is spending a fortnight, with her sister Mrs. Hercules Dausman on Locust street. Miss Sturgis was a great favorite in St. Louis Society nere a year ago, before her father left for Washington. It will be remembered that she made a most successful debut at that time as Juliet at Pope's Theater, for Mr. Pope's benefit, displaying marked histrionic ability.

GOING TO EUROPE.

Birds of passage are already beginning to wing their way to Europe. Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Cupples, Miss Amelia Cupples, Misses Mattie and Belle Lowman, Belle Baker, and Messrs. Charles and James Scudder sailed on Wednesday for Liverpool. Mr. and Mrs. Allen and their daughter, Miss Mary Allen, leave in two weeks for New York, whence they will sail in a short time for Europe. Col. D. P. Slattery, president of the American Brake Company, goes to Europe in June, and will be the guest for several weeks of Lord Bertie, of Oxford. Mr. M. A. Rosenblatt and family leave soon for Europe. Mrs. Edgar Ames goes to Europe in May accompanied by her daughter, Miss Ada Ames, on dit to purchase a bridal trousseau, for the maiden who will be one of next fall's brides. Mrs. Edwin Bathurst Smith sails on the 23d of May accompanied by her nephew, Mr. John Bryan, who will spend some time at Paris completing his medical course. She will also probably be accompanied by one of her nieces. Mrs. Alex. Young, accompanied by her daughter Florence, sails also on the 23d of May, and expects to be absent for two years. Mrs. John Whittaker, Mrs. Luther Kennett and Mrs. Wilson Kennett sail for Europe about the middle of May.

AN INFORMAL PARTY

was given on Wednesday evening by Miss Lizzie Walker. Refreshments were served upon tête-a-tête tables, and dancing was enjoyed until a late hour. Among the guests were Mrs. General Davidson and her daughter, Miss Lettie Davidson, Miss Cropper, of Louisville, Miss Lydia Blossom, Misses Cora and Laura Mitchell, Mrs. Dr. Duncan nee Dulaney, of Boonville, and Miss Minnie Ferguson; Messrs. Ike Baker, Collins, Fitzhugh, Thomas, Randolph Mitchell, Webb Mitchell, Wm. B. Smith, Charlie Bowman and Herdgemon.

WEDDINGS.

There is a sound of wedding bells in the air. Invitations are issued for the marriage, on the 10th, of Mr. Wiley H. Terry to Miss Wisdom, of Chestnut street. The wedding will be quite private and the happy pair will leave immediately upon a bridal tour East.

Cards have also been issued for the marriage of Mr. Henry P. Hull, a well-known society young man, and prominent member of the West End Club, to Miss Lily Taylor. The ceremony will take place on the 16th at the First Presbyterian Church. There will be six bridesmaids; it is therefore safe to predict a handsome bridal.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY.

Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Rowland celebrated their seventeenth marriage anniversary this week, to which only the members of both families were invited, but by reason of their number it proved to be a very large and handsome entertainment. Refreshments were served by Mr. Beers.

THEATER PARTY.

There is this afternoon a theater party occupying one of the lower boxes at the Grand Opera-house to witness Rhea in "Much Ado About Nothing." The party is given by Mrs. James L. Patterson, and includes Miss Turner, Miss Lottie Davidson, Miss Stephens and Miss Agnes Barlow.

THE AUTUMN GARDEN.

The ladies interested in the Autumn Garden, under the management of Mrs. John Grether, Mrs George Plant, Mrs. E. L. Warner, Mrs. Wm. Patrick and Mrs. W. O. Gibson, met at Mrs. Grether's, Thirty-fifth and Olive streets, last evening, to mature plans for the coming entertainment at the Natatorium. The direction and management of the stage and scenic effects are in the hands of Mr. Gus. Thomas, and they expect to present a beautiful tableau vivant of Fall, with the fruits of the harvest and vintage, the chase and the divertissements of the rural lads and lassies of a hundred years ago, among which will be the dance of "Sir Roger de Coverly," under the direction of Prof. Mahler. Hunters' glees and vintage songs and choruses, for which they have secured the best amateur talent of the city, under the able direction of Prof. A. G. Robyn, will certainly prove one of the most attractive features of the entertainment. Some of the costumes will be very elegant and all of them picturesque. There were present last evening Mrs. Grether, Mrs. Gibson, Mrs. Warner, Mrs. Cooper, and the Misses Ada Haggerty, Nancy Rex, Gussie Evans, Mamie Taylor, Nellie Shields and others interested in it.

JUDGE HORNER

says that his remarks in support of his decision, to the effect that the ladies of the present day "are better versed in the mysteries of the waltz than the cuisine" were strictly en famille, and he did not expect the prying reporter to spread them upon the records of the daily papers, to be read and criticised by the ladies and used against him in the coming contest, but since it has been noised abroad, he maintains his theory, and points to the Training School to support it. "If this state of the case did not exist, why should there be a Training School to teach the belles to be good housewives?"

ON DIT.

That not a single Easter hat has been visible upon the streets yet.

That if this weather continues as Vennor predicts, and it seems likely to do, the Easter opening will be indefinitely postponed until summer, when the styles will have changed and the Easter hat will be a pronounced failure.

That the winter's campaign has been a comparative failure, resulting in but few engagements and fewer weddings.

That the remark of a well-known society gentleman, that there are very few "legible" young men in society, is perfectly true.

That the Riding-School is a pronounced success, and we no longer speak of our carriage friends, but our riding friends.

That it is quite en regle for ladies to wear their riding hats in the car, and carry their whips, as they go to the Armory to take their lessons.

That the gentlemen's vests at the Vanderbilt ball being cut "dancing length," was a wise precaution, as one must necessarily look awkward stumbling over this vest, if cut en traine.

That the "McCullough Club" at their next performance, which takes place next week, will essay high tragedy, producing "Louis XI."

That it is so much cheaper to go to Europe than stay at home, that a number of so-called society people will avail themselves of it.

That it is a pity that the meets of the Ferguson hunt are so interfered with by the unpropitious weather, the last fox chase having proved very exciting, participated in by both ladies and gentlemen. It lasted for some hours.

That the entertainment at the Natatorium, beginning April 17th, representing the four seasons, will eclipse even the Historic Encampment of last spring in beauty.

That the ladies cleared $1,500 at their dinners at the Merchants' Exchange, which will be appropriated for the Woman's Christian Home, and the Woman's Training School.

That it will not be the young batchelors alone who will miss the "Ladies' Dinners." There were lots of old gray heads there day after day, who, when invited to take quiet, good seats at a table presided over by some comely matron, where they would receive a good dinner and prompt attention, would reply, "Well, yes—but I rather promised Miss A., and I think she will expect me. S'mother day"—and away they would dart after some "Will o' the Wisp" of a girl in the distance leaving the good dame with a remonstrance upon her lips, while they joined the knot that waited patiently for a seat at some popular belle's table. Perhaps they went away and complained that it took too long to get one's dinner, etc., but they went back all the same next day.

CHERUB'S CHAT.

Gossip About Plays and Players Now in St. Louis.

Reminiscences of the Veteran Couldock--Harry Sargent and His Foreign Importations--Irish Comedians Who Have Graduated From the Variety Stage.

It is the regular thing to say, about this time, that theater-goers are beginning to arouse from the lethargic condition that Lent brought on. I don't say so. The only lethargy that amusement patrons ever experience is superinduced by the character of entertainments offered them, and not by the season in which they are presented. A man or woman of good sense can enjoy a good thing in Lent just as heartily as if it were the Fourth of July or the picnic season, but all the Easter-tides and other religious rejoicings in the world could not make them laugh at a sorrowful comedy, or extend their sympathy to the performers in a butchered tragedy. To be plainer, bad actors must expect bad business at all times, while the deserving people who hold the stage find rich rewards whether their patrons are fasting on bread and water, or feasting on pigeon and pie. Occasionally a low-class attraction will catch a big house, but it may be set down as an inevitable law of human nature that the man who is fooled once doesn't submit himself to the practical joker a second time.

With these few introductory remarks I am prepared to say that the local theaters were better patronized this week than they deserved to be. Mlle. Rhea, at the Grand, was a novelty, with some emotional ability, the prestige of a foreign reputation and the further recommendation, which at once endeared her the susceptible American heart, that she possessed a pronounced and to some extent irritating foreign accent. Her portrayal of passions in the various impersonations in which she was seen had sufficient art about it to make the quasi-æsthetes in her audiences satisfied with her work, but to my acclimated ears and doubting eyes the strange admixture of broken English and Frenchified manners were hardly acceptable as art and ranked little ahead of dialect comedy of the most atrocious and heart-rending kind.

Mlle. Rhea came to this country last season under the management of that prince of irresponsible impresarios, Harry Sargent. Harry, who had been a juggling fakir, jumped from the sleight-of-hand stage to the management of Modjeska, another dialect artiste, and by generously winning the newspaper men and judiciously working the papers themselves, succeeded in making fame and money for himself and his foreign star. He fell from the theatrical firmament rather suddenly after leaving Modjeska. He scored a failure in trying to make the country accept Adele Belgarde, and the next I heard of him he was ...ing with a prize-fighting c...ation. Now he is managing a cheap op...ra company somewhere east.

This is the gentleman who brought Mlle Rhea to America. She remained under his management but a short while, her opening season being so unsuccessful that her baggage was attached in Boston after she had been playing a few weeks, and Sargent disappeared from the surface to be replaced by a gentleman named Chase, who is now her manager and who claims to be making a fortune.

Rhea's company is not good. There is no actor in the whole lot who is worth more than $3 a week, and then he should be made to handle the baggage so that his employer might receive a fair return for his money. Of the actresses Mrs. Ella Wren, who plays "old women," is one of the old-timers. Many years ago she starred through the South and was known all through that section as a great favorite. She is a good actress.

"Hazel Kirke" seems to have a terribly hard grip on the hearts of the people. It is a pretty, domestic drama, as everybody knows, abounding in human interest, and, although it has now stood the test of several seasons it seems to be as fresh and young and full of pleasure as when it had its name changed from "The Iron Will" to make the success of the Madison Square Theater, New York, in 1878. I think I can explain the longevity of public interest in this play. It is due pretty much entirely to the interest that is felt in the people who are associated in its production.

The veteran Couldock, who impersonates Dunstan, the stern old miller of the play, is one of the oldest favorites on the boards. He was born in 1815, and when he is in a reminiscent mood tells a tender and touching story about his grandmother, who when on her death-bed prayed to God to let her live until her darling boy's twenty-first birthday was reached. Every day she would open her heaven-lit eyes and ask if it was yet the 26th of April. The day came at last, and with her hand upon her grandson's head and a blessing on her lips, she took her leave for heaven. Couldock was not on the stage then. He did not begin his professional career until he was twenty-two years old. Prior to that time he had served an apprenticeship to a carpenter and joiner, and now boasts loudly of his ability to make a panel-door or a window sash as well as any man in the country.

Tragedy was his early bent, and he debuted at Sadler's Wells, London, in "Othello," following up his first success in this line, and after playing with Macready, Forrest, Charles Kean, Helen Tree, John Vandenhoff, Mme. Celeste, Mme. Vestris, Charles Mathews, Mrs. Fitzwilliams, Buckstone and all the heroes and heroines of the stage in the early half of this century, starring himself for many years and winning laurels as bright almost as those won by any of the others, he came to America with Charlotte Cushman in 1849, and supported her during her first American tour. He starred until a few years ago, when stock companies went to pieces, and has created the role of Dunstan Kirke, which will die with him.

Mrs. E. L. Davenport, widow of the famous actor of the same name, is playing Mercy Merrick in the company at Pope's this week. She is the mother of Fanny Davenport and Blanche and May Davenport, and has been a great actress in her day, often fairly dividing the honors with her masterly husband.

I hear that Blanche, who is on the operatic stage under the name of Bianca La Blanche, is singing wonderfully well and making a great reputation in Europe.

Ada Gilman, the soubrette who plays Dolly Dutton so charmingly in "Hazel Kirke," is the wife of Leander P. Richardson, the newspaper man, who was once enterprising enough to telegraph blood-curdling accounts of his own atrocious murder by Sioux Indians during the Crow campaign in the Northwest seven years ago.

Bijou Heron, the new Hazel, who is the daughter of Matilda Heron, is a pretty, sympathetic little creature, and in my humble opinion gives as effective and pleasing an impersonation of the part as Effie Ellsler gave. Bijou is the wife of Mr. Mills, who plays Lord Travers in the same company. There is a pretty little romance in their union, that I cannot forbear printing. They were playing the lovers in "Odette," at Daly's Theater, New York, when, from simulating affection for each other, they grew into actual possession ... it, and so rapidly did their hearts ...t for each other that it was but a few ...eeks when they were made one, under the auspices of the genial gentleman who presides over the destinies of the Madison Square.

Little Maud Osborne, the Clara of the piece, is Mrs. Gus Frohman. She is the youngest daughter of Gen. T. B. Bunting, now commanding the Guatemala forces, who came of the old Stockton family of Jersey. The young lady is a clever actress, and is said to be deeply in love with the stage. She took the part of Hazel Tuesday night and Wednesday afternoon, when Miss Heron was sick, and did so well that nobody knew that this difficult role was in the hands of a comparative novice. She has been married to Mr. Frohman three years.

From the pure and aromatic regions of the domestic drama the descent is easy and rapid to Irish comedy.

Although the stage has few great exponents of this phase of mirth, it is a curious thing that Irish comedy seldom, if ever, pays. The playwright and the comedian have two obstacles in the way of success when they venture into the field. The performance must be ridiculous and extravagant enough to make all other nationalities laugh, and at the same time some care must be taken not to tread too heavily upon the toe-nails of the Hibernian citizen.

W. J. Scanlan, at the People's Theater, has been giving a performance that is at the same time funny and artistic. He idealizes the Irish character. No such romantic Irish hero as he impersonates, with his combination of poetic and patriotic instincts, ever lived. Still it pleases the populace, and particularly the Land Leaguers, and is a great go.

Scanlan has graduated from the realistic school of the variety stage to the polished boards of the semi-legitimate. A few years ago he and Cronin were doing a rough sketch in which he took the part of a "gas-house tarrier;" to-day his work is refined, and if at all overdrawn the extravagance leans to the side of art and not reality.

"Friend and Foe," in which he is now succeeding, was one of Bartley Campbell's early failures. It was brought out in California, eleven years ago, during the Franco-Prussian war, which is treated of in the play, and had James O'Neill, Ed. Buckley, Miss Hawthorn and other first-class people in the cast. Scanlan will have a new play next season by Frank Maeder.

Opposed to Scanlan's artistic treatment of the Irish character is the rough-shod manner in which Barry and Fay have been presenting it at the Olympic to fair houses during the week. There is no other art in this performance than the attempt to make the Irishman as funny in his speech, his face and his clothes as the usually clever variety performer knows how to make him. "Irish Aristocracy at Muldoon's Picnic" should not be given a place in a first-class theater. I was surprised to find it in the Olympic. It belonged to the old Comique, and if buried under the ruins of the Pine street shop would be a very small loss the to theater-going world.

Of course people laugh at Barry and Fay. The former was a "nigger singer," and the latter a variety artist of some kind, and they know how to raise a laugh at no matter what sacrifice. Decency must not be respected; the finer feelings of the people must be given no consideration. They present Mulcahey and Muldoon as a pair of clowns of the most ignorant and depraved kind, and because a smile rewards their clumsy efforts at humor, and the mob roars at revolting absurdities, they keep on. They have made nearly $50,000 this season. Last year "Muldoon's Picnic" was a variety sketch. As such there was more merit in it and more raison d'etre than it has as a play. Just as a Chicago newspaper man said of Pat Rooney once, Messrs. Barry and Fay are getting too much money for imitating their own fathers on the stage.

CHERUB.

STAGE WHISPERS.

Geo. H. Adams' Humpty Dumpty Troupe will open at the People's to-morrow night.

Rice's Surprise Party will play for George McManus' benefit at the Grand, on the 30th.

Duff's Comic Opera Company comes to Pope's with "Heart and Hand" the week after next.

Geo. Heuer benefits at the Olympic during the Thatcher, Primrose & West engagement, on the 21st.

Jay Rial's Consolidated "Uncle Tom's Cabin" Company will appear at Pope's next week, opening to-morrow night.

Mrs. I. N. Beers will, in the absence of her husband, manage the dramatic and musical entertainments to be given this afternoon and evening at the School of the Holy Ghost, Eighth and Walnut streets. A fine programme is promised.

On Thursday, April 19, an entertainment will be given at the Mission Chapel, Ninth and Wash, in which Mrs. J. R. Scott, Mrs. Georgia Lee Cunningham, Mrs. Alice Lansden, Rev. John Snyder and Prof. F. M. Crunden will appear.

The McCaull Opera Company will open at the Opera-house to-morrow night in "Heart and Hand," the work over which there was so much litigation in the East recently. The cast will include Madeleine Lucette, Laura Joyce, Digby Bell, John Howson and Geo. Sweet. It is in this opera that Howson caricatures Rev. De Witt Talmage.

Colville's "Taken from Life" Company opens at the Olympic to-morrow night, when Joseph Wheelock will for the first time assume the role of the hero, Wm. Lee, the painter. Otherwise the company is about the same as when the melodrama was presented at the Olympic in the early part of the season. A good performance will be given.

The fourth and last concert of Memorial Hall series will take place next Thursday, April 12. The celebrated Jacobsohn String Quartet, of Cincinnati, will appear, with a young violinist, Mr. Strolhotte—Jacobsohn's prize pupil—who will make his debut here. Mrs. Bausemer (nee Spaetor), the pianiste, Mrs. Mattie I. Hardy, the favorite alto' and Mr. Louis Hammerstein, accompanist' will also participate.

A SICK officer out at Fort Scott
Got his muscles all tied in a knot;
He is now out again,
And says for all pain
St. Jacobs Oil goes right to the spot.

Cigar Importation.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—The figures furnished the State department by Adam Badeau, Grant's historian, now Consul-General to Cuba, regarding the quantity and value of cigars sent from Havana to the United States show a remarkable shortage in values of cigars on the short trip from Cuba to the United States. According to Mr. Badean's report $3,321,729 worth of cigars shipped from Havana to the United States during the year ending September 30, 1882. Examination of the figures of the Customs Bureau for the year ending June 30, 1882, practically the same period, shows the value of the cigars imported into the country from the whole mercantile world that year to be less than the reported Havana contributions, while the value of those from all of Cuba, including, of course, Havana, is put down at nearly a half million dollars less than the figures of Badeau. Whether articles imported are thus systematically valued at twenty per cent less than their cost, in assessing a tariff, or whether a half million dollars' worth of cigars are annually smuggled into the country from Cuba, is a question which might be worthy the attention of the Customs officials. The customs revenue now amounts to about $2,000,000 a year. If this be taken as a measure of loss on customs justly due under the laws, it would indicate a loss of $50,000,000 a year, either by undervaluation or smuggling.

Speaking of the importations of foreign cigars leads to the remark that the importation of foreign tobacco and cigars last year was nearly 50 per cent more than at any time since 1873. The total was about $10,000,000. Happily, however, the export of American tobacco was more than double that sum and has been so for many years.

RELIGIOUS.

Church News Gleaned During the Past Week.

Sabbath Sermons--Pastoral Points--Subjects for To-Morrow--General Notes--Gossip.

The religious news of the week is briefly given below.

PRESBYTERIAN.

At the Grand Avenue Church, the pastor, Rev. A. Nelson Hollifield, will preach to-morrow morning and evening as usual.

On last Sabbath eighty-one persons joined the several Presbyterian churches of the city, two of whom, mother and son, had been Roman Catholics.

The German Mission of the North Church in charge of the Rev. A. Van der Lippe will give a literary and musical entertainment, in both German and English, next Thursday evening.

Rev. Horace Bushnell, the blind preacher of Cincinnati, Ohio, died last Tuesday at an advanced age. He had been pastor of a mission supported by the Second Presbyterian Church of that city for over thirty years, all of which time he was totally blind.

Dr. Marquis, of Lafayette Park Church, has been for the second time elected to a professorship in the Theological Seminary of Chicago. He refused to accept a like favor one year ago, and it is not probable that he would have been tendered the position again had it not been known that he would accept. More, it is announced on good authority that Dr. Marquis will accept the professorship and enter upon its duties at the opening of the coming school year.

EPISCOPAL.

The Rev. Mr. Curtis, of Louisiana, has resigned his charge there and removed to Pittsburg, Pa.

Rev. C. H. Gauthier has been invited by the vestry of St. Peter's to assist the Rev. Dr. Berkeley, and has accepted.

Rev. Dr. Holland, of Chicago, is still in the city and will remain over Sunday, but will not preach any place to-morrow. He has been, while here, the recipient of very great social attention from his old friends and parishioners in St. George's Church, to whom he is greatly endeared.

Bishop Robertson will be at Mount Calvary Church to-morrow morning, in the afternoon at Christ Church to confirm a number of deaf mutes who are under the care of Rev. A. W. Mann, and in the evening at the Church of the Good Shepherd. On Tuesday evening he officiates in Montgomery City, on Wednesday evening at St. Charles, on Thursday evening at Clarksville, on Friday evening at Louisiana and on Sunday at Hannibal. He will be absent for two or three weeks visiting the parishes of his diocese.

BAPTIST.

Dr. Lofton will preach at the Garrison Avenue Church next Sunday morning. His theme will be "So."

Rev. Dr. Pattison, from the East, will preach at the Baptist Church at Kirkwood next Sunday morning and evening.

Rev. D. I. Purser will preach at the Park Avenue Church to-morrow morning on the subject, "The Great Marriage Supper and the Requisite Costume." In the evening his theme will be "The Sin That Peoples Hell." The pastor, Dr. Lofton, will administer the ordinance of baptism to several converts at the close of the evening sermon.

The series of meetings so long continued at the Park Avenue Church have been much interfered with by the inclement weather, but the results of the meetings have been marked. Some twenty professions of conversion have been made and a number of applicants for baptism are in waiting. The further continuance of the meeting will depend on the interest manifested at to-morrow's meetings. Rev. Mr. Purse will continue his services as long as the interest justifies him in remaining.

Y. M. C. A.

There will be a gospel song service at the Y. M. C. A. this evening at 8 o'clock.

There will be a gospel meeting, for young men only, at the Y. M. C. A. to-morrow afternoon at 4:30 o'clock.

On Tuesday evening Rev. Dr. Brooks will begin before the young men at the Y. M. C. A. a series of studies on the Tabernacle. The course will be a thorough one in its examination of the structure and its types, and will be illustrated by a large model of the Tabernacle imported from London.

Rev. H. F. Williams, who was the leader of the choir-music during Mr. Moody's great work here, and who is State Evangelist of the Presbyterian Church in Missouri, will preach at the Y. M. C. A. building on Eleventh and Locust streets, to-morrow evening, at 8 o'clock. Mr. Williams is a very sweet singer, as well as a preacher.

The last of the Association Hall concerts under the management of Mr. J. A. Kieselhorst will be given in Association Hall on Eleventh and Locust streets next Tuesday evening. Such eminent artists as Mr. Charles Kunkel, pianist, Miss Cuno, soprano, Mr. Louis Mayer, violincello virtuoso, and Mr. George Ensinger, saxophone soloist, will participate. The concert promises to be one of the richest musical treats of the season.

CONGREGATIONAL.

Dr. Harwood preaches at Lebanon, Mo., to-morrow morning and evening.

Rev. Mr. Dobson, of Mich., is in the city, looking for a location in this State.

The Third Church have added a cornet to their quartet choir to lead in congregational music.

The St. Louis Congregational Association meets at Hyde Park Church next Thursday morning at 9:30 o'clock.

At the Third Church, to-morrow morning, the pastor, Rev. Theo. Clifton, will preach on "Christianity a Revolutionary Principle; or God's Ways not Man's Ways."

Rev. Mr. Stone, formerly acting pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Lebanon, Mo., will be received into the Congregational Church of that place to-morrow.

The young people of the Third Church will give a literary and musical entertainment in the church corner Page and Grand avenue, next Tuesday evening as a complimentary benefit to the Ladies' Aid Society.

"The Fair Grounds' Mission is growing beyond the capacity of the rooms in which their meetings are held, and a new place for worship is being sought. The gospel services on Sunday evenings are very successful under the direction of Mr. J. A. Parker.

The Woman's Board of the Interior held a very full and profitable session at Pilgrim Church yesterday. The meeting was very largely attended, quite a number of delegates from abroad were present, and the meeting was thought to be the best yet held.

Rev. Wm. Barrows, D. D., will preach at Pilgrim Church to-morrow morning, and will lecture at the same place in the evening, on "The Game of Kings in North America." He will also deliver lectures on Wednesday and Friday evenings. These lectures of Dr. Burrows are of a series of six on "The Hand of God in American History," and are said to be very able and instructive.

At the First church, Delmar avenue near Grand, the times of the Sabbath services are: Preaching, 10:45 a. m., and 7:45 p, m.; Sunday school, 12 o'clock, noon. To-morrow morning the pastor, Rev. J. G. Menill, will take for his sermon subject, "Wayside Preaching by an Old Time Evangelist," and in the evening, "Evenings with the Doctrines; Some Aspects of Modern Biblical Criticism."

METHODIST.

Rev. Mr. Timothy, of Washington, D. C., the recently appointed minister of the Wash street church (colored) arrived in the city yesterday and will preach to-morrow morning and evening to his new congregation. Rev. J. W. Hughes, the former pastor, resigned because of ill health and will take a year's rest.

Rev. Chas. P. Masden, the recently appointed pastor of Union Church, arrived in the city from Scranton, Pa., Thursday morning and has been spending most of the time since in becoming acquainted with his new congregation. He will preach both morning and evening to-morrow at Union. The congregation have arronged to give Mr. Ramsden a reception at the church next Friday evening, and from the preparations that are making it will be a grand affair. Mr. Masden and family will occupy the residence, 3033 Washington avenue, vacated by Dr. Felton, the former pastor, until the new parsonage is completed.

CHRISTIAN.

The children's heathen mission collection will be held the first Sunday in May.

Bro. J. H. Garrrison went to Stansbury, Mo., to officiate at the dedication services to-morrow of a new Christian church just completed in that place.

Bro. B. W. Johnson, of the Christian Evangelist staff, will preach at the Fourth Church to-morrow evening, Mr. Jackman, a member of the congregation, speaking in the morning.

Rev. W. T. Tibbs, pastor of the First Church, who has been absent in New Orleans for several weeks, returned to the city this morning, and will preach as usual to-morrow morning and evening. Mr. Tibbs comes back much improved in health, and it is rumored that his congregation have been quietly arranging a reception for him shortly after his return.

METHODIST (SOUTH).

Dr. C. D. N. Campbell, associate editor of the Advocate, goes to Columbia to-night, and will preach there to-morrow.

The workmen at Centenary Church are making fair progress and the artist, Henry F. Houdt, is preparing to begin the frescoing.

Dr. Tudor will preach in the morning—subject: "Belshazzar's Last Feast." In the evening the Hon. and Rev. John Hogan will preach the sermon.

Dr. McAnally has gone to St. James, Mo., to attend the meeting of the Salem District Conference, in session there. Logan D. Dameron, business manager of the Advocate, is in Pataka, Ill., attending a conference session there.

IT was a wise one that said: "Every man is occasionally what he ought to be perpetually." That must be when he is honest enough to acknowledge the merits of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, the only sure cure for coughs and colds.

FIVE O'CLOCK TEA.

A littte gold turtle about the size of a half-dollar is a new design in lace pins. The clasp underneath makes it a snapping turtle.

White lace Jerseys to be worn over light colored silk waists are exhibited in the fashionable shops, and sell like the historical hot cakes.

Canary-colored and pink diamonds are now the rage. and ladies who possess them are not represented to be in a condition of sorrow bordering on tears.

Terra cotta sunshades are shown among the novelties in spring fashions. They have very long sticks and are just the thing for a girl to carry who wants to be conspicuous on the promenade.

The dismal black crow has been put forth as a substitute for the owl as a household ornament, and now is seen in the shop windows as large as life, and, if anything, twice or three times as natural.

Ladies who have made haste to purchase new spring bonnets are very much disgusted with the weather, which has not yet been of a kind suitable for straw headgear. But everything comes to the woman who waits.

Never before have French flowers attained such perfection as this season. The flowers of silk come in exquisite colors and tints, and it takes a Philadelphia lawyer to tell them from the real gems of the conservatory.

Fashion permits ladies who are in mourning to wear a bunch of violets on the breast, but fashion doesn't care whether the violets are real or imitation. That is probably the reason why so many ladies wear the artificial flowers.

Black Jerseys are universally worn by ladies in mourning. They are not only a convenient, but a stylish and becoming garment. Some of the newest are cut in battlements around the edge and have a small, turn-over collar.

Yellow having been decided upon for one of the fashionable spring colors, all yellow flowers will be in high favor. Therefore, look sharp to pluck from the florist's stall the pansy, crocus, buttercup, daffodil and golden-hearted daisy.

"Ma," she said, as mother and daughter sat together in the library. "I didn't see the Stugdles at the Vanderbilt ball, did you?" "No," said ma. "Well," do you think we ought to visit them any more?" inquired the daughter.

"I hear," said Mrs. Silvermine, "that Mr. Cash has bought a picture by Gerome for which he paid $10,000." "You don't say so," said Mr. Silvermine, laying aside the morning paper, "which of the Jeromes painted it—Lawrence or Leonard."

Talking of the Vanderbilt ball, Mr. Parvenu said to a friend in Delmonico's Saturday night that if he had been invited he would have gone in the character of Louis of Fourteenth street, and his wife would have appeared as Johan in the Ark!

There is a diamond at Tiffany's valued at $110,000, and it is said by those who know all about such things that it is the largest in this country. It weighs one hundred and twenty-five karats. Some silver-mining fellow's wife will probably buy it.

Some of Worth's newest costumes have on the skirt side panels of leather on which are worked all sorts of crazy designs. It's an odd idea and suggests that the ancestors of the wearers of such dresses might have been shoemakers in the "good old days."

"I say, Featherweight," said one "dude" to another, talking of the Vanderbilt ball, "who was Marie Stuart, anyhow?" "Oh," said Featherweight, "she belonged to the family of Stuarts in England—sugar refiners, or something of that sort, I believe."

What promises to be the most fashionable of the new bonnets is small and fits close to the head, and is ornamented with flowers instead of feathers. It is what might be called a very "cute" affair, and what is better than all, it is generally becoming.

However melancholy the fact, it is nevertheless true that tight trousers are going out of style among young gentlemen who carry the gentility banner. The "dudes" have decided to hold an indignation meeting on the front stoop of somebody's house on Fifth avenue.

When they told the "dude" that his father was ill and was not expected to live, he remarked in tones of distress: "Just my luck. I've ordered a new light overcoat, and only last week bought a dozen blue silk handkerchiefs."

Combination hose is something new. They are of parti-colored silk, one-half red and the other half blue and so on, all the colors of the rainbow and some not known in that celestial wonder being introduced. They are said to have been introduced for young women who sit on the piazza of watering place hotels.

At a dinner party a few days ago a young married lady who is celebrated for originality in matters of dress appeared in a black satin dress with a waistcoat or vest composed entirely of natural flowers. Only small flowers were used, and they were sewed on a foundation of muslin. The effect was "perfectly lovely."

TWO DUELS.

A Few Reminiscences of the Brown-Reynolds Encounter.

How an Editor's Wit Averted Bloodshed Between Two Men.

The very slight tinge of blood in the wind during the past week started a party of old residents discussing the duello of ante-bellum days in St. Louis. Up to the time of the Gratz Brown-Reynolds duel, the code was frequently resorted to, and pistols were the arbiters of many a trifling quarrel. The favorite field of honor was the willow-covered, sandy island now the most substantial part of East St. Louis, which is to this day known as "Bloody Island." After hastily passing over the sanguinary struggles and fatal meetings held on that historic spot, one of the party, with a preliminary laugh, told the story of the duel between B. Gratz Brown and Thomas C. Reynolds, both of whom survived the encounter to fill important public trusts. It was back in 1856 or 1857, and Brown and Reynolds had engaged in a bitter altercation in the courts, which was followed up by a bristling correspondence in the newspapers. Brown seemed to have a little the best of it in wielding the pen, and he finally goaded Reynolds to the point of sending him a challenge. Reynolds had for many years been very near-sighted, and could not see twenty paces at that time. Imagine the comments created when Brown accepted the challenge and named rifles as the weapons and eighty paces as the distance. This was manifestly unfair to Reynolds, and Frank P. Blair, who was his second, went to Brown to indignantly protest against the terms. Brown declined to make any change, whereupon Blair notified his principal that as a man of honor he was not bound to pay any attention to an acceptance of a challenge so palpably unfair. The quarrel was then renewed in the newspapers and a memorable interchange of stilted personalities followed, which resulted finally in Brown challenging Reynolds. The latter promptly accepted, and named pistols at ten paces as the terms of the duel. Ferd B. Kennett, Sr., now deceased, was chosen by Brown as his second, and David H. Armstrong was selected by Reynolds. One day Mr. Armstrong dropped into the then celebrated pistol gallery kept by Capt. Paul, the famous dead shot, of whom it is related that he would start a barrel rolling down an incline and fire seven consecutive shots from a revolver into the barrel through the bung-hole as it came into sight, and there found Mr. Reynolds practicing upon "the man-target." It presented the surface of a man of ordinary size and the bell was rung by striking a point supposed to be directly over the heart. Unobserved Mr. Armstrong stood behind Mr. Reynolds and observed that each time he fired he struck the figure below the knee on one of the legs. "Here, here, this won't do," said Mr. Armstrong, "I am not going out in the field to see a man murdered. You must do better than that, or I will withdraw from the affair." With that beaming kindness which has always characterized Mr. Reynolds, he replied, "I do not want to kill Brown, but I intend to shoot him in the leg and lame him, so that he will not forget the occasion." Mr. Armstrong was as good as his word, and declined to act further in the affair. The duel came off, however, on an island in the Mississippi River, opposite Kennett Castle in Jefferson county, Mr. Reynolds was shot through his hat, but Mr. Reynolds carried out his intention, and shot Mr. Brown in the leg, and to this day, although years have elapsed, the ex-Governor walks with a perceptible limp. Shortly after this a new Constitution was framed for the State of Missouri, and in it was inserted a clause perpetually disfranchising any person who shall engage in any duel, or in any way aid or abet the same by carrying the challenge, or acting as second, or in any capacity. The present Constitution has the same provision.

ONE THAT DID NOT COME OFF.

The reminiscence related above recalled a most amusing recollection of a duel that did not come off. McCullagh was at the time managing editor of the Democrat, owned by Geo. W. Fishback. The paper was fighting the Globe, and in a caustic paragraph the editor one day referred to ex-Gov. Reynolds as "a rooster." Mr. Fishback was seated in his office the next day, when he received a note from the irate subject of the paragraph, setting out that the term applied was opprobrious, and closing in the manner peculiar to the code, as practiced in South Carolina, announcing that a further communication might be expected on the following day. Fishback ran up to Mr. McCullagh, and showing the letter asked, "What in —— does this mean?"

McCullagh at once denied the import of the preliminary note, and said, "it means that Reynolds is aggrieved, that he will challenge you to-morrow, and you must either fight or run away."

"Now look here, Mac, I don't want to fight anybody. Is there no way to get out of this thing?"

The editor, for the life of him, could not see how the matter could be compromised, but the proprietor's distress was so evident that at last he said thoughtfully: "We might try to engage him in a philological discussion as to the term 'rooster,' and satisfy all parties that the term is really not opprobrious. We can at least gain time in that way."

Fishback joyfully acquiesced, and requested McCullagh to write the opening letter. This the editor did, and a four-page epistle was at once sent to the war-like ex-Governor. It is said that he read the letter over several times, first with a clouded brow, then with an analytical air, and then with evident amusement. He saw at a glance that he was liable to be engaged in a discussion in which the laugh would be altogether against him, and he concluded to let the matter drop. Mr. Fishback did not receive the second communication from his foe.

READ THE WANT COLUMNS.

Educating the Indians.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Lieut. Pratt, in charge of the Indian School at Carlisle, in a recent report to Commissioner Eaton says: We have returned from Carlisle about 150 pupils since we began our work. Two-thirds to three-fourths of these are exerting a most valuable influence on their tribes. Many of them are used by the agents in the schools and workshops and in the offices of the agency. We have an instance of a young Sioux who, after three years at Carlisle, has so fitted himself in penmanship and knowledge of office duties as to get a salary of $60 a month as assistant clerk. I would, however, revert to the original idea, and that is the absorption of the Indians in our population the same as that of all other races that come from foreign shores to us. We have upward of fifty millions of people and but 261,000 Indians, one Indian to every 200 of our race."

A Welcome Caller.

From the Philadelphia Record.

A dainty little girl of eight or nine years, with dangerous big blue eyes, appeared in the Library of the White House the other day when it was full of great men of one sort and another, and quietly waited her turn to speak with the tall, dignified gentleman with the gray whiskers and hair, and the sober face and courteous manner down by the bow window in the south end of the room. By and by her opportunity came. She tripped forward modestly, but bravely, and with a "Good morning, Mr. President," told her name and proffered her request. She was a niece of General Winfield Scott Hancock, and she wanted a few sweet flowers from the Executive conservatory for the Easter decoration of a little Episcopal Church. She smiled archly as she told her errand, as though she was sure of a favorable response. The President's tired face brightened with smiles as he turned from the tiresome politicians to the sweet little face before him. It was like a cooling zephyr from the Chesapeake on a hot summer's day. He told her honestly that he was very glad to see her and then he gave her carte blanche in the conservatory, and dismissed her with a pleasant word or two about his own little girl who does so much to lighten up his life in the White House. Her handsome uncle could not have done more for her had he been standing in Arthur's place.

COUNTERFEIT BRIC-A-BRAC.

An Old Dealer on the Degenerate Condition of the Furniture Trade.

From the New York Sun.

"I have been a dealer in old furniture and art curiosities—bric-a-brac is what they call it now—for more than thirty years," said a sexagenarian on the east side, "and have seen a great many sad changes, but what grieves me most is the present demoralization of taste in art matters, and the degradation of a large portion of our once respectable business. Deceptions in curiosities were often practised in the old days, but these, bad as they were, reacted upon the dealer only. Buyers used to demand genuine work and pay for it. At present men buy imitations as such; poor, miserable, weak imitations turned out by the thousand, and try to cheat their friends with them.

"A big, burly fellow asked me boldly last week for some cheap furniture in Roman and Pompeiian forms. He said, 'Such things give a fine tone, a flavor of antiquatedness to our homes.' Merciful gracious, flavor of antiquatedness! Why, that horrible brute was brought up on a three-legged stool. Yet, while he was talking he showed symptoms of wanting to sit down on that fine rococo dressing-table. My son was actually bullied into selling him for $6 a Mary Queen of Scots private bedstead he picked up in Avenue A. You would be surprised, sir, at the number of the fools who come here to buy things which never existed outside of European palaces. But imitations often suit, if the price is right. Here is a Venetian mirror. It is small, but genuine, and is very costly. Now, what makes a Venetian mirror valuable is the enormous amount of hand labor bestowed in grinding its bevels. They must be followed up through all their curves and arabesques, and finished with exquisite accuracy in every part. But what do you think of attempting to imitate such lustrous prismatic crystals by means of vulgar, dingy pressed glass? Yet such artistic shams are turned out by the thousand. They are fancy glass mirrors, of course, but they lack absolutely the one particular quality to which the genuine article owes all its wondrous beauty. The thing is base, sir, utterly base.

"In delicate cabinet work the same frauds prevail. This bit of Delafosse's handiwork is a case in point. The carving, you observe, is beautiful and is done with a sure hand. Try to do the smallest part of that work on round surfaces and you will see what I mean. Well, this box is worth $100. You may get the so-called elegant imitations for $3 50. It is all pressed wood work, glued up and stained. Its carvings are stamped in the steaming mill. There seems to be a constant, feverish struggle to make everything resemble something which it is not.

"Oh, no, I am not afraid of injuring trade by anything I may say upon this subject. When people are crazy after fashions of any kind no amount of reason enters into their calculations. The greater the deception the larger will be the sales. If the fraud is known to the purchaser he will not complain, provided the price is low and he thinks he can deceive his guests. In any event he gets the 'flavor of antiquity' for which he craves. Only last year the Cabinet Maker, an English journal, printed an advertisement offering for sale a recipe for making Queen Anne furniture. It sold well, judging from the quantities of the Queen's weak-legged chairs that are disposed of. People must know that they are buying imitations.

"In the matter of chairs, the recklessness of dealers is almost beyond belief. One of them sold a full set the other day—a full set, mind you—of Egyptian chairs, for a Fifth avenue dining-room. It reminds one of the man who bought the 'Life of Agricola' in two volumes, when what we know of him wouldn't make a common tract. In this case the goods were warranted genuine, and a high price was obtained. The set was of ebony throughout, yet the British Museum itself can boast of but six Egyptian chairs in all, and only one of them is of ebony. What were the imitations made of? Why, sir, of common beach wood. They boil it first in nitrate of iron, and then wash it with extract of logwood. That is the way to make real Egyptian ebony.

"Am I an undertaker? No, I am not; my partner bought that thing. It is a genuine Egyptian mummy case, made in good old Connecticut. When I entered the classic shades of Hartford last year, and pursued my way through innocent-looking hamlets to Fairfield and Saybrook, in search of tall clocks and Puritanic cabinet work, I perceived that the old State was not free from guile in the matter of furniture. A Fairfield deacon brought forward a couple of chairs which he said had been in an old Connecticut family for three generations. He would sell the set, six in all, for $125. While we were haggling, my man had been on a tour of inspection around the place. He soon breathed a few words in my ear, and business was closed abruptly. It appeared that the deacon's barn was half full of make-believe old furniture, which he regularly peddled out to summer visitors. The so-called relics which this wicked deacon spread before me were ingeniously deceptive. I saw imitation worm holes (bored with a gimlet) in his furniture; there were many indentations and false mendings, and the stamped brass mountings had been touched up with file and hammer to make them look as though made by hand. He had a cherry chest which I wanted to buy, until I saw that the bottom was clinched in with the Malleable Iron Company's patent horseshoe nails. Of course he showed a venerable chair that Putnam had sat in—they all do that. The old General must have rested often in his remarkable career!

"The mummy casket? Yes, I had forgotten. It is for a customer, and will stand in the corner of his library, labelled 'Rameses I.' I suppose. That man had a whole suit of plate armor of the eleventh century. Rare? Slightly. Plate armor did not come into use until the year 1300. Complete armor of even the fifteenth century is hardly to be found outside of the Tower of London. But the sheet-iron shops do a large business nowadays."

The Drink Habit.

There is no habit in the world which so completely takes possession of its victim as that of drinking liquor. The habit begins in a small way, and generally in youth. As it grows it strengthens in power, until it has the complete mastery of brain and body. Most men who are "moderate drinkers" say that they can stop when they please, and that they are sure they will not go too far. They rely on what they call their "will power." But to their sorrow, they find when they most need this power that it is of no avail. Then comes a desperate struggle, at a frightful disadvantage. The appetite for drink must be taken away, or it will drag its victim down to perdition. Thus far there has been discovered only one thing which will entirely overcome this horrible appetite. That one thing is Dr. D'Unger's Cinchona Rubra cure for drunkenness. It sounds like a romance when we read what this has accomplished in emancipating the slaves of drunkenness. But is is all hard fact and solid truth. That the "Drink Habit" can be cured is now a well-established certainty. A letter to Dr. D'Unger, 81 South Clark street, Chicago, will bring a reponse and full particulars.

HACIENDA LIFE.

The Pleasures and Profits of Rural Life in Mexico.

A Picturesque Description of a Great Mexican Plantation.

Hacienda or plantation life is a feature of rural Mexico, where estates are often of enormous extent, in some cases veritable principalities, upon which the owner rules with feudal sway over a docile and industrious peasantry. In a recent book of travel, "Mexico To-day," the author, Mr. Brocklehurst, gives an interesting account of his stay upon a hacienda belonging to the Tejira family, near Pulancingo.

We spent a most delightful week with the Tejiras. All the family learned to talk English, and we learned Spanish. Bishop and I were allowed to do just as we liked, and were only expected to present ourselves at meal times. If we wanted to inspect the farm or farming operations, Senor Tejira, or one of the gentlemen, placed himself at our service. Horses were prepared for us whenever we wanted to ride, or we were allowed to sketch unmolested, or to lounge the afternoon away on the hill at the back of the house.

The evenings closed in about six, and we generally spent an hour in the office, while the reports of the day were brought in by the head men, and a portion of the laborers received their wages. It was a lively hour. The lord of the hacienda is de facto, if not de jure, lord of his laborers. He had a prison in the hacienda, into which he puts them without ceremony, if he thinks it to their benefit. When the office work is completed, Tejira, or his administrator, holds a short court for dispensing small loans, doles of Indian corn, or advice, or medicine for the sick; for granting licenses for marrying, christening or other festivities, for settling disputes, and for all such matters as may naturally arise among a community of 400 or 500 people. At last the day's accounts were balanced, the office closed, and we all adjourned to the large reception room where Senor and Senora Tejira played and sang till supper was announced, about 9 o'clock. This over, the ladies retired, and the gentlemen indulged in cigars, and in singing to the accompaniment of a guitar.

The house arrangements were these: At whatever hour you rose you found chocolate and an immense basket of buns and sweet cakes in the dining-room. A painfully elaborate midday dinner was served about noon, and repeated again in the evening at 9.

The Tepenacasco hacienda estates is some twenty miles long, with a varying width of from five to eight miles, and contains some 40,000 acres. The house is a large one-storied building with two inner courts. On two blank walls of the principal court, round which there ran a handsome corridor, are two large fresco paintings, one representing St. James' palace with the guards in the dress of George III., the other was easily recognized as the garden front of old Eaton Hall, Cheshire. The outer court had a curiously tiled water-tank, and the surrounding buildings were devoted to cheese-making, butter and dairy work, under the superintendence of Don Daniel, the handsome man who enlivened us after dinner and supper with his guitar and his songs. Outside the private dwelling are the fire-proof granaries and sheds. Night and day a sentry is stationed on the flat roof, on the lookout for fire and robbers, and the large double entrance doors are always closed and barred if the doorkeeper leaves his post. All the windows have strong iron gratings over them, after the Spanish fashion.

Under the Spanish rule this hacienda was magnificently decorated and furnished. It was looted several times during the war of independence, and down to so late a period as the Presidency of Porfirio Diaz. It has been heavily fined, both in cattle and money, in successive revolutions, and the remnants of the gorgeous furniture, frescoed walls, canopied beds and broken couches bear melancholy testimony to its once magnificent condition.

The estate is chiefly in grass, cattle and dairy produce being its main sources of revenue. There are annually sent to market $12,000 worth of cheese, $4,000 worth of butter, and 15,000 bushels of Indian corn, 1,000 bushels of barley and 1,000 bushels of wheat are the average yearly produce of the ploughed land. Pulque to the value of $1,250 is made from the magueys to be drank on the estate. The cattle on the estate are: 834 milch cows, 180 heifers for breeding, 986 calves, yearlings and oxen; 163 mules for carts and ploughing, 19 mares, 17 horses, 200 pigs and 50 sheep for the use of the table. The estate contains 10 large dams or reservoirs for collecting water for irrigating purposes, which cover a space of 200 acres, in addition to which there is the Lake of Zupitlan, formed by a wall embankment a mile in length, and shared in by two neighboring haciendas. The estate boasts of a celebrated spring, San Dionisio, visited by Humboldt during his stay in New Spain. He calls it the best water in America. The water which flows from it belongs to the hacienda seventy hours in the week; the rest of the time it is diverted to two neighboring villages, the rights of each party being vigilantly guarded.

There are 100 able-bodied men and boys employed on the farm; these are directed by a major-domo, assisted by three captains. There are twenty herdsmen, each accompanied by a boy, who attend the cattle day and night, and there is an aguador, or waterman, who attends to the dams and water works. The major-domo, the captains and the overlookers always ride on horseback, this being one of the honors appertaining to their dignified position.

It was very interesting ten days; the weather was perfect, the air dry, the sun not too hot, and occasionally clouded. The time was July. If there was any drawback, it was from the 200 hogs which were yarded up every night, just outside our bed-room window, and if they were not let out at an early hour their music disturbed our slumbres. In order that they might be counted a small wicket only in the double doors was opened for them to pass through, one or, at most, two, at a time; the struggles and squealings were awful—first out first served. There were long troughs of whey ready for their breakfast in a distant yard, before the herdsman drove them up to the mountain to pick a precarious living, or sleep away the day.

All the principal granaries or barns, called trojes, were inscribed with titles or decorated with saints, and had quaint entablatures over their portals. Under the belfry and over the main entrance of the hacienda the inscription was:

En aqueste destierrey soledad disfruto del tesoro de la paz.

(In this retirement and solitude I enjoy the treasure of peace.)

Some old member of the Tejira family little knew, when he put up the above, how many times his property would be looted and ravaged during the wars of independence.

The cottages for the laborers were in a long row, at some distance from the main buildings. Each family had one room, some fourteen feet square. There was a stone for a fire-place in the corner, but no chimney, no windows. The family slept on mats on the bare ground. In the daytime they lived mostly in the open air. A good stream of dashing water in front of their doors enabled the women to do the family washing and keep a bright outlook at the same time on the eldest girl at the door of the house, lest she should make the family tortillas "not to the family taste."

TEAR AND SMILE.

"What are you?" said a tear,
To a smile playing near.
"With a flickering shimmer,
You transiently glimmer
On the meaningless features of mirth;
But you nothing express
Of the anguish and stress
That make up man's portion on earth."

"You are rather severe,"
Said the smile to the tear.
"For a day, to shine bright,
Needs a background of night,
So grief must be bordered with gladness;
And the light of a smile,
More than once in a while,
Helps a tear to unbosom its sadness."
JOSEPH DAWSON.

REVERSED WAYS.

Striking Contradictions in the Etiquette of Different Peoples.

From Chambers' Journal.

To remove the covering of the feet and not of the head is the mark of respect in the East. It is easy enough to see how the putting off the shoes on entering a house came to be a social observance very early in the East. The Orientals sit and recline on carpets placed on the floor or on a dais. This takes the place of our couches and chairs. To a Mohammedan gentleman, the dais, covered with its carpet and with its pillows and bolsters, represents house and home. Here he passes the greater part of his time; here he does his work, and here he receives his friends. This dais is his drawing-room, dining-room, bed-room. To come on to the carpet with shoes on after walking in the miry and dusty ways of the East would soon soil and dirty it. This is the main reason for the observance. But another doubtless is, that it would be very uncomfortable to squat down with your feet under you with hard shoes on; besides, it would soil your garments. It may be conjectured that one reason for not removing the head-covering is that most Eastern nations shave the top of the head only, letting the lower hair hang down long. Thus the hair is kept or worn in a manner suitable only to the head being covered. To appear without the covering is like a bald man appearing without his wig. Even in his own home, when a native removes his turban, he puts on a small light skull-kap. It would be a great mark of disrespect for one of your native servants to come before you without his turban and with only his skull-cap on; and without his cummurbund round his waist, it would be like a footman coming in without his coat. This difference of custom is no mere trifling matter, but has been a grave political question in India. The "shoe question" is one that has led to trouble between what are called the more enlightened natives and the English for many years past. The former claimed that when they wore shoes after the English fashion they should not be called upon to take them off on occasions of ceremonial visits or on public occasions. On the other hand, masters (English) in colleges would not let students enter their rooms, Judges (English) would not let native gentlemen enter their court-houses, without their first taking their shoes off. This was not from any personal arrogance, but from regard to their official dignity. To enter a place with shoes on is a strong mark of disrespect in the East, and they do not wish to submit to this. They claimed that one mark of respect or the other should be adhered to—that the men should either take off their shoes or uncover the head. Lord Lawrence, when Viceroy, had to issue a state injunction on the subject! It is strange to see the old Eastern custom still surviving among the Jews. The English Jew, who in all other places has accepted the English views and practice in the matter, keeps the modern tall hat on in the synagogue.

Langtry of Jericho.

From the Indianapolis News.

A remarkable scene occurred at Jericho school house, in Van Buren township, Shelby county, a few evenings since. There was a public entertainment, at which one feature of the programme was voting an album to the prettiest girl. There were two competitors, and the voting was so close that the manager determined to give an album to each one. When he called Miss—— a jealous miss behind her made a sneering remark, when the prettiest girl turned round and dealt her a blow between the eyes. At this they clinched and for a few moments the air was full of ribbons and things. The affair came near causing a general fight.

C. C. BLIVENS, Fairfax, Mo., says: "I have found Brown's Iron Bitters to be the most palatable and reliable preparation I ever knew."

If housekeepers want to keep their cooks good-natured they can do so by buying the "Royal Patent" flour, made by E. O. Stanard & Co. Every grocer has it.

Rare Old Relics.

From the Robertson County (Ky.) Tribune.

Chas. Dye has a looking-glass which was bought in Baltimore in 1780. It belonged to his mother, who presented it to him in 1862. It is still in a good state of preservation. He also has a walking-cane which belonged to his grandfather in 1791. Mr. Dye also has three chairs which were the property of his parents when they commenced house-keeping in 1792. He also has a brown jug which his grandfather purchased during the "Whisky Insurrection" of 1792. He alsoh as a gum lancet which belongedto the same man.

Died of Broken Heart.

From the Atlanta Constitution.

Death from a broken heart has taken place in Irwin county. Miss Lillie Wall was dangerously ill for several days, and the doctor quietly informed her father, Mr. Jasper Wall, that his daughter could not possibly live. Going to her bedside and viewing her sadly, the father said: "My darling child, you are obliged to die, but I only hope that I may die first." Shortly after he went into convulsions and was soon dead, followed three hours later by the death of his daughter.

POND'S EXTRACT.

THE GREAT VEGETABLE
PAIN DESTROYER and SPECIFIC FOR INFLAMMATION AND HEMORRHAGES.

Rheumatism, Neuralgia. No other preparation has cured so many cases of these distressing complaints as the Extract. Our Plaster is invaluable in these diseases, Lumbago, Pains in Back or Side, &c. Our Ointment (50 cents) for use when removal of clothing is inconvenient, is a great help in relieving inflammatory cases.

Hemorrhages. Bleeding from the Lungs, Stomach, Nose, or from any cause, is speedily controlled and stopped. Our Nasal Syringes (25 cents) and Inhalers ($1.00) are great aids in arresting internal bleeding.

Diphtheria & Sore Throat. Use the Extract promptly. It is a sure cure. Delay is dangerous.

Catarrh. The Extract is the only specific for this disease, Cold in Head, &c. Our "Catarrh Cure," specially prepared to meet serious cases, contains all the curative properties of the Extract; our Nasal Syringe invaluable for use in catarrhal affections, is simple and unexpensive.

Sores, Ulcers, Wounds, Sprains and Bruises. It is healing, cooling and cleansing. Use our Ointment in connection with the Extract; it will aid in healing, softening and in keeping out the air.

Burns and Scalds. For allaying heat and pain it is unrivaled, and should be kept in every family ready for use in case of accidents. A dressing of our Ointment will aid in healing and prevent scars.

Inflamed or Sore Eyes. It can be used without the slightest fear of harm, quickly allaying all inflammation and soreness without pain.

Earache, Toothache and Faceache. When the Extract is used according to directions, its effect is simply wonderful.

Piles, Blind, Bleeding, or Itching. It is the greatest known remedy: rapidly curing when other medicines have failed. Pond's Extract Medicated Paper for closet use, is a preventive against Chafing and Piles. Our Ointment is of great service where the removal of clothing is inconvenient.

For Broken Breast and Sore Nipples. The Extract is so cleanly and efficacious that mothers who have once used it will never be without it. Our Ointment is the best emollient that can be applied.

Female Complaints. No physician need be called in for the majority of female diseases if the Extract be used. Full directions accompany each bottle.

CAUTION.

Pond's Extract Has been imitated. The genuine has the words "Pond's Extract" blown in the glass, and our picture trade-mark on surrounding buff wrapper. None other is genuine. Always insist on having Pond's Extract. Take no other preparation. It is never sold in bulk, or by measure.

DOCTOR WHITTIER

617 St. Charles Street, St. Louis, Mo.,
A regular graduate of two medical colleges, has been longer engaged in the treatment of Chronic, Nervous, Skin and Blood Diseases than any other physician in St. Louis, as city papers show and all old residents know. Consultation at office or by mail, free and invited. A friendly talk or opinion costs nothing. When it is inconvenient to visit the city for treatment, medicine can be sent by mail or express everywhere. Curable cases guaranteed; where doubt exists it is frankly stated.

Nervous Prostration, Debility, Mental and Physical Weakness, Mercurial and other affections of Throat, Skin and Bones, Blood Impurities and Blood Poisoning, Skin Affections, Old Sores and Ulcers, Impediments to Marriage, Rheumatism, Piles. Especial attention to cases from over-worked brain. SURGICAL Cases receive Special Attention.

Diseases arising from Indiscretion, Excess Exposure or Indulgence, producing some of the following effects: Nervousness, Debility, Dimness of Sight or Perverted Vision, Defective Memory, Pimples on the Face, Aversion to Society of Females, Want of Pleasure in Life, Want of Ambition, Unfitness to Marry, Melancholy, Dyspepsia, Headache, Restlessness, Loss of Spirits, Pains in the Back, etc., are treated with unparalleled success. Treatment, without hindrance to business, safe, sure and permanent. Sent everywhere by mail or express.

Catarrh, Throat, Nose and Lung Disease. Liver Complaints.

It is self-evident that a physician paying particular attention to a class of cases attains great skill, and physicians in regular practice all over the country, knowing this, frequently recommend cases to this oldest office in America, where every known appliance is resorted to, and the proved good remedies of all ages and countries are used. A whole house is used for office purposes, and all are treated with skill in a respectful manner; and knowing what to do, no experiments are made. On account of the great number of cases applying, the charges are kept low, often lower than is demanded by others. If you secure the skill and get a speedy and perfect cure, that is the important matter.

In the Circuit Court City of St. Louis,
February term, 1883.
Friday, March 23, 1883.
Casper H. Minke
vs.
John Minke.
No. 238—April term.

It appearing from the affidavit to plaintiff's petition herein that the defendant is not a resident of the State of Missouri, wherefore, upon motion of plaintiff by attorney.

It is ordered that said defendant be notified that a civil action has been commenced against him, the object and general nature of which is to obtain a decree of partition and an order for the sale of certain real estate and a division of the proceeds thereof, said real estate being described as follows, to-wit:

Certain tracts, lots or parcels of land lying and being situate in the city of St. Louis, State of Missouri, being lots numbered nine (9) and ten (10) in city block 385 of the said city of St. Louis and State of Missouri, said lots together having a front of sixty (60) feet on the west line of Decatur street and running westwardly along the north line of Emmet street one hundred and fourteen (114) feet to an alley, said lots being bounded on the east by Decatur street, on the south by Emmet street, on the west by an alley, and on the north by lot numbered eight (8).

And unless he appear at the term of this court to be begun and held at the city of St. Louis on the first Monday of June next, and on or before the third day thereof answer the plaintiff's petition, the same, will be taken against him as confessed.

And it is further ordered that a copy hereof be published, according to law, in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, a newspaper printed and published in the city of St. Louis.

A true copy from the record.

Catherine McMullen
vs.
Patrick McMullen.

Now comes the plaintiff, by attorney, and it appearing to the court from the affidavit heretofore filed herein that the defendant is a non-resident of the State of Missouri, and it appearing to the court that the order heretofore granted herein has not been published, wherefore, on motion of plaintiff by attorney.

It is ordered that said defendant be notified that a civil action has been commenced against him, the object and general nature of which is to obtain a decree of divorce from the bonds of matrimony existing between plaintiff and said defendant, on the grounds of cruel and barbarous treatment so as to endanger the life of the plaintiff, and failure to support.

And unless he appear at the next term of this court to be begun and held at the city of St. Louis on the first Monday of June next, and on or before the third day thereof answer the plaintiff's petition, the same will be taken against him as confessed.

February Term, 1883,
Friday, February 9, 1883.
The St. Louis Railway Supply Manufacturing Company
vs.
The Kansas Rolling Mill Company.
Attachment.

It appearing from the affidavit attached to plaintiff's petition that said defendant is a non-resident of the State of Missouri, therefore, on motion of the plaintiff, by attorney.

It is ordered that the defendant be notified that a civil action has been commenced against it for the sum of six hundred and thirty-four 8-100 dollars, on account of money loaned, goods and merchandise sold and delivered to defendant, and failure of defendant to comply with contract to deliver to plaintiff ten tons of car links and pins.

And that its property has been attached; and unless they appear at the term of this court to be begun and held at the city of St. Louis on the first Monday of April next, and on or before the third day thereof answer to the action aforesaid, according to law, judgment will be rendered against it and its property sold to satisfy the same.

And it is further ordered that a copy hereof be published according to law in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, a newspaper printed and published in the city of St. Louis.

A true copy from the record.

State of Missouri, City of St. Louis—ss.
In the Circuit Court City of St. Louis,
April term, 1883.
Thursday, April 5, 1883.
Charles Green
vs.
Guy Briggs (a minor), Edmund B. Briggs (a minor) and C. B. Somerville.

It appearing from the petition herein, duly verified by plaintiff's affidavit attached thereto, that the defendants, Guy Briggs, Edmund B. Briggs and C. B. Somerville, are non-residents of the State of Missouri, therefore, on motion of plaintiff by attorneys.

It is ordered that said defendants be notified that a civil action has been commenced against them, the object and general nature of which is, by the first count of said petition, to reform and correct an erroneous description of certain lots of ground contained in a certain mortgage deed, and the record thereof in book 608 of the Recorder's office of the city of St. Louis, Missouri, executed by Edward B. Briggs deceased, so that the said mortgage deed and record thereof shall correctly describe and locate the real estate in and by said mortgage conveyed to one Thomas Sefton, his heirs and assigns, to secure the payment of a certain note in said mortgage deed, described, the property conveyed in said mortgage deed dated the 25th day of October, 1878, being situated in the city of St. Louis, Missouri, but described therein as follows, to-wit:

All and singular the following described real estate situated, lying and being in the county of St. Louis, State of Missouri, and in the subdivision known as the Briggs estate, according to the plat of the commissioners in partition, recorded in the Recorder's office of said county, in book 321, page 146, to-wit.

Lots numbered one, two, three, four, five and six, in block numbered one, which said lots front, in the aggregate, three hundred and forty-three feet and three and one-half inches on the Clayton road, and run southwardly to a twenty-foot alley one hundred and fifty-six feet and ten and one half inches, or on a line at right angles to the Clayton road one hundred and fifty-two feet six and one-half inches, and are bounded on the east by Edmund street, and on the west by Martin street. Also lots numbered eleven, twelve, thirteen fourteen and fifteen of block numbered three, which lots front in the aggregate two hundred and fifty feet on Briggs street and run eastwardly one hundred and fifty feet to a twenty foot alley."

And by the second count of said petition to secure a decree of the court fixing the amount due plaintiff, as assignee, owner and holder of said mortgage deed and note aforesaid, alleged in the petition to be the sum of $2,000, with interest thereon at the rate of eight per cent per annum since the 8th day of December, 1881. That by said decree defendants be forever barred and foreclosed of all right and equity of redemption in the property described in said mortgage deed as it may be reformed by the court. That all said property, or so much thereof as may be necessary therefor, may be sold to the highest bidder, for cash, according to law and the practice in such cases in this court, and that the proceeds of such sale, after payment of the costs of suit and sale of said property, be applied to the payment of the amount which may be found by the court to be due plaintiff under said note and mortgage deed aforesaid.

And unless they, the defendants herein, appear at the term of this court to be begun and held at the city of St. Louis on the first Monday of June next, and on or before the third day thereof answer the plaintiff's petition, the same will be taken against them as confessed.

And it is further ordered that a copy hereof be published according to law in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, a newspaper printed and published in the city of St. Louis.

A true copy from the record.

Sheriff's Sales.

SHERIFF'S SALE.—By virtue and authority of a special execution issued from the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court at the city of St. Louis, returnable to the June term, 1883, of said court, and to me directed, wherein the State of Missouri, at the relation and to the use of Nathaniel C. Hudson, Collector of the city of St. Louis, in the State of Missouri, is plaintiff, and Thomas Maycock is defendant,

I have levied upon and seized the following described real estate, situated in the city of St. Louis and State of Missouri, and charged with the lien of tax bill on which this action is founded, and described in said execution as follows, to-wit:

A lot of ground on a road, 47 feet 2 inches in front or width, and 150 feet in length or depth, being parts of blocks 23, 24, and 25 in Thatcher's addition to said city, and bounded on the north by real estate of one Carrow, on the east by that of one Mahone, on the south by a road, on the west by real estate of one Neves.

And I will, on

WEDNESDAY, THE 2D DAY OF MAY, 1883,

between the hours of nine o'clock in the forenoon and five o'clock in the afternoon of that day, at the east front door of the Court-house, in the city of St. Louis, State of Missouri, sell, at public auction, for cash, to the highest bidder, the above described property, or so much thereof as will satisfy said execution and cost.

TRUSTEE'S SALE.—Whereas Edward H. Hymers, by his deed of trust dated April 5, 1873, and recorded in book 471, at page 51 of the records of the Recorder of Deeds of the city (then county) of St. Louis, conveyed to the undersigned trustee the following described real estate, lying and being situate in the city of St. Louis, and State of Missouri, to-wit:

1. A lot of ground containing eighty (80) feet in front on Broadway by two hundred and eighty (280) feet more or less eastwardly in depth, bounded as follows: North by land formerly of Lambert Walters, afterwards of Brotherton, south by land formerly of Kingsland, afterwards of Brotherton, east by land of the (then) North Missouri Railroad Company on which the track of said road is laid, and west by Broadway, and being part of a larger lot of land conveyed to said Brotherton by Erastus Wells and wife by deed recorded in the Recorder's office of the city (then county) of St. Louis in book 287, page 43.

2. Lots Nos. one (1) and two (2) in block No. three of Leroy Kingsland's subdivision of a tract of about six acres of land in the northern part of the city of St. Louis, a plat of which subdivision is on file in the Recorder's office of the city of St. Louis, and which said subdivision is bounded south by land of Adolphus Meier, east by GingrasCreek, north by land of Brotherton and others and west by the Bellefontaine road, and said lots Nos. one and two containing together fifty-three (53) feet front on Broadway, and running back eastwardly to the alley as laid down in said plat, and together bounded as follows: south by Meier west by Broadway, east by alley and north by Brotherton or lot three in block three of said subdivision.

3. Lots numbered four (4), five (5), and six (6) in block number three (3) in Leroy Kingsland's subdivision, an addition to the city of St. Louis, a plat of which is on file in said Recorder's office, having together a front on the west side of Second street of eighty-seven (87) feet five and one-half (5½) inches and a depth westwardly of one hundred and twenty-one (121) feet, on the north line, and one hundred and nineteen (119) feet and ten (10) inches on the south line, to a twenty-foot alley, or to land of said Brotherton, said lots four, five, and six, together, being bounded north by Brotherton, west by the alley aforesaid, or land of Brotherton, south by Adolphus Meier, and east by Second street, the street on which is laid the track of the North Missouri Railroad.

4. A certain piece or parcel of land marked B on the plat accompanying the report of commissioners appointed to make partition in the case of Catherine Koehler et al. vs. Margaret Walther et al., which report and plat are of record in the Recorder's office of the city (formerly county) of St. Louis, in book 302, at page 328, and following, such piece or parcel fronting one hundred and forty (140) feet five and one-half (5½) inches on the west side of Second street, as located by said commissioners and shown on said plat, by a depth on its southern line of one hundred and thirty (130) feet two (2) inches to an alley fifteen feet wide, bounded east by Second street, north by lot marked C on said plat, west by said alley, and south by the southern line of the tract of which partition was made in the cause aforesaid. Also a certain strip, piece or parcel of ground fronting seven (7) feet six (6) inches on the east side of Broadway, by a depth of one hundred and thirty-six (136) feet seven and three-fourths (7¾) inches more or less to an alley fifteen feet wide, and being the extreme southern portion of another lot marked B on the aforesaid plat, said strip of seven and one-half (7½) feet being bounded on the south by the southern boundary line of the tract of which partition was made in the cause aforesaid, on the east by said alley, on the north by the remaining portion of said lot B, and on the west by Broadway.

5. A certain lot or parcel of ground marked C on the aforesaid commissioners' plat, said lot or parcel of ground beginning at a point in the west line of Second street as located by said commissioners and shown on said plat where the southern line of Yeatman & Holmes' subdivision intersects the same, thence running westward with the last mentioned line one hundred and forty-two (142) feet three (3) inches to the eastern line of an alley fifteen feet wide, thence southward with the eastern line of said alley forty feet to a point, thence eastwardly and parallel to the southern line of Yeatman & Holmes' subdivision one hundred and forty-two (42) feet three (3) inches, more or less, to the west line of Second street, and thence northwardly with Second street forty (40) feet to the point of beginning.

6. Lot three (3) in block three (3) in Leroy Kingsland's subdivision, filed in plat book 6, page 93, of Recorder's office of the city (formerly county) of St. Louis; said lot three (3) having a front of twenty-eight (28) feet three and three-fourths (3¾) inches on the east side of Broadway, and a depth eastwardly of one hundred and forty (140) feet to a twenty foot alley. The above conveyed parcels together fronting one hundred and sixty-eight (168) feet nine and three-fourths inches on east line of Broadway, and three hundred and forty-seven feet eleven inches on west line of Second street, bounded south by A. V. Meier and north by E. H. Hymers. Which conveyance to the undersigned was made in trust to secure the payments of certain promissory notes therein described, which notes were for the purchase money of the above described lands; and default having been made in the payment of certain of said notes, now, under the provisions of said deed of trust, and at the request of the legal holder of the said notes, the undersigned will sell the property above described at public vendue, to the highest bidder, for cash, at the east front door of the Court-house in the city of St. Louis, Missouri, between the hours of 10 o'clock in the forenoon and 4 o'clock in the forenoon on for the purposes of said trust.

WILLIAM C. JAMISON, Trustee.

TRUSTEE'S SALE.—Whereas the Douglass Bagging Company of St. Louis, by its deed dated August 5, A. D. 1882, and recorded in the Recorder's office of the city of St. Louis and State of Missouri, in book 680, page 327, conveyed to the undersigned trustee the following described real estate, situated in the said city of St. Louis and State of Missouri, to-wit: Lots numbered one (1), two (2), three (3), four (4), five (5), six (6), seven (7) and eight (8), in block number five (5) of Morton's addition to the city of St. Louis aforesaid, a plat of which addition is of record in the Recorder's office of said city, said lots being in city block number four hundred and sixty-nine (469), and containing in the aggregate two hundred and forty (240) feet front on the east side of Stoddard avenue as now or formerly, by a depth of one hundred and forty (140) feet to an alley, bounded on the west by said Stoddard avenue, on the north by an alley, on the east by an alley, and on the south by lot number nine (9) of said addition, together with all the buildings thereon, and all the fixtures, machinery of every kind and description, including softeners, pickers, carding-machines, spinning frames, looms, kreels, calenders, winding-frames, engines, boilers and attachments, tools, and all attachments and appurtenances to said factory, fixtures and machinery belonging and appertaining; also all stock and raw material in said building contained or elsewhere to said company belonging. Which said conveyance was made in trust to secure the payment of certain promissory notes in said deeds described; and whereas the said notes are past due and remain unpaid; now, therefore, at the request of the legal holders of said notes, one or more of them, and in pursuance of the provisions of said deed, notice is hereby given that the undersigned will, on between the hours of ten o'clock in the forenoon and four o'clock in the afternoon of that day, at the eastern front door of the Court-house in the said city of St. Louis, Missouri, proceed to sell at public vendue, for cash, to the highest bidder, the above described property, to satisfy said notes and the costs and expenses of executing this trust.

3Z A. M. GARDNER, Trustee.

SHERIFF'S SALE UNDER DEED OF TRUST.—Whereas, Ellert Hobbig and Hilke Hobbig, by their deed of trust dated the nineteenth day of March, A. D. 1868, and recorded in the Recorder's office of St. Louis county (now city), in book 379, page 236, conveyed to John Wilshusen in trust the following described tract, piece or lot of ground, lying, being and situate in the county (now city) of St. Louis and State of Missouri, to-wit:

Lot number nine (9) containing two acres and twenty-five hundredths of an acre in "Railroad Addition to Germantown," a plat of which said addition is of record in the office of the Recorder for the city (formerly county) of St. Louis. Said lot is bounded north by lot number eight (8), west by Switzer avenue, south by lot number ten (10), and east by Bidner, and being the same property conveyed by deed of Claus Wilshusen to the said Ellert Hobbig and Hilke Hobbig of even date.

Which said conveyance was made in trust to secure the payment of six certain promissory notes in said deed described. And whereas said notes remain due and unpaid, and the said John Wilshusen, said trustee, has departed this life without having completed the performance of the duties imposed on him by said deed of trust, and the Sheriff of the county of St. Louis having declined to act in place of said original trustee, and the Circuit Court of the City of St. Louis having made an order on the fourteenth day of March, 1883, appointing the Sheriff of the city of St. Louis trustee to execute said deed of trust in lieu and place of the original trustee. Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that at the request of the legal holder of said notes, and by virtue of the said order of court, and in pursuance of the provisions of said deed of trust, the undersigned will on between the hours of 9 o'clock in the forenoon and 5 o'clock in the afternoon of that day, at the east front door of the Court-house in the city of St. Louis, State of Missouri, proceed to sell at public vendue to the highest bidder, for cash, the above described real estate to satisfy said notes and the costs of executing said trust.

D. 1883, during the February term, 1883, of said court, in a certain cause then pending in said court, wherein Herman Hannibal is plaintiff, and George Hannibal, Joseph Hannibal, Regina Hannibal, Mary Hannibal, Catharine Hannibal, Christina Hannibal and Henry Hannibal, and Joseph Hannibal, guardian of said Catharine, Christina and Henry Hannibal, are defendants, being case No. 60,834 (room No. 4), the undersigned was appointed special commissioner in said case and directed to sell the following described tracts or parcels of land, situated in the city of St. Louis and State of Missouri, to-wit:

1. A certain lot or parcel of ground, situated in the city of St. Louis, State of Missouri, in block No. three hundred and forty-three of said city, having a front of eighty (80) feet on the west side of Ninth street by a depth of one hundred and fifty (150) feet westwardly of that width to a line parallel with Ninth street, being lot No. two hundred and thirteen (213) in said block, according to a plat of Chambers, Wright and Christy's addition on file in the office of the Recorder of Deeds for the city of St. Louis, Missouri, it being the same property which said H. Hannibal & Bros. acquired of Henry Hannibal, by deed dated May 10, 1877, and recorded in the Recorder's office of the city of St. Louis, Missouri, in book 573, p. 121.

2. A certain lot of ground situated in the city of St. Louis and State of Missouri, in block No. three hundred and forty-three (North St. Louis), beginning at a point in the east line of North Tenth street, in said block, distant one hundred feet from the southwest corner of said block, running thence northwardly sixty (60') feet along the east line of North Tenth street, thence eastwardly one hundred and fifty feet in a straight line, thence southwardly sixty feet on a straight line, thence westwardly one hundred and fifty feet on a straight line to the place of beginning; said lot of ground herein described fronts 60 feet on the east side of said Tenth street, by a depth eastwardly of one hundred and fifty feet, it being the same property which said H. Hannibal & Bros. acquired of Henry Hannibal and wife by deed dated May 10, 1877, and recorded in the Recorder's office of the city of St. Louis, in book 575, p. 29.

3. The following described piece or parcel of ground, situated in block No. 343 of the city of St. Louis, Missouri, beginning at the intersection of north Tenth with Jefferson street; thence running northwardly on said North Tenth street one hundred feet; thence at right angles and parallel with Jefferson street one hundred and fifty feet eastwardly, thence at right angles southwardly and parallel with North Tenth street one hundred feet to Jefferson street, and thence at right angles westwardly on Jefferson street one hundred and fifty feet to the place of beginning, it being the same property which said Henry Hannibal et al. acquired of Mary L. Tyler by dead dated September 8, 1856, and recorded in the Recorder's office of the city of St. Louis, Missouri, in book 177, page 539.

4. A certain lot of ground in block No. 576 of the city of St. Louis, Missouri, being lot numbered two (2), having a front on the west side of Eleventh street of twenty-seven feet six inches and extending west about one hundred feet to an alley, bounded north by lot now or formerly of Graham, east by Eleventh street, south by lot now or formerly of B. Mullanphy's estate, and west by an alley, it being the same property which H. Hannibal & Bros. acquired of Henry Hannibal and wife, by deed dated May 10, 1877, and recorded in the Recorder's office of the City of St. Louis, in book 572, page 208.

5. A certain lot of ground in block 576 of the city of St. Louis, Missouri, being lot numbered one (1), having a front on the west side of Eleventh street of twenty-seven feet and six inches and extending westwardly about one hundred feet to an alley, bounded north by lot No. 2, belonging to Hannibal Bros., east by Eleventh street, south by Hannah S. Biddle's estate, and west by an alley, it being the same property which Henry Hannibal et. al. acquired of Richard D. Lancaster and wife, by deed dated May 10, 1865, and recorded in the Recorder's office of the city of St. Louis, Missouri, in book 301, p. 194.

6. A lot of ground situated in block No. five hundred and seventy-five (575), of the city of St. Louis, State of Missouri, and described as follows: Commencing at a point in the western line of Twelfth street, eighty-four feet and three inches (84' 3") north of the north line of O'Fallon street, thence running northwardly along the western line of Twelfth street twenty-seven feet four and one-fifth inches (27' 4 1-5"), thence westwardly and parallel to O'Fallon street ninety-nine (99') feet, thence southwardly along the eastern line of an alley twenty-seven feet four and one-fifth inches (27' 4 1-5"), thence eastwardly along the southern line of the Conde tract ninety-nine feet (99') to the place of beginning, and being the east half of lot designated as lot No. 7 on plat recorded in book Z 2, page 337; it being the same property which said Henry Hannibal et al, acquired of James B. Clemens and wife by deed dated March 29, 1873, and recorded in the Recorder's office of the city of St. Louis, in book 468, page 166.

7. The following described lot of ground in the city of St. Louis and State of Missouri, to-wit: A lot of ground in block No. five hundred and seventy-five (575) of said city, fronting twenty-seven feet and six inches on Twelfth street, and running back westwardly one hundred feet, and bounded on the north by lot now or late of Octavia Boyce, on the east by Twelfth street, on the south by lot of H. Hannibal et al., and on the west by an alley, and being lot numbered six on plat "B" of the first report of the commissioners in making partition of the estate of the late John Mullanphy, deceased, among his heirs; as the same appears on file in the St. Louis Circuit Court, it being the same property which H. Hannibal et al. acquired of Henry Hannibal and wife by deed dated May 10, 1877, and recorded in the Recorder's office of the city (formerly county) of St. Louis, in book 570, page 255.

8. A certain lot of ground, situated in block No. 587 of the city of St. Louis, Missouri, bounded and described as follows: Beginning at the eastern line of Eleventh street, where the same is intersected by the north line of United States survey No. 3003, thence south along the east side of Eleventh street forty-eight feet and four inches (48' 4"), thence east and parallel with the north line of said survey one hundred and twenty-seven feet and six inches (127' 6") to a fifteen feet alley, thence north along said alley forty-eight feet and four inches (48' 4") to the north line of said survey No. 3003, and thence west to the place of beginning, bounded west by Eleventh street, north by lot now or formerly of Samuel S. Hawkins, east by an alley and south by lot of Gerhard Tangeman.

9. Leasehold.—The unexpired term of lease on a certain lot of ground in block No. 582 in the city of St. Louis, fronting fifty-five feet on Twelfth street by one hundred feet, more or less, and bounded northwardly by O'Fallon street, eastwardly by an alley, southwardly by lot leased to Henry Moeller, and westwardly by Twelfth street; said lease being for the term of ten years, commencing on the 1st day of July, A. D. 1868, and having been renewed for an additional term of five years, which will expire July 1, 1883, it being the same leasehold which Henry Hannibal & Bros. acquired of Hannah S. Biddle by lease dated July 1, 1868.

Now, therefore, under and by virtue of said above-mentioned order of said court, I, the undersigned, special commissioner, will on

WEDNESDAY, THE 18TH DAY OF APRIL, 1883,

SHERIFF'S SALE.—By virtue and authority of an execution issued from the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court of the City of St. Louis, returnable to the April term, 1883, of said court, and to me directed, in favor of B. Weitkamp and against Emil Winter.

I have levied upon and seized all the right, title and interest of the defendant in and to the following described real estate, situated in the city of St. Louis and State of Missouri, and described as follows, to-wit:

Lot being in block number four hundred and sixty-two (462) of the city of St. Louis, according to the Leffingwell map of said city, said lot being more particularly described as commencing at a point the intersection of the north line of Hickory street with the west line of Eighth street, thence extending westwardly along the said north line of Hickory street 46 feet 1 inch to a point, thence northwardly and along the eastern line of E. H. Ferguson's lot 135 feet 9 inches to property of A. Berthold, thence eastwardly on a line parallel with the north line of Hickory street 50 feet 6½ inches to Eighth street, and thence southwardly along the west line of Eighth street to Hickory street, the point of beginning, bounded north by property of A. Berthold, east by Eighth street, south by Hickory street, and west by Ferguson's lot, being the same property acquired by said Emil Winter of Christian Garrell and wife by deed dated the 15th day of May, 1866, and recorded in the Recorder's office county (now city) of St. Louis, in book 320, page 53.

And I will, on

between the hours of nine o'clock in the forenoon and five o'clock in the afternoon of that day, at the east front door of the Court-house, in the city of St. Louis, State of Missouri, sell at public auction, for cash, to the highest bidder, all the right, title, interest, claim, estate and property of the above named Emil Winter of, in and to the above described property, to satisfy said execution and costs.

THE WORLD IS GROWING BETTER.

The world is growing better!
Thought takes a wider sweep;
The hand of sturdy labor
With a friendly hand we greet;
We will not drink the bitter
When so little makes it sweet.

The world is getting richer,
In wealth brought from the earth—
But, better far, with treasure found
In mines of sterling worth,
For noble deeds are honored more
Than simple claims of birth.

The world is growing better!
With fewer musty creeds,
With more of human strivings
To answer human needs,
With precious harvests garnered
As the growth of precious seeds.

LOCHREY'S DAUGHTER.

A bevy of girls, grand-daughters of the aged lady of the mansion, were assembled for their usual summer visit at the old Beatty homestead. Acting out child-nature everywhere, they beset Grandmother Beatty one evening for a story, and when she assented, and gave them their choice among several incidents of her early days, they naturally preferred the following, as it relates to a wedding and a baby, two subjects of particular interest to girls of their age—twelve to sixteen.

She always began this oft-told tale in the same words of half apology:

"I heard it so many times when I was a child, and have told it so often since I became old, that it does seem as if I remember it, though that cannot be, for I was only fifteen months old when it happened. But it is just as true, girls, as if I could recollect it myself, for I heard my father and grandmother and others tell it over and over ever so many times. And so you will forgive me if I tell it just as though I remember all about it, for indeed I cannot tell it in any other way.

"I was born in my father's little log cabin just a fortnight after it was built, the 15th of April, 1781, and my cradle was a roll of bark with two crooked sticks for rockers. That was in Westmoreland county, Penn., at a place called Miller's Station, two miles from Hanna's Town. Both these places were destroyed by the Indians, and never rebuilt. They were not far from the present town of Greenburg.

"Those were years of war all over America, but the frontiers had the hardest of it, for the British agents kept the Indians stirred up and supplied with guns and ammunition. The Colonies had all the fighting they could do along the seaboard, and so had no help to spare to the borders. Countless murders of women and children were committed by the savages and hosts of people carried into captivity. Those were awful times on the frontiers.

"Well, the incident you have asked me to tell occurred on the 13th of July, 1872, when I was a baby just running alone nicely. There had been many settlers farther into the wilderness than Miller's Station and Hanna's Town, but gradually they had been driven back till our places were the last on the borders. Among the settlers thus returning were two Scotch families, who stopped and built cabins near ours, the Courlas and Dunlaps. Others also settled at Miller's until, with the great double mansion of Mr. Miller, the fine house of John Brownlee, and several smaller ones, we had quite a village.

"Mary Courla must have been a beautiful Scotch girl, for her praises were in everybody's mouth, and as I first recall her, though thirty years old, she was a lovely woman. And James Dunlap was worthy of her, few men ever equaling him in looks and bearing. It seems that love, like wild violets, blossoms in the woods as well as in the fields; and perhaps it is sweeter there than in the towns, where it makes so much gaudier appearance, like over-cultivated pansies. At any rate, James and Mary courted, loved, married and lived a great many years of wedded love, all in the borders.

"They were general favorites in our little settlemen,tand when it was whispered about that their wedding day was set, Mr. Miller went to James and invited him to have the wedding at the mansion and ask in a houseful. James assented, and when the day came, July 12th, it was a goodly company that gathered to see the lovers united. Numbers came from Hanna's Town, chief among them being Mrs. Hanna herself and her two beautiful daughters, the aristocracy of Westmoreland.

"In old times the wedding-day was the bride's day, and the next was the groom's, and was called the 'infair,' and this was a more festive occasion than the marriage itself. So you see my story happened, not at a wedding, really, but at the infair.

"Everything went merry enough until the middle of the afternoon. There had been dancing and playing and great glee after dinner, when suddenly, like a clap of thunder out of a clear sky, a terrible war-whoop burst on their ears and a host of painted savages rushed into the mansion. It seems they had attacked Hanna's Town about noon, most of the people escaping into the fort; and then, before anybody could get away to give us warning at Miller's, they had come unawares upon our place.

"Most of our people were captured. A few men who were mowing grass in the meadows and some who were at home in their cabins fled into the woods and escaped. All the wedding company were taken, the bride and groom, Mrs. Hanna and her daughters, John Brownlee and all his family but one little child, which was rescued by a young man and hid in a rye field, in all forty-five souls. Most of them were released and came home within a couple of years, among them the young married couple, but some were tomahawked on the march. Brownlee was one of these. He had been a leader against the Indians in several expeditions, and some of the red men recognized him and remembered with anger his bravery. On the retreat Brownlee was loaded by them like a pack-horse with a great burden of things they had stolen in our cabins; and he had taken in addition his youngest child, about my age, and so was walking beside his wife. At one spot he stooped slightly to arrange his load, when an Indian sunk a tomahawk in his brain. As he fell to the ground the same dripping blade cleft open the skull of the yellow-tressed little child. And as my mother (your great-grandmother), also in the line of captives, screamed at witnessing such a butchery, the monster who did it turned and hewed her down. Mrs. Brownlee saw the bloody deed and the death-throes of her husband and babe in silent horror, and from that moment was never sane again. She drifted along with the rest of the captives, especially cared for by Mrs. Hanna, at length reached Canada, and by British officers who pitied her condition was sent back to Westmoreland; a dozen years later she was yet silent, with hands always clasped and eyes fixed on the ground.

"But my own share in that fearful event remains to be told.

"My mother was at the mansion, and, as I said before, was taken prisoner and slain. My father had also been there most of the afternoon, but as my grandmother remained in our cabin in charge of me, a baby, he had stepped home for a few minutes to look after our welfare. It was at this moment that the warwhoop sounded and the attack began. A glance told my father that nothing he could do would avail to save my mother or rescue any but grandmother and me, if even this could be done. But as our cabin was at the farther side of the hamlet, at the very foot of George's Hill, he decided to try and escape into the thick woods a little distance up the slope. Catching me in his arms and taking his mother by the hand he hurried us toward the forest. Hardly had we started when the roving eyes of several savages spied us, and pursuit was instantly made. Grandmother was old and feeble, and the fright and haste almost overcame her, so that she could hardly walk. My father seeing this, and noting how fast the Indians were gaining on us, balanced in his mind which to give up and which to try and save, his mother or his child. And this question was settled when he reached the edge of the woods, for at that point he dropped me upon the ground, and, devoting all his strength to his mother, escaped the savages and reached George's Farm, a few miles distant. What would become of me he could not imagine, though he said that until darkness shut down, and he came back to search for wife and baby, he had constantly before his eyes a vision of my scalp of glossy ringlets in a red man's bloody hands. When night came he stole to the clearing to examine the state of affairs. As he crept out from among the trees and listened and gazed all was still, but not all dark. Below him at several points were glowing beds of coals, and the smoky air told him that the hamlet was not only bereft of its people, but burned to the earth. Wearily crawling down the hill he came first to the smouldering remains of the Courla cabin, next were the embers of the Dunlaps' little house, and next to this stood our own. But, as he approached, what was his amazement to discern, instead of a bed of ashes, the outlines of the cabin dimly seen in the darkness. A fire had been built against its walls, but owing to the green state of the logs it did not burn.

"As he stood before the open door thinking how much of love and happiness had been suddenly snatched from beneath its roof, a sweet, sad longing possessed him to enter. He did so, and by some instinct of his mind, or influence of a higher power, groped his way to the bed, where at that hour, but for the awful disaster, his wife and babe would have been peacefuly sleeping. Putting out his hands with almost a wail for his lost ones, what was his astonishment to feel a human form on the cot. With a shudder of mystery, hope and fear, he felt along—it was a living form, for it moved—it was a child's form—and lifting it to his breast his heart told him it was I, his baby girl, alive. And as he clasped me in his arms the events of the past six hours seemed like a horrid nightmare. But too sadly did he learn the reality of things before another day passed. Knowing the craftiness of the Indians he dared not remain long in the cabin lest some party of them, prowling to catch such returning settlers as he, might come upon him, so he carried me to the woods and waited for morning.

"How such a mere infant as I escaped and found my way back to the cabin was never known.

"As the dawn came, my father peered into the valley for signs of friend or foe, but none appeared; the little settlement was a deserted ruin.

"At broad daylight we crept from our hiding-place and cautiously wandered among the remains of the houses. At one point we found where the savages had taken their departure, and from some unaccountable inclination my father followed the trail. It led partly in the direction of Hanna's Town, along a stream called the Crab Tree. Hardly a mile had we gone when we came upon the gory forms of Mr. Brownlee and the child, and a few feet farther, among the wild crab trees, lay a sight more awful still—my own mother, dead and cold, lay stretched on the bloody ground. With uncontrollable sadness my father put me down from his arms, when instantly I ran to the lifeless form and began calling in a baby's way, "Mammy! Mammy!" But never again would the dear mother and wife answer to the voice of love.

"This was the sorrow of Jeremiah Lochrey, and this was his motive through many years when his name and deeds were such a power along the frontier and such a terror to the savages. You have often heard, girls, that your grandfather was a great Indian fighter, but he was led to such a life by his sorrow; not because he delighted in bloodshed, but he saw through his grief how he might save others from the cruelties of the red men.

"As I grew to womanhood, my father's fame gave me importance, and I was known far and wide as 'Lochrey's daughter,' a title which has always clung to me, and of which I confess I was never ashamed."

Reliable Report of the Latest Seaside Fashions Among the Mermaids.

From the Detroit Free Press.

Of course there are mermaids. The man who gets up and asserts to the contrary is mad because he never saw one himself. Mermaids do not live in mill-ponds, rivers or lakes, but make their homes in the green sea. Several attempts have been made to induce a band of them to set up housekeeping in Lake Erie, but the waters are too fresh and lake captains swear too much.

Those who have seen 300 or 400 mermaids agree in pronouncing them all that the most fastidious could desire. They have sparkling eyes, Grecian noses, small ears, delicate hands, white teeth, dimpled chins and swan-like throats, and the way they smile at an old widower is enough to melt the iron nails in the heels of his boots.

The genuine mermaid is half fish and half woman, and there is no more beautiful sight in the world than to stand on the ocean beach at sunrise of a summer's morning and watch a dozen of these creatures disporting in the flashing element. At one moment they dive down and secure handfuls of pearls to toss high in air—at another they fan each other with pieces of coral worth $600 per pound. Their sweet voices blend deliciously as they strike up their morning song, and their ringing laughter sounds to the man on the sands like the steady fall of silver dollars upon a golden bell. Now they swim seawards until almost lost sight of—now they are so close to the shore that it can be plainly made out that everyone of them is far better looking than the Circassian beauty of a traveling show.

While the life of a mermaid is full of pearls and coral and diamonds and grottoes and grand parties, we would not advise any young lady to make the change without proper reflection. In the first place, a young lady who is used to dry land would feel awfully damp for several weeks after becoming a mermaid. Then she would have to change her diet, costume, style of piano-playing and singing, and she would probably miss the young man who calls every Sunday evening. So far as can be learned from Paul Du Chaillu, Eli Perkins and New Bedford whaling captains, mermaids never marry. Once in a while an old widower of a Sea Horse comes spooning around after a second wife, but he gets his walking-papers with promptness and dispatch.

It seems horrible to think of a beautiful girl living single forever—for mermaids do not die—but nature's ways are ways of wisdom and everything is for the best. It was probably the intention to furnish them husbands from the sailors who fell overboard, but it seems that such sailors drown before the date of the wedding is fixed, and the mermaid is therefore doomed to warm her cold feet on a flat-iron and do her own marketing.

Of Course Not.

From the Detroit Free Press.

In the early days of Macomb county, this State, the next thing to town-meeting day was a horse-race, and any farmer who owned anything which could strike a gallop was always willing to put up at least a bag of corn on the result. On one occasion the wife of a armer named Cranage died the day before he was to ride his horse in a scrub race. The owner of the other horse of course heard of the sad affliction, and he rode over to condole with Cranage and said:

"The funeral will come off to-morrow, I suppose?"

"Yes, to-morrow afternoon."

"And of course you want the race put off for a few days?"

"Of course I don't!" was the emphatic reply. "Martha was a good wife, and I'm sorry to lose her, but after she has been buried I can do no more for her. In fact, her last words to me were to beat you out of them five bushels of turnips if it killed the hoss, and I shall feel as if she were looking right down upon me at every jump. Funeral at sharp 2—race comes off as soon as we git back from the graveyard!"

KING OF SLAVE TRADERS.

Sebehr Pasha's Life at Cairo--His Wives and Children.

Cairo Cor. St. James' Gazette.

Sebehr Pasha has been described by Col. Gordon as the king of the slave traders. Some six years ago he kept up a princely court in the Soudan, and at the head of his bands of armed slaves waged war with whom he listed. Visitors to these remote parts he received royally. Dr. Schweinfurth has described the chieftain's halls of state, "the regal aspect of which was heightened by the introduction of some lions, secured by massive chains." But Sebehr having conquered Darfur and killed the Sultan of that state and his two sons, made the mistake of coming to Cairo to claim from the Khedive the Governorship of that province. He brought with him, it is said, a hundred thousand pounds, "with a view of bribing the Pashas." It is hard to think so much good money should go for nothing, and perhaps the "Black Pasha's" pounds proved useful to him in another way than he had imagined. They did not secure him the Governorship of Darfur, but they very possibly saved his life. There can be no doubt his sins were as scarlet; and as a matter of fact the sentence of death was passed upon him. The sentence, however, was not carried out; he was pardoned and--pensioned!

Sebehr is not allowed to leave Egypt, but, living in Cairo, is allowed—if rumors concerning his quiet practices in the way of slave-dealing are to be believed—to do a great deal too much as he likes. He lives in a large, old, isolated country house, on the outskirts of the town—such a quiet, secluded-looking place that in passing under the gateway, and, above all, in crossing the shaded paths of the walled garden, I was strangely reminded of a convent garden I knew in my school days. The atmosphere of the "Black Pasha's" reception-room was not, however, as the school "parloir" was, redolent of lavender. A peculiar odor of rancid butter, tempered by tobacco, greeted one at the threshold, and, I may say, pursued one up the winding staircase into the ladies' apartments, where it grew even stronger than ever. Sebehr Pasha, though fallen from his royal estate, has royal ideas still; so, where other people find one harem enough, he has three or four harems, and each contains wives and attendants upon these wives beyond counting. But clever people here will have it that Sebehr, like any other good Mussulman, has only three wives of his own, or at most four; but this was said to be utterly false by the person who introduced me to the harem. I was assured that all the women I saw there were either Sebehr's wives or their slaves, and all the babies and small children about the palace were the Pasha's own. The directress or ruling wife of the first harem I entered was an old lady of handsomer features and paler color than generally belong to her race. She wore a large fur-lined cloak or dressing-gown over a crimson petticoat, and a white muslin coif concealing her hair and brow. She introduced a very good-looking young negress as "the Pasha's last wife," and made us pronounce our opinion upon her eyes, her teeth, etc., and seemed highly delighted by our complimentary admissions that we were surprised by so much beauty. About half a dozen other women stood round—all negresses, but pleasant, kind-looking creatures, in no way resembling the coal-black eunuchs and women with equally repulsive countenances whom I have seen in one or two households at Cairo as domestic slaves, purchased in the Soudan, but who must, I find, have been captured in the equatorial provinces. After a time the directress of the harem called in other female slaves, dressed in one garment, somewhat resembling the Indian chuddah, but of wool instead of linen. The newcomers were evidently of a different race; they were smaller, slighter women of finer features but without the large good-looking eyes and bright expression of the first negresses. All the women had the same hair—short, twisted rings of black or brown wool, hanging over their heads in an accidental manner, with desert patches between each ringlet. Having gone through the usual ceremony of drinking coffee and refusing cigarettes, I was ushered into another apartment, and there was introduced to an undoubted wife of the Pasha—a white slave (speaking comparatively) purchased at Stamboul. The poor girl was dressed in what she imagined to be European fashion. She wore a green satin skirt adorned with rose-colored bows, and a sort of scarlet garibaldi. Her strange attire could not make her otherwise than pretty and graceful; and I remarked that, while all the other women were as merry as could be, the poor white slave-wife seemed very melancholy, and meek moreover, as though she were made to feel the cost of the Pasha's favor. Before leaving this harem I was earnestly entreated by the old lady of the fur cloak to take her portrait, and to be sure to make her good-looking, and not to omit from the picture her silver snuff-box, which she held out for my inspection as she said farewell.

We had to cross the orange-scented garden again and climb another narrow flight of stairs before we reached the second harem. Here again, no doubt, we were presented to a real wife of Sebehr's—a little dark sad woman of the same type as the second set of slaves introduced to me before. When Sebehr started for Cairo on his ambitious scheme for obtaining the Governorship of Darfur, he left his wife in the Soudan; and it is proved that, in spite of the many claims upon him as a husband, he held this little dark woman in his affections, for he sent for her when he found that he could not leave Cairo, and for her child, although this child was a girl. The little maiden, aged about seven, waited on us most courteously—brought us cups of lemonade, and offered us the gold-edged napkin to wipe our mouths. I asked, through my interpreter, if the little girl were the only child, and received the answer, there had been a son, but he was dead, in such a bad tone that I dared not press my inquiries further, but made up my mind that this was the mother of Suleiman, Sebehr's son, spoken of by Colonel Gordon as "the cub," and most justly put to death by Gessi Pasha for his persistent continuation of the slave trade. Leaving this melancholy little black wife, we were led again across the garden into another harem or set of women's apartments. Here the women seemed of a less ornamental sort. Some were cooking, many of them nursing babies. One of them at sight of me ran away screaming and hid herself behind the door. Curiosity, however, being stronger than alarm, she could not resist occasionally peeping out from her hiding-place to take notes of so strange a creature's behavior.

ARTIFICIAL STONES.

Tricks of the Trade That Sometimes Puzzle the Experts.

From the Philadelphia Press.

"Is the manufacture of imitation stones carried on to any extent in this country?"

"Well, there are imitations and imitations, you know. Nearly all the paste comes from France, as it can be produced much cheaper there than here. Five-sixths of the paste sold under various names would not deceive a child. It is bought and sold by the quart, one might almost say, for a mere song, and looks like just what it is—glass, and often bad glass at that. Now look at this," and as he spoke the dealer held out at arm's length with a pair of dividers what appeared to be a fine two-carat brilliant, just a shade off color. A close inspection showed that the lower half of the stone was cased in a tiny metal cup. "Now, no one but an expert can say whether that is a genuine brilliant or not. As a matter of fact, it is a foiled paste, and worth in trade less than a dollar. The foil is placed between the lower part of the stone and the cap or covering, but when the work is well executed it takes an expert to detect its presence. There is even a more artful and effective way of stimulating the diamond, but I am pleased to say for the credit of the trade that the counterfeit is rarely made up in this country.

"The doublet, as it is called, is made by fixing a slice of thin diamond, a worthless cutting from a large stone, on the table of a brilliant with invisible cement. A piece of glass is then affixed to the bottom of the false stone, which is cut flat, not to a point. This gives a real diamond surface to the top of the stone, so that the file-test will not touch it. These false stones are almost exclusively used for the purpose of defrauding people, and you will rarely come across one even in the trade. Emerald, ruby and sapphire doublets are used freely, and it is almost impossible for the unpracticed eye to detect them. Do not misunderstand me, they are not sold as genuine, but as imitations, and very beautiful they are. A garnet is used as the top layer, and blue or green glass is affixed to the bottom of the stone, according to the natural color of the assimulated stone. Here is a magnificent specimen of a scarce gem," said the lapidist, taking an oval-cut green stone, with a rich russet tinge in it, from a drawer in his private cabinet. The stone weighed perhaps six carats, and possessed much brilliancy. "It is called an Alexandrite," said he, "and is found in Siberia. This gem is remarkable and valuable because, while by daylight it is green, as you see it now, by gaslight it is a full rich purple in color. Here is a remarkable gem;" and the lapidist took up a beautifully cut stone that was yellow on the face and pure white underneath. "That is a specimen of the two-colored sapphire, and is very rare."

A yellow beryl, found at Avondale, Pa., a large piece of chalcedony, holding imprisoned about a gill of water; a piece of quartz, with hornblende in it; another piece showing plainly a spray of rutile, and many other curiosities Mr. Beach showed his visitor, and, but that he was continually being called away to weigh this stone, value that, or give an opinion as to the identity of another, he was courteous and obliging enough to have shown every stone in his cabinet.

KING AND POOR.

Francis Joseph Washes the Twenty-Four Old Men and Women.

From the London Standard.

The Hofburg, the chief palace of the Austrian sovereigns, has been the scene of an ecclesiastical ceremony or act of devotion which is a curious relic of mediæval customs. In accordance with a usage observed from time immemorial on Maundy-Thursday the ceremony of "Washing the Feet of the Poor" was this morning performed as usual by their majesties at the imperial residence. In the Middle Ages the custom prevailed at many other Catholic courts, but in the present day to find a parallel would be impossible, except at the Vatican and the palace of the King of Spain. The proceedings opened at 9 o'clock, when twelve old men, of whom the oldest is in his ninety-third year and the youngest eighty-seven, and twelve old women, the oldest ninety-six and the youngest ninety, dressed, as usual, in the old German costume, presented to them by the Emperor and Empress, entered the court chapel in order to receive the sacrament, and were then brought into the hall of ceremonies at the Hofburg. On each side of the hall was a table with twelve covers, the one table for the old men and the other for the old women. They are all citizens of Vienna, and many among them showed by their behavior that they have taken part in the ceremony more than once. With the appearance of the clergymen at 11 a. m. the ceremony began. The Emperor, who was followed by all the Archdukes present in Vienna, served the old men, and the Empress, followed by all the Archduchesses and court ladies, served the old women at their respective tables. The Corps Diplomatique was, as usual, in attendance, but this year, for reasons generally known, the British, French and Turkish Ambassadors did not appear. All the Ministers were present, as well as court dignitaries and Privy Councillors, the Chamberlains, the Grand Masters and the highest representatives of the army. The tables being removed, the Emperor and Empress knelt down in front of each of the old people, took off a shoe and stocking from each, washed the foot with towels moistened from a golden ewer, held by a chamberlain. After the feet of the old people had been wiped the Archdukes and Archduchesses replaced the shoe and stocking, and their Majesties concluded the ceremony by hanging round the neck of each of the old people a purse with thirty silver florins. The old folks were then sent home in cabs, each with a well filled box of provisions and wine.

"ROYAL PATENT" flour is made by the gradual reduction system with rolls, and is vastly superior to the old style of mill-stone grinding.

Children's Compositions.

From the Crete (Neb.) Literary Notes.

The latest revelations of infant genius brought forth in the composition class are found in the small American citizen of African descent, who, on being required to write a slate "pencil-talk" on "Winter Sports," brought forth: "We see the Sports walking down Baltimore street every pleasant day in Winter." A young candidate for Congress, of the superior race, down in Virginia, tried his hand at the subject given to the higher class, "Enterprise," and read aloud the following: "Enterprise is a good thing. Columbus enterprised America. If Columbus hadn't done it we should be nowhere, for nobody knew anything about America but the Indians, and they wouldn't tell."

FASHION NOTES.

From the New York Sun.

The leading bonnet is the gable-roof 'poke.

Only out-door costumes are made of cachemire des Indes.

Black lace bonnets are restored to their former popularity.

Old gold, shot and barred with blue, appears in many spring fabrics.

Smoky pinks, green, blue and various neutralized tints are in high favor.

None but tall and slender women can wear large square and large plaid fabrics.

Spanish laces are not so exclusively fashionable this spring as they were last.

Blue and colors, shot with tints to produce opaline effects, bid fair to be much worn.

In spite of the unfavorable weather both here and in Paris, spring costumes are being worn.

White cashmere serge dresses, worn without a touch of color, are stylish for the house.

Cachemire des Indes is the high novelty fabric for parts of or entire costumes and entire visites.

Large squares and plaids will be made up in combination with plain goods, showing the same base of color for the ground.

A Paris correspondent says that in an hour's walk in the Bois de Boulogne, at the fashionable hour, one sees more than a hundred different new costumes.

The fob chain, or rather ribbon, with seal or watch key attached to it by a slide or buckler, is now the only indication that a gentleman wears a watch on any occasion under gas light.

At the Louvre, Bon Marchè, and other leading Paris houses, on opening days, visite mantles have been shown that are made of velvet gauzes, trimmed with rows of lace, beads and chenille.

Tailor-made dresses grow in popular favor. They will be worn for lawn tennis and croquet parties for the house, the seaside and mountain use, and in all colors, light and dark, white, black and tinted, according to occasion, time and place.

The prevailing colors this spring lead one to suppose that the color artists who designed them probably paid a visit to the kitchen and watched the cooks as they prepared crushed strawberries and raspberries, chopped carrots and beets, or mashed pumpkins and squashes.

HOME THOUGHTS FROM ABROAD.

Oh, to be in England,
Now that April's there,
And whoever wakes in England,
Sees, some morning unaware,
That the lowest boughs and the brush-wood sheaf
Round the elm tree bole are in tiny leaf,
While the chaffinch sings on the orchard bough
In England—now!

And after April when May follows
And the white throat builds, and all the swallows—
Hark, where my blossomed pear tree in the hedge
Leans to the field and scatters on the clover,
Blossoms and dewdrops—at the bent sprays' edge—
That's the wise thrush; he sings each song twice over
Lest you should think he never could recapture
The first fine careless rapture,
And though the fields look rough with hoary dew,
And will be gay when noontide wakes anew
The buttercups, the little children's dower,
Far brighter than this gaudy melon flower.—

ROBERT BROWNING.

THE HUMAN TUMBLER.

The Mysterious of Somersaults Explained by an Expert.

From the New York Morning Journal.

"More people go into tumbling than into any other line of circus business," said a performer, a brawny, big-limbed lusty fellow, standing in the dressing-room of Barnum's show. He had just vaulted over five elephants, and was brushing the sawdust from his knees. "An ordinary tumbler gets $35 a week; an extraordinary one, $50. A leaper who is able to turn a double, back spiral corkscrew pirouette over four elephants on the ground, and one elephant in mid-air, standing on a tub, may command $75 a week, which is increased to $100 when he does a trapeze act."

"How does one learn the business?"

"I will tell you how I learned it. My experience, in part, is that of many. When I was a green country boy I dropped corn for six cents a day and sold wild blackberries for three cents a quart to get money to go to a circus with. I looked forward to the show for four months; talked about it daytimes and dreamed of it nights. I walked five miles into town to see the circus and seven miles out of town to meet it. I went into the side-show. I saw the anaconda, the bearded woman, and the educated hog which could spell backwards and forwards and was immensely better in figures than I was. I went into the circus. Such riding! I was delirious with joy. When the trick mule came out I got on his back, just as the regulation drunken man belonging to the circus made a broad swathe through the crowd at the front door and fell over against the ropes. I clung to the mule like grim death. He bucked with me. He backed me against the center-pole. He rolled over and over in the ring and wiped up most of the sawdust with me. The clown lifted me off. When I came to my senses the clown was bending over me. I was in the dressing-room just as I am now."

"He's a plucky chap," said a man in tights. A half dozen other tights and spangles said I was a plucky fellow, and then the first man asked me to travel with him. I had made arrangements to go to sea with the captain of a canal boat. I broke my romantic engagement with the captain, and when the circus left town I went away, covered with plasters, in the band wagon.

"The man said he would take me as an apprentice for four years. This is the regular time to serve at the present day. Sometimes circuses take apprentices. Sometimes performers take them. The conditions are the same. Circus actors invariably begin to learn their art when children. It is useless for any one to try to become a performer after he has grown up. I never knew such a one to succeed. My teacher and patron gave me my board and clothes, some spending some money, many whippings, and when I had become a little proficient drew my salary along with his own. I practised an hour a day. Longer practice is hurtful. I first learned to balance myself on my hands; then to turn a back somersault, it being an easier somersault than a front one. Then in turn I learned flip-flaps, hand-springs, forward somersaults, rows of forward somersaults, backward somersaults in rows, progressive and retrogressive flip-flaps, and at last the round-off flip-flap and twister combined. This feat belongs to cross-tumbling, the most difficult kind. Not every performer does it. A flip-flap is turned by throwing yourself on your hands on the very spot your feet were a moment before and then springing to an upright position. To throw yourself on your hands a yard or so from where you stand is a 'lob-gob.' Only amateurs do it. A professional can turn twenty-four flip-flaps in succession on a space inches square.

"It took me two years to learn the routine of tumbling and five years to become proficient. I never lost practice for a single day. In winter I performed my feats every afternoon in the circus barn."

"Is it hard to turn a somersault over five elephants?"

"It requires great nerve and entire self-confidence. If a man loses his self-confidence he will never do it. Sometimes we fail because we do not strike the spring-board right; sometimes because we do not take the right step. I never knew of any accident to a tumbler more serious than a sprain or the breaking of his arm. I have noticed that short men make better artists than tall ones, and that alertness is a greater requisite than strength. When the men run down the spring-board the least skillful tumbler always comes first, a less skillful second, and so on; the best tumbler comes last."

"Is it possible for a crosseyed man to turn a somersault over five elephants?"

"Emphatically, no!"

"Are any performers trying to learn to turn a triple somersault?"

"Yes. It has already been done, but never satisfactorily. It is impossible to get command of the third somersault. An expert performer sometimes hits upon it by accident, but it is never sure. In the third somersault one whirls around three times as he does in the first one and it is only by chance that he may strike on his feet or keep on his feet when he does strike. In a double somersault you go round twice as fast the second time as you do the first."

"Is the art of tumbling developing?"

"We now turn a double back somersault from a man's hand. A few years ago only one somersault was turned in this way. Half our art consists in grace with which we do our feats. The style of the tumbler is one of the principal points on which he is judged by professionals. No two tumblers do the same thing in the same manner. For instance, one man begins a round-off with one hand, in this way; a second, with the other hand in another way."

"Are there different kinds of single somersaults?"

"We have four. They are called divers, tucks, twisters and pirouettes. The first is, excepting the plourette, the most difficult. In performing it the tumbler projects his body at full length into the air like a diver, and does not turn till almost over the cushion. In the second he leaps straight up from the springboard, he gathers himself up like a ball and goes over at once. In a twister he turns his body in such fashion that he alights with his face toward the springboard. In a pirouette he twists himself twice as much as in a twister."

"Do you think of any interesting fact connected with your profession?"

"Yes, there are more religious people among the tumblers than in any other line of circus performers, save only the lady riders."

A Widow's Luck.

From the Philadelphia Times.

Even in the selfish hurry of modern life people some-times live long enough to feel the force of retribution. A few weeks ago a widow living near Honesdale married a traveling salesman, sold her house, and, leaving her four small children asleep in bed, left for the west. The children were cared for by the Directors of the Poor of Honesdale. Last week the woman returned home penniless and penitent. She had been robbed of her money by her husband in Chicago and had been forced to beg her way home. Her friends refused to receive her. Justice is not always tempered with mercy.

BROKEN-HEARTED.

A Mother Falls Dead on Recognizing Her Daughter in a Prison.

From the New York Mercury.

The sudden death of a lady occurred in the office of the Penitentiary on Blackwell's Island under most peculiar circumstances. About two months ago a young and rather handsome girl named Kitty Burns mysteriously disappeared from her home in Jersey City. At first, when the parents missed their daughter, they did not become seriously alarmed as to her safety, thinking that perhaps she had gone on a visit to relatives residing in this city. But after a week the police were notified, and special detectives were sent in all directions, but no clue could be obtained. Mr. Burns decided at last to visit the New York morgue, but no corpse answering the description of Kate Burns had been received there. Keeper White, who noticed the old lady turn away with tears in her eyes, asked her if she had inquired at any of the hospitals. She answered that she had not. Mrs. Burns returned home, but becoming impressed with the question asked by Mr. White, Tuesday morning left home in Jersey City and came over here again. Commencing down town, each institution was visited until Bellevue was reached. Here Mrs. Burns was told to go over to the Charity Hospital on Blackwell's Island. The register of patients at the Charity was gone over, and each patient in the female wards scrutinized, but the girl was not among them. It was now late in the afternoon, and as Mrs. Burns was on the point of giving up her search she remarked, despairingly, to the orderly who escorted her from the place, "It's no use; I can never find her." The orderly told the lady that perhaps the girl might be found among the prisoners in the Penitentiary. But the mere suggestion was scouted by the lady as impossible, but as Mrs. Burns was going down the steps of the hospital to the boat-landing, preparatory to leaving the island, she reconsidered the orderly's suggestion and decided on visiting the Penitentiary. Entering the prison office, she gave the name of the person of whom she was in search. The clerk looked through the books, but could find no such name as given. A description of the girl was then asked, and the matron said there was a girl in the prison answering the description, but she did not think it was the one wanted, because she was a thief. Mrs. Burns, however, was requested to take a seat and wait until the girl could be brought into her presence. In a few moments the matron ushered in a girl arrayed in the convict stripes, asking: "Is this your daughter?" The eyes of the lady met those of the convict girl. She half arose from her seat, suddenly clasped her hand to her left side over her heart, and, gasping out "It is," dropped to the floor unconscious. The mother had found her daughter. The girl stooped down to help her parent, but all efforts failed to restore her to consciousness. Immediately Dr. Holsten, of the Charity Hospital, was called, and he at once pronounced the woman as dead "from heart-failing and hemorrhage." Mr. Burns, who had been notified, upon arriving at the Penitentiary to claim the body of his dead wife was overcome at also finding his only daughter an inmate of the place. The meeting of the girl and father over the prostrate form of their dead loved one was exceedingly affecting. A permit from Coroner Kennedy was obtained, and the body removed to her home in Jersey City. Katie now remains in the Penitentiary, although, under the circumstances, it is expected her sentence may be shortened.

The disappearance of Katie Burns from her home was due to her having been arrested in this city on the 6th of last month upon a charge of petty larceny. She was committed in the Court of Special Sessions before Justices Kilbreth, Ford and Smith, and sent to the Island for three months, having pleaded guilty to the charge as her first and only offense.

The Champion Checker Player.

From the Elmira Free Press.

A man with a gripsack and large cane, dressed like a farmer and looking as if he had just blown in from the backwoods, came to town. The stranger was James Wiley, the champion checker-player of the world. Mr. Wiley is a Scotchman, and has beaten the best players that the world has produced, and now he is regarded by all as the champion. He is about sixty years of age. His hair is white, and, like Horace Greeley, he wears a beard under his chin. His deafness makes it impossible to carry on a conversation with him. He sits quietly, not taking his eyes off the board, and taking no notice of those about him or anything except the game. He wears glasses, and has an intelligent and kindly face and good head. He has done nothing else but play checkers ever since he was fifteen years of age. His game cannot be beaten. He looks away into a game, and before an ordinary opponent has commenced he has won the game. He makes a good living by playing, as there are plenty of enthuiasts who willingly give twenty-five cents to play with him, and plenty more who will give that amount to see him play. He lives in Scotland, and has been in this country about six months, although this is not his first visit.

Brewster's Despair.

Washington Cor. Cleveland Leader.

A few days ago Dr. McDonald, of the Fish Commission, had a most artistic mantel designed by an artist friend, and as soon as it was put up, knowing Mr. Brewster's tastes for mantels, sent him a note asking him to see him. Yesterday Brewster called. He knew McDonald well, and walked in without knocking. The first thing his eye struck was the new mantel. It was much finer than his, which he had been boasting was the finest in Washington. He looked at it. There was not a flaw. It was perfect. It stood to his as Hyperion to a Satyr. He turned on his heel without saying a word to McDonald and went back to his office, threw himself in his chair, and told Brewster Cameron to put a screen up before his former idol. Cameron asked what was the matter. The trouble was told, and Cameron was further informed that if he did not get another mantel still finer than McDonald's he might as well prepare his resignation. And now Brewster Cameron is hunting for artists, and the Attorney-General is in a state of æsthetic despair.

Home Manufactures.

It is with just pride we can point to America's success in manufactures, and especially so is this the case with that most durable of all known floor coverings, "LINOLEUM." It has so completely superseded the best foreign article that only the poorest articles can now be imported. In use, the foreign goods will continually look dirty and dingy, the domestic bright, clean and pleasing, while the designs and artistic effects are beyond comparison. All carpet dealers keep these remarkable goods and the Walton Trade-Mark with the word "LINOLEUM" is on the back of every square yard of American make.

One of the most beautiful costumes at the Vanderbilt ball was that of Mrs. Chauncey M. Depew as Undine. It was of pale sea-green satin with drapery of white tulle on which were innumerable silver moons. The drapery was caught up with water lilies and sea-grasses, her hair was silver-powdered and she wore a diamond lizard, turtle and star-fish for ornaments.
